Hopkins Aide Disclaims Political Intentions or Statements.

Federal Officials Get New Warning

Arms and the Budget.

The Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee yesterday disapproved as "unfortunate" Deputy WPA Administrator Williams' appeal to relief workers to "keep our friends in power."

President Roosevelt pointed out armament costs in this country, even under the navy expansion program, will form only 15 or 16 per cent of the total Government budget. Page 2.

PWA allotted $1,995,000 for Navy Department projects, and it was learned $60,000,000 soon will be provided for Army housing work.

Senators Rap Williams.

By Robert C. Albright.

Renewing a warning against use of official Government influence in politics, the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee yesterday expressed formal disapproval of Deputy Works Progress Administrator Aubrey Williams' appeal to relief workers to "keep our friends in power."

The committee called the incident "unfortunate" and voiced hope "that all dispensers of Federal funds will take note of the obligation which has been imposed on this committee by the Senate to report to the Senate all such incidents as may be deemed to come within the scope of the investigation."

Lasser Released Transcript.

Chairman Morris Sheppard last night denied the matter was "completely closed" despite committee "acceptance" of a disclaimer from Williams that there was anything "political" intended or said in Monday's speech to an organized relief delegation.

Sheppard later called for a stenographic transcript of the WPA official's remarks from David Lasser, president of the Workers Alliance. Lasser, who led the relief delegation, had distributed copies of the transcript to newspapers. Sheppard said the committee would compare the transcript with Williams' own version.

Says Workers For New Deal.

Lasser wrote Sheppard a letter last night inclosing a "record" of the speech, but declaring "we did not take verbatim minutes of his speech and there are several inaccuracies which we have corrected from our recollection of what he said."

Denying Williams said relief workers "should vote for any candidate or for any political party," Lasser asserted:

"We interpreted his remarks as indicating what every person knows

GOV. WILLIAM LANGER.

SENATOR GERALD NYE.

Governor Langer Trailing in G. O. P. Senate Race, but With His Strongholds Still Unreported; Thoresen Tops Hagan for Governor.

By the Associated Press.

Fargo, N. Dak., June 28.—United States Senator Gerald P. Nye went into an early lead over Gov. William Langer for the nomination for Senator tonight in the State primary election as the first scattered returns were tabulated.

With 339 precincts of 2,260 reporting, the vote was: Nye 18,104, Lanker, 10,289.

In the Republican race for Governor, Nye's supporter, Lieut. Gov. T. H. H. Thoresen, took a slight lead over John N. Hagan, State agricultural commissioner and Langer League candidate. With 157 precincts in, Thorensen had 8,403 to 6,323 for Hagan.

Three candidates were bunched for the lead in the Republican race for two positions in the U. S. House of Representatives. Representative William Lemke, seeking renomination without factional indorsement, although formerly aligned with Langer, received 1,700 votes while Representative Usher L. Burdick had 1,628 in 69 precincts.

Other candidates for Representative on the Republican ticket were

Big PWA Gifts To Army, Navy Aid Recovery

$1,995,000 Allocated to Quantico and Norfolk; 60 Million to Army.

Allocation of $1,995,000 for Navy Department projects was announced yesterday by the Public Works Administration as well-informed quarters revealed the organization shortly will award the Army approximately $60,000,000 for construction work at military posts throughout the United States and its possessions.

Since plans and specifications are completed for the operations about to be undertaken the grants will give an immediate impetus to the building industry and thus speed recovery, it was said.

The armed services long have been in need of additional officers quarters, barracks, shops and other structures at various stations.

Chairman Andrew J. May, of the House Military Affairs Committee, said during hearings several months ago on the public works appropriation bill, "We have worse slums in the matter of Army housing in perhaps half the posts in the country than we have in many of the cities."

He added his committee had examined War Department needs "with a view to trying to have earmarked for the benefit of the War Department housing program some portion of $450,000,000 contemplated . . . to be expended for public works."

Navy Department projects for which funds were made available yesterday included $460,000 for water storage reserve and officers' school building and barracks at the Marine Barracks, Quantico, Va.

Army posts to receive funds for improvements probably will be drawn from a list of the "Army's principal existing requirements in permanent structures and facilities," totaling 181 projects valued at nearly $121,000,000, filed with the Public Works Administration last winter.

Ex-Champion Cut to Death In Cafe Fight

Proprietor Says Pappas, Boxer, Attacked Him in Job Quarrel.

A former Golden Gloves champion was stabbed to death last night following an argument over the closing of a restaurant.

The victim, Angelo Pappas, 20, of the 1200 block of G street northeast, died a few minutes after he was taken to Sibley Hospital, slashed by a butcher knife, wielded, police said, by John J. Cullinane, proprietor of a cafe in the 800 block of Third street northwest.

According to police, Cullinane informed Pappas and his brother-in-law, Howard Grigsby, of the 800 block of Third street northwest, manager of Cullinane's restaurant, that he had just passed a Government examination and planned to close his place, known as the Shamrock Grill.

Pappas, police said, incensed because he knew his brother-in-law would lose his job, began to lash at Cullinane with his fists. The two fought the length of the cafe before Cullinane, according to police, went to the kitchen and got a knife.

The fight then zig-zagged to the street, where Cullinane, according to witnesses, stabbed the former champion beneath the heart.

"Pappas plunged into the knife," said Cullinane last night.

"I had no intention of stabbing him. I just got the knife to frighten him and make him behave. I didn't want to hurt him."

Pappas is survived by his father and several sisters. Cullinane is married and the father of two children.

Plot at Alcatraz to Kidnap Ickes Revealed by Ex-Convict

By the United Press.

San Francisco, June 28.—Roy Gardner, former mail robber and prison escape artist, today told newspapermen of a plot discussed at Alcatraz Federal Prison to kidnap Secretary of Interior Harold Ickes.

Gardner said the plot was hatched by Albert Bates, Denver kidnaper, and Tom Underwood, Mid-Western bank robber.

Gardner said the two men "propositioned" Al Capone to put up the money to have gangsters outside the prison kidnap Ickes and hold him until Bates and Underwood were released.

Capone, Gardner said, turned down the suggestion.

Gardner said the version of his fight on "the Rock" with Capone had been misinterpreted to indicate that he saved Capone's life. He and Capone fought, Gardner said, when Capone "dusted off my chin one morning."

In the tussle that followed, Gardner said he yanked Capone into a doorway to get out of the line of fire from guns of prison guards.

"But I didn't do it to save the life of the dirty rat," Gardner said. "I did it to keep from being plugged myself."

Gardner was released recently from the Federal Prison at Leavenworth, Kans. He will work as a $50-a-week film salesman under Louis Sonney, former Centralia, Wash., police officer, who captured Gardner after a jail break and used the $5,000 reward to enter business.

Ordway Asks All to Aid in Merit Shifts

Absorbing 130,000 Will Be Difficult, Civil Service Admits.

Chief Glad Orders Are on Paper, Now Must Apply Them.

Answers for 130,000.

Ordway's Problem.

Civil Service Commissioner Samuel H. Ordway, in an address yesterday before Federal employes who admittedly were confused in the involvements of the executive order that blankets approximately 130,000 additional employes in the civil service, called for support from agency heads, employes and the public to make the sweeping merit-system proposals effective.

He was satisfied that the merit principle was at least on official paper, but it remains for the administrative heads to apply it, he said.

Previous speakers at the meeting, held under auspices of the United Federal Workers of America in the Interior Department auditorium, had given Commissioner Ordway major credit for conceiving the personnel proposals that took effect by the executive order on June 24. This credit the commissioner shifted to the President.

Expected Expansion.

In conversations he held with Mr. Roosevelt, the commissioner said, the Chief Executive evinced many months ago a strong interest in stabilizing the Federal personnel, "and I never doubted that it would come." It is known, however, that Commissioner Ordway has devoted a major portion of his time in office to a study of the very proposals that appeared in the executive orders.

The orders have raised many legal questions that are wide open to interpretation and while the objectives and principles are stated, there remains a necessity for discretion of application so that the best interests of the public service and the public generally will be served, the commissioner stated.

Cites Post Feature.

Frank Bane, Executive Director of the Social Security Board, told the employes frankly that he had not, as yet, digested the entire import of the orders, but did see in them practically the same aims for personnel managements that the SSB has sought to develop since its inception. The SSB, he said, has aimed at making that agency a career spot, and entertains the hope of bringing every employe under civil service provisions.

William C. Bowen, chief of the SSB Classification Section, quoted the Gallup Poll, a Post feature, to demonstrate his view that the public is demanding a Civil Service Federal personnel. "The inclusion

Arch MacDonald, Ankle Hurt, May Radio From Bed

Arch MacDonald, popular radio sports announcer, may broadcast today's baseball game from a bed at Georgetown Hospital as the result of an accident last night on the Columbia pike in Virginia. He suffered fractures of the ankle in three places.

According to MacDonald, who was on his way to the Cross Roads Theater at Bailey's Cross Roads in Virginia, to play the leading role in "The Old Soak," he fell in a small ditch while remonstrating with a driver who had sideswiped his car.

A packed house at the country theater first listened to an announcement that the announcer was injured and would be late and then had their money refunded when the extent of his injuries was learned.

Jury Acquits Wamplers in Md. Slaying

By Howard F. Wentworth.
A Staff Correspondent.

La Plata, Md., June 28.—After deliberating exactly 50 minutes, a Charles County jury today found both Mr. and Mrs. T. Morris Wampler "not guilty" of manslaughter charges in the death of Charles Adams, handyman on their Fenwick estate.

Mrs. Wampler had to be supported by her husband as Chief Judge Walter Mitchell ordered them to stand before the packed courtroom to hear the verdict from the jury.

After Jury Foreman Beverly H. Barnes and all members of the jury said "not guilty for both," Mrs. Wampler collapsed into her husband's arms. Tears streamed down their cheeks. They then went into a long embrace.

Judge Mitchell previously had issued orders that there be no demonstration as the verdict was reported.

Defense Names Writer.

The verdict came as no surprise when the defense built a strong case with Mrs. Wampler the only defendant taking the stand. Wampler did not testify.

After Mrs. Wampler had testified that neither she nor Wampler had struck their old caretaker, a defense attorney in his closing argument blamed Alan Buck, 26-year-old writer of children's stories, for the slaying.

"If the State has proved that Adams was killed during a fight on the Wampler place," declared Frank Hall, one of three defense attorneys, "it has only shown that Alan Buck was the man responsible."

He paced before the jury and added:

"Why isn't Buck here before this jury also charged with manslaughter?"

Buck Leaves Room.

In answer to this charge, State's Attorney Edward Edelen in his final argument to the jury said that the State did not deny that Buck had taken part in a free-for-all fight prior to death of the aged, half-blind caretaker, but that the death blows were struck following Buck's return to his home.

It was brought out that Buck left the Wampler home about 4:30 p. m. on April 29, while the time of death was placed at from 5 to 5:15 that day.

On the stand Mrs. Wampler testified that her husband was helplessly drunk on the day of the slaying, and also that red spots on a blouse she was wearing that day were paint and not blood.

Questioned by Defense Attorney John Mudd she said her husband was "paralyzed drunk," and was

Father of Astor's Wife Asks Relief; Down to Last $15

Newport, R. I., June 28 (AP).—Francis O. French, father of Mrs. John Jacob Astor 3d, applied for relief in Middletown Saturday, it was learned today. Public Aid Director Robert W. Smith said French's application was in the hands of a relief case worker supervisor at Newport.

French, whose financial and marital difficulties and desire to "expose" the foibles of society have kept his wealthy kin in a dither for years, has steadfastly refused to accept financial aid from the latter.

French said today that he had applied for relief for the simple reason that was was down to his last $15.

He appeared, 15 minutes late, still in uniform.

German Guns Trained On Gibraltar, Peeress Warns Chamberlain

China Fights For Recovery Of River Fort

Counteroffensive Aimed at Matchowen Boom, Embattlement.

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai (Wednesday), June 29. Chinese troops fought desperately today to recapture one of the several forts defending the Matowchen boom, important barrier blocking the Japanese drive up the Yangtze River against Hankow.

The Matowchen boom, formed of sunken, rock-laden junks, is 175 miles down-river from the provisional capital.

Chinese admitted in Hankow that a heavy Japanese assault had resulted in the capture of one of the forts at Matowchen, but maintained that the boom still held. They said a counter-offensive was launched against the fort immediately.

Yangtze Keeps Rising.

The Yangtze River continued to rise, which would facilitate movement of Japanese gunboats past the boom, but land batteries and floating mines still constituted serious obstacles.

Foreign military observers believed Matowchen's fate depended upon the success of Japanese land forces attempting to advance up the north and south banks.

The Japanese, however, were having difficulty on both banks. The Japanese admitted one of their columns had been surrounded on the south bank and was saved only when Japanese planes and reinforcements arrived.

The Chinese reported the Japanese also were bogged down on the north bank with a large number of troops surrounded on the shores of Lake Po.

Two Landings Thwarted.

Japanese reinforcements attempting to land at Wushantze were said by the Chinese to have been repulsed, while another attempted landing, near Tungliu, was said to have been thwarted. The Chinese said they sank seven Japanese motorboats and killed 100 men.

Chinese air force officers said a "dare-to-die" Chinese flier sank a Japanese gunboat in the Yangtze River near Anking by plunging his burning bomb-laden plane onto the vessel's deck.

Meanwhile, Chinese reported gradual reoccupation of areas in the triangle south of the Lunghai Railway and east of the Peiping-Hankow, broadening the protection of Chengchow, where the two railroads cross. The Chinese also asserted 20,000 guerrillas and militia were operating in western Shantung Province, harassing Japanese garrison lines.

Germans to Leave July 5.

Hankow, China, June 28.—The question of the departure from China of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek's German military advisers, which threatened to raise a serious Chines-German diplomatic issue, has been settled amicably and German officers are leaving Hankow on July 5.

Japanese Public Forbidden Cotton

Tokyo (Wednesday), June 29 (U.P.).—The ministry of commerce today will promulgate four decrees, effective immediately, prohibiting manufacture of cotton yarns and piece goods for domestic consumption other than military.

The decrees do not affect cotton products for export and will not materially affect Japanese raw cotton imports from the United States, since domestic consumption is comparatively small.

Simultaneously the cabinet is invoking, effective about August 1, new sections of the "national mobilization law," for control of labor, to prevent workers from flocking into the high-pay munitions industries. Graduates of engineering schools and skilled technicians will be allocated among factories as needed.

Reich Absorbs Austrian Auto Plant in Trust

State-Owned Company Is Fast Grasping Bulk of Industry.

Berlin, June 28.—Field Marshal Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering's Reich iron works, state-owned and controlled projects, have taken a new step toward bringing within their sphere the bulk of German heavy industry, with the announcement today of the purchase of the controlling interest of the Speyl B. Daimler Puch Co., the biggest automobile company in Austria. Likewise, three Austrian iron and steel companies of smaller capitalization are being absorbed in a similar manner. Recently it was disclosed that the vast Goering state company had controlling interest in Rheinmetall.

These developments manifest an increasing trend in the Reich toward State ownership, whether it be termed state capitalism or state socialism. However, as with the majority of economic projects in Germany military considerations are uppermost in the Goering state companies, so in a sense the socialism which creeps in is secondary, and a by-product. However this may be, the Goering state company is now believed to have become the biggest continental European metal combine within the borders of a single state.

Originally conceived last year to exploit low-grade iron deposits in Salzgitter district, near Brunswick, the trust is spreading out rapidly, both horizontally and vertically. In his speech at Munich following the Anchluss, Goering announced that this company would construct a second huge plant at Linz, on the Danube, to exploit both Austrian iron ore from Erzburg and "dogger" ore from south Germany. Even the original project near Brunswick promises to be one of the most interesting experiments of Germany's four-year plan for economic self-sufficiency.

Dimming Eyes of Heroes of '63 Again View Gettysburg's Hills

By Marshall Andrews,
A Staff Correspondent.

Gettysburg, Pa., June 28.—Because the Army of Northern Virginia marched itself out of its shoes reaching this place 75 years ago, a handful of ancient men in old-fashioned uniforms are camped today on these rolling hills.

On a rugged ridge south of Gettysburg and in a mile-wide green valley west of the ridge they fought perhaps the most important battle on the American continent. Under the rolling blue smoke and among the rocks and woods of Cemetery Ridge, Culps Hill and the Round Tops they decided that this Nation would not divide itself.

Today the two tent cities, one on each side of the Emmitsburg road, began filling with the veterans of both armies. Not many of them, in blue or in gray, fought here. But to all of them Gettysburg is the one symbol of victory or defeat.

The three days of battle and the fourth day, when the army of Lee fell back across the Potomac, dragging its wounded, and the army of Meade rested on the field, too hard hit to follow, will be commemorated here Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

As the third day so long ago climaxed the battle with the magnificent hopeless charge of Pickett's 15,000, so will the third day here climax the celebration. On that day, next Sunday, President Roose-

Gibraltar Peril.

By the Associated Press.

London, June 28.—The Duchess of Atholl, one of three Conservatives who have turned against Prime Minister Chamberlain's "deal-with-the-dictators" policy, demanded today that Chamberlain tell Commons what he is going to do about Fascist artillery which dominates Gibraltar.

Beside the duchess' demand, Chamberlain and his policy of "realism" were beset by an uproar inspired by Duncan Sandys, Conservative M. P., who charged that he was threatened with the official secrets act because he asked in Commons about difficulties in antiaircraft gun manufacture. Sandys is a son-in-law of Winston Churchill.

Details of Threat.

The duchess, Sandys and Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, a Nobel peace prize winner who protested Chamberlain's failure to protect British merchant ships, are the only Conservatives who have left the Chamberlain camp, although several others have pressed Chamberlain to take measures to protect British shipping against aerial attacks.

The duchess furnished details of what she said was the threat of German-made guns, pointed at Gilbraltar from insurgent Spain. She said these were:

More than 20 guns planted up in the hills around Algeciras, including three pieces of more than 10 inches; a number of long-range 5.9-inch guns and several howitzers "so placed that they could drop shells in Gibraltar but yet are invisible from the highest point on the rock."

Nine naval-type guns of about 4 inches on Punta Carnero.

At least one 15-inch gun on a high peak near Alcala de las Gazules, almost 21 miles inland.

Calls for Action.

"What action does the prime minister propose to take?" asked the countess.

Although only three conservatives have repudiated Chamberlain, others have abstained from voting with the government on recent issues involving the bombings of British ships in Spain.

Despite indications of rising indignation in the Conservative party and among the voting public, there remained opposition doubts as to whether the time was quite ripe for

Roosevelt Says He Shuns Arms 'As Jobless Aid

Navy Program Not Part of War on Unemployment, He Holds.

By the Associated Press.

Hyde Park, N. Y., June 28.—President Roosevelt declared today the United States is trying to solve its unemployment problem without a huge armament program.

Telling his press conference that the $3,750,000,000 lending and spending campaign would be in full swing by July 1, the President said that even with the somewhat expanded naval shipbuilding program, armament costs of this country would be only 15 or 16 per cent of the total Government budget.

Says All Countries Suffer.

Therefore, he said in answer to questions, the armament program would have relatively little to do with rehabilitation of the unemployed.

The Chief Executive added that the 15 to 16 per cent figure was not to be compared in its economic effect with the armament programs of other countries where arms costs are 45 to 50 per cent of the total expense of government.

For the current year, he said, arms were costing only 12 per cent of this country's expenditures.

Mr. Roosevelt asserted there is in every civilized country more unemployment today than ever before.

No country, he said, has developed a permanent solution of the problem of giving people work in times of depression as well as in boom periods. And, he added, the only method developed so far of solving unemployment 100 per cent was the method of going in for armaments—manufacturing goods without permanent worth and which do not reproduce wealth.

That, he declared, is not a permanent solution.

The National Resources Committee has recommended a long-range program of public works to be mapped in good times and launched when business gets bad.

That is one answer, Mr. Roosevelt said, and has been particularly effective in Sweden, a small, compact country.

He added the Swedes have been successful in their plans for paying off the costs of their program when times grew better after their depression, whereas this country did not pass off the costs in 1936 and 1937 after the big works programs of 1933, 1934 and 1935.

He said the Swedish system was being studied.

Benefits New Jobless.

Regarding the current relief program, the President said PWA was going ahead as fast as it could and that a drive was on to use as many as possible of the recently authorized 400,000 new WPA workers on jobs by July 1. The Civilian Conservation Corps will reach its new authorized strength of 350,000 by that time, too, he added, so that as far as humanly possible the whole drive on the depression would be under way by the first of the month.

The objective of work relief, as distinct from the dole, he said, is to give wages for work on a basis sufficient to provide as decent a living as can be afforded instead of just enough to hold body and soul together.

Provisions of such work relief for some months past, he continued, has not kept pace with additional unemployment and the new lending-spending program will take care of a large part of those additional employables the Government previously had no work for.

After he said this country's relief program was a continuing policy, the President was asked if he meant the unemployed always would be with us.

He answered that he wouldn't put it that way—that that was only a third of a quarter of the problem and that it was deeper. Some people call it technology, he said, some economics, others the result of the World War, or machinery that produces with the same amount of labor twice as much goods as were made by methods employed 15 years ago.

All these things, he declared, are controlling factors.

Discussing other matters, the President said he thought the wages and hours bill which he signed Saturday was, next perhaps to the social security law, the most important act passed in two or three years.

To Name Wage-Hour Chief.

He added that he hoped to appoint a wage-hour administrator under the new law before leaving on his Western trip July 7, but that he had many recommendations from which to choose.

Answering other questions the President said 550 persons had been proposed for the six $12,000 jobs created by the new civil aeronautics law. Asked how many of the total were politicians, he replied about a third.

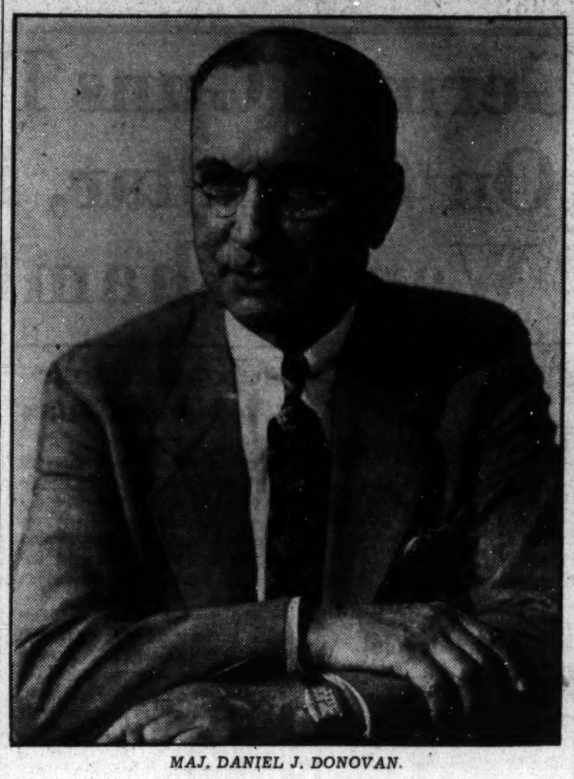
He said that he had not as yet picked a successor at Moscow for Ambassador Joseph E. Davies, recently shifted to Brussels, Belgium.

Mr. Roosevelt asserted that appointments of judges would come in driblets.

The Chief Executive announced he had signed 20 bills and vetoed another among those still left from the adjournment of Congress. All 21 measures were of minor character.

Working for Washington

Maj. Donovan, Fact-Supplier, Is Most 'Titled' D. C. Official



MAJ. DANIEL J. DONOVAN.

As Auditor, Budgeter, Personnel Chief, WPA Finance Director and Efficiency Administrator, He Keeps Figures Straight.

By Christine Sadler

The rows of budgeting, administrative and personnel facts which Maj. Daniel J. Donovan keeps straight for the District of Columbia are enough to make a less-brave Irishman throw up his hands in surrender.

Auditor, budget officer, chief of the D. C. Personnel Board, director of finance for the District WPA, administrator of the efficiency rating system, administrator of the retirement law for District employes—Maj. Donovan not only knows all the "figure facts" connected with these and his numerous other District jobs—he also is able to keep them straight and produce them in coherent quantities for those who wish to be informed in a hurry.

Congress is his biggest customer. At least three full months of his time each year are devoted to supplying Congressmen with information concerning the District's financial and administrative machinery.

In August he will complete 47 years of service with the District government. He has been auditor since 1919, and budget officer since 1921. The jobs he has held have been varied enough to include the supervising of District playgrounds and the secretaryship to the Board of District Commissioners. His present jobs, in addition to the key posts, include enough committee memberships and chairmanships to make him the most "titled" District official.

"The jobs I hold," he exclaims jovially, "do not take much ability. I merely have to have good absorption."

His salary is the same as that of the Commissioners. When he is mentioned for one of the Commissionerships—which is just about as soon as there is a vacancy—it throws a wrench into District activities. There are hoorahs from friends who consider the job would be an elevation, and just as many protests from friends who argue he would not gain by the procedure and that the District would lose. It is getting to be well known by now, however, that Maj. Donovan has no desire to be Commissioner. He has seven years to go before he reaches retirement age, and he wants to serve them out where he is.

A native of Washington, he can remember the Capital City as it was 55 years ago. "The progress we have made in beautifying the city since that time is almost unbelievable, but we are only getting started," he declares.

During the World War, Maj. Donovan was in charge of administration of the selective service law and it was in connection with this service that he was commissioned a major in the United States Army.

He gets in considerable civic work by being department chairman each year of the Red Cross membership campaign and of the Community Chest drive among District employes.

Walking is his real hobby. He averages from 3 to 5 miles every day.

On Friday—Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways for the District of Columbia, will be next in the "Working for Washington" series.

Indiana Candidate Convinced Klansmen Will Nominate Him

By Geoffrey Parsons, Jr.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 28.—The cold ashes of the Ku Klux Klan were warmed up again today as Walter F. Bossert, former Klan chieftain, claimed former Klansmen on every county delegation would combine to win him the Republican senatorial nomination in the G. O. P.'s Indiana State convention tomorrow.

Although his claims of strength were disputed not only by other candidates in the five-man senatorial contest but by impartial observers, Bossert asserted he was the only candidate with the necessary State-wide strength to win the nomination. He attributed his strength largely to his use of the membership rolls of the Indiana Klan, which he has in his possession.

Not since 1925, when it completely captured the Republican Party in Indiana, has the Klan made a strong showing in this State.

Thurman Fears Klan.

As experienced a politician as Bert Thurman, former collector of internal revenue for Indiana and for many years campaign manager for Senator James E. Watson, estimated that perhaps one third of the 1760 delegates to the Republican convention are former Klansmen. He is particularly interested in the Klan issue because he is managing the campaign of Louis R. Markun, Jewish candidate for the nomination for State auditor. Mr. Markun, World War veteran, faces a stiff fight, Mr. Thurman believes, largely because of the strong Klan element among the delegates.

Speculation over the complimentary vote that former Senator Watson will be given on the first ballot tomorrow was almost as heated today as speculation of K. K. K. strength. The managers of the four rivals of Senator Watson believe they have taken care of things so that he will lead all candidates on the first ballot, but lacking the required majority for nomination, will quickly lose his strength.

Attorney Likely Bet.

Oliver Starr, a Gary attorney and probably the most progressive Republican of the lot, is regarded as the most likely bet to win the nomination. Another attorney, Clarence E. (Dick) Wills, of Kokomo, is believed to have the runner-up position behind Starr, and if down State hostility normally encountered from industrial Gary proves too strong for Starr, Wills may be the choice.

Decision Near On Fare Rise For Railways

I.C.C. Gets Final Testimony on Lowered Revenue, Higher Expenses.

By the Associated Press

The Interstate Commerce Commission proceeded rapidly yesterday toward a decision on the request of Eastern Railroads for an increase in coach fares.

It heard railroad spokesmen conclude a day and a half of testimony about declining revenues and increased operating expenses, and then scheduled arguments for tomorrow.

The carriers' request—that the present coach rate of 2 cents a mile be increased to 2½—was denied earlier this year, but the question was reopened.

Yesterday's testimony dealt largely with the results of an increase from 1.5 cents to 2 cents, granted Southern railroads November 15, 1937. Commission tables showed that bus lines in the area reported subsequently large increases in revenue. The increase for February of this year was 15.4 per cent over that for the same month in 1937, the tables showed.

R. J. Littlefield, the Pennsylvania Railroad's superintendent of motor traffic, contended the increases in bus revenue were not due primarily to the higher rail fares. Some traffic probably was diverted, he said, but most of it was on trips of less than 50 miles. Littlefield argued that higher bus fares, improved local schedules, discontinuance of some bus lines and the 1937 floods caused the apparent increase in bus revenues. His point regarding the '37 floods was that they interrupted bus service extensively. This reduced revenues, he said, and the income from more normal service this year was naturally higher.

F. E. Williamson, president of the New York Central Railroad, told the commission he understood the Central Greyhound Bus lines, partly owned by the railroad, would ask a rate increase if the railroad petition is granted.

Chicago, June 28 (AP).—Representatives of 18 brotherhoods agreed today to discuss the railroads' demand for a 15 per cent wage reduction with spokesmen for the managements here on July 20.

George M. Harrison, chairman of the Railroad Labor Executives Association, announced the parley had been arranged for that date during a conference with representatives of the Nation's Class 1 lines this afternoon.

4 Listed as Likely To Be Named for Wage-Hour Chief

The Federal Administrator of the new wage-hour law likely to be appointed within the next week by President Roosevelt, may be selected, it was learned yesterday, from the following list:

Richard H. Lansburgh, former secretary of labor and industry in Pennsylvania in the Pinchot administration. He was for a time head of the research and planning division of the NRA and drew up the automobile industry report which Administration figures considered an exceedingly good job.

Josephine Roche, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury long interested in social reform, and an industrialist by reason of her management of the Rocky Mountain Fuel Co.

Lloyd K. Garrison, dean of the Wisconsin University Law School and once chairman of the defunct National Labor Board.

30 Witnesses Subpenaed For U.S. Oil Prosecution

Thirty subpenas were issued in Madison, Wis., yesterday for witnesses to appear before a Federal grand jury there July 12 in connection with the Justice Department's oil investigations, the department announced today. Prosecution of a number of Midwest oil companies on charges of violating antitrust laws began late in 1936.

The Gallup Poll

Voters Think the New Deal Should Be More Conservative, Survey Indicates.

By Dr. George Gallup,
Director American Institute of Public Opinion.

New York, June 28.—In his recent fireside chat President Roosevelt issued an eloquent call to his party to vote for "liberal" candidates in the Democratic primary elections. He defined a "liberal as one who, among other things, opposes a "moratorium on reform."

George Gallup

While Institute surveys have shown that the New Deal element still dominates the Democratic Patry, and that such pieces of legislation as the wage-hour bill are popular, nevertheless even a majority of Democrats feel in general that the party has moved as far to the left as it should go. A survey just completed by the Institute finds that nearly six out of every ten Democrats think the Roosevelt Administration should be more conservative between now and 1940.

Voters in all sections of the country were asked: "During the next two years would you like to see the Roosevelt Administration be more liberal or more conservative?"

	More Liberal	More Conservative
All voters	28%	72%
Democrats	41	59
Republicans	7	93

While "liberalism" and "conservatism" are matters of definition, about which many persons disagree, nevertheless the one-sided vote in the survey seems to indicate a definite tendency toward the right. This may have an important bearing on the 1940 election. If the trend indicated by the survey continues, the dominant pull of public opinion will be toward the conservative side, possibly resulting in a more conservative national administration after 1940.

Iowa Vote Recalled.

The survey results are also significant in the light of the recent Iowa primary. In that race Senator Gillette praised the President, but bitterly attacked the "palace brain trust" who are credited with trying to pull the President toward the left. This, in effect, was drawing a distinction between Roosevelt and his policies.

The same distinction has existed in the public mind for many years, for Institute surveys have found that the President is consistently more popular than his policies. This explains why a majority of voters (54.4 per cent in the last Institute check-up) are still for Roosevelt despite the strong sentiment for conservative policies in today's survey.

Spending Singled Out.

An analysis of comments from voters indicates that the public wants the Administration to be more conservative chiefly in two ways—in its spending of public funds and in its treatment of business.

"The New Deal's too free and easy with money," is one typical comment. Another voter declared: "We've got to get back to conservative money policies. We're spending too much for our grandchildren to pay."

THE QUESTION:

During the next two years would you like to see the Roosevelt Administration be more liberal or more conservative?

More Liberal 28%

More Conservative.....72

Regarding the Administration's attitude toward business, the majority of comments were to the effect that so long as businessmen feared his policies real recovery would be delayed.

Poor Least Conservative.

The strongest sentiment for more liberal policies was expressed by the lower income groups, with whom the President is most popular. But even among these voters opinion as to the course he should take is almost evenly divided, with a slight majority (52 per cent) saying he should be more conservative. Voters in the upper income group are almost unanimously in favor of greater conservatism.

	More Liberal	More Conservative
Upper income group	10%	90%
Middle group	22	78
Lower group	48	52

35 Leave District For Church Parley

Headed by Edwin Barrett, of Alexandria, a delegation of some 35 Washington and Virginia churchmen have left for Duluth, Minn., to attend the thirty-ninth annual Baraca-Philathea Bible Classes Convention opening today.

Participating in the five-day conclave are Homer Rodeheaver, famous song leader; Dr. Ira Honeywell, former publicity man for Billy Sunday; Miss Henrietta Heron, general counsellor, and William Camelford, of Canada, world-president of the organization, which has more than half a million members. Over 1,000 delegates are expected at the conference, which will be held in the largest Presbyterian Church in the city.

Formed 48 years ago in Syracuse, N. Y., by Marshall A. Hudson, the Baraca-Philathea movement is now international in scope. Non-denominational, it has an enrollment of approximately 1,500 members in this area, known as the Tri-State Union. Mr. Barrett is teacher of the Open-Door Baraca (Men's) Class of the First Baptist Church, Alexandria.

Next Week Set For Monopoly Inquiry's Start

Sumners May Fly From Texas for First Formal Conference.

The first organization meeting of the full 12-man Congressional-Executive Monopoly Investigating Committee was tentatively scheduled for early next week, following word yesterday that Representative Sumners (Democrat), of Texas, plans an early return to Washington.

An initial meeting had been postponed until all members, both legislative and executive, could be present. Representative Sumners, who is facing re-election opposition in his district, wired yesterday that he is planning to leave Texas Sunday, and may fly back.

Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming, expected to be chairman of the joint group, said no formal meeting is planned until the entire group can meet as a unit. Informal conferences already have been in progress. O'Mahoney has been in almost daily contact with Thurman Arnold, head of the Justice Department antitrust division, one of the six executive members.

"And there is nothing to prevent me from talking with Senator Borah (Idaho Republican) and Senator King (Utah Democrat) if I should run into them in the lunchroom, but no conferences of a formal nature are planned," said O'Mahoney.

66,253 Army Men To Hold Largest Peacetime Games

The War Department announced yesterday that 66,523 officers and men will participate in war games of the Third Army in the South and West next August, in field training of "the largest assembly of troops in a single maneuver that has ever taken place in our peace-time history."

One of the four main divisions of the country's military organization, the Third Army, is in effect the Army of the South. The main body, 29,499 officers and men, comprising units of the Fourth Corps Area, will be massed in the DeSoto National Forest, Miss., from July 31 to August 14.

Troops from the Eighth Corps Area, 26,208 of them, will be concentrated chiefly in the Camp Bullis area, near San Antonio, Tex., from August 6 to August 20.

Kennedy Just Eludes $1,000,000 Subpoena

New York, June 28 (U.P.).—Joseph P. Kennedy, the American Ambassador to the Court of St. James, appeared tonight to have missed being tagged with a $1,000,000 damage suit by the length of a one-way trip through the back door of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Kennedy, when last heard from, was on his way to Washington, D. C., where a United States marshal is supposed to be ready to serve the ambassador if he catches him.

J. Edward Jones, lanky New York oil man, wants to sue Kennedy for supposed damage to his oil royalty business caused by Kennedy as chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission in 1936.

150 Complaints On Labor Law Pour in Daily

Little Business Men Are Protesting With the Big, Burke Declares.

Senator Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, conducting a one-man investigation of the national labor relations act with a view to corrective legislation next session, said yesterday he is receiving complaints "at the rate of 150 to 2000 a day."

"And they don't come from so-called 'economic royalists'," said Burke. "They come from small businessmen with from ten to a dozen employes, and it is surprising the number of complaints I have received from employes themselves."

Burke, who is leaving for Nebraska this week-end, said he will return to Washington in August to devote the rest of the summer to the study.

Defied by Kentuckian.

Meantime, C. H. Murray, assistant to President Charles R. Hook, of the American Rolling Mill Co., of Ashland, Ky., served notice on the National Labor Relations Board that the company intends to fight out the issues of free press and free speech raised in the NLRB citation against the company.

Hearing of unfair labor practices charges against the American Rolling Mill Co. was in recess yesterday at Catlettsburg, Ky., after the company had won an initial victory. Trial Examiner George Bokat had granted the comptny's motion to strike from the complaint a section charging the concern with sponsoring candidates for public office, after company counsel, former NRA Administrator Donald Richberg contended it violated constitutional rights.

"Although the board has backed down on its attempt to deny freedom of political expression and the free use of the ballot," said Murray here yesterday, "a ruling is still reserved on the rights of free speech and a free press, which are equally important. This leaves a threat hanging over our officers—and over all other officers and managerial officials—against free expressions of their opinions as citizens."

Damage Already Done.

Murray said the trial examiner's agreement to strike charges of sponsoring candidates "only emphasizes the board's unfairness in giving widespread publicity to a harmful charge which was withdrawn at the first moment of resistance."

He said the complaints against the board constituted "a Nation-wide threat to deprive all employers, as a class, of such basic rights as the freedom to support their choice of candidates for office, the exercise of free speech and access to a free press."

"We felt," Murray said, "that the board itself—as its examiner did in the citation denying political rights—should disavow any intention and disclaim any authority to interfere with the rights of free speech and free press, which all citizens are entitled to exercise freely."

Senator Burke, who has filled several files with replies to his appeals for suggestions for improving the national labor relations act, said he is not ready yet to say what specific changes in the law he will propose.

"My purpose," he said, "is to make the labor relations act a thoroughly workable piece of legislation, that will protect the rights of employers as well as employes."

Catlettsburg, Ky., June 28 (AP).—Fight over records sought by the Government from the American Rolling Mill Co., threatened tonight to precipitate an abrupt adjournment of a National Labor Board hearing against the steel producing firm.

Day-long conferences between opposing counsel failed to produce an agreement over 250,000 pay roll and employment records for the company's Ashland, Ky., plant.

Hearing of Wagner labor act charges against the company was in recess today to permit conferences designed to effect a compromise.

Barnes (left), of New York, sister of Medill McCormick (inset), young Chicago publishing heir who once was a student at St. Albans in Washington, is shown at her mother's ranchhouse at Albuquerque awaiting word on the search. Shown interviewing her is B. L. Livingstone, chief of the Associated Press Bureau at Albuquerque. Spanish-American mountain climbers are shown in right picture scaling the face of North Sandia peak, near Albuquerque, where the body of Richard Whitmer, McCormick's companion, was found. McCormick has been missing since Wednesday.

Transit Lines Are Rerouted By Joint Board

Northeast District Limits to Get Bus Service July 10; Car Line Abandoned.

Street car service between Union Station Plaza and Eighth and F streets northeast, was ordered abandoned yesterday by the joint board of District Commissioners and the Public Utilities Commission.

In addition, the joint board ordered a change in the route of the Rhode Island avenue bus line between Fourth street and Rhode Island avenue northeast and the intersection of Twelfth and Franklin streets northeast.

Following a petition by the Capital Transit Co., bus service will be inaugurated July 10 for residents of Capital View, De Priest Village and Marshall Heights in northeast Washington.

Numerous petitions and individual requests for the bus service in the Benning, D. C., area were received by the transit company inasmuch as there has been considerable building development there within recent years. Residents of these communities at the present time are compelled to walk in many cases in excess of two miles for transportation facilities, it was pointed out.

The route of the new bus line will be over the following streets: From the west end of the Benning Viaduct, via Benning road, Central avenue, Fifty-third place, East Capitol street, Central avenue and Benning road.

Line Built in 1909.

The order abandoning the service from Union Station Plaza stated the line was constructed by the transit company in 1909, when there were two competitive railway systems. The company had said the service on this track was being duplicated. Passengers in this area will have available the Glover Park-Trinidad bus line which will be slightly changed.

The bus line will leave Union Station Plaza to Second street northeast, north on Second street to F street, east to Fifth street, north to K street, east on K street and Florida avenue to Trinidad, continuing on the present route.

The Rhode Island bus line will turn on Fourth street to Franklin street, east on Franklin street to Twelfth street, north on Twelfth street to Monroe street, and continuing on the present route.

The commission also directed the company to abandon the double conduit track in Ninth street northwest, between Rhode Island avenue and U street, and the double conduit track, including crossover, in Ninth street and Florida avenue northwest, between U street and Sherman avenue.

Moss, 27, Named Concert Master of Symphony Here

A 27-year-old violinist, Marshall Moss, will be the new concert master of the National Symphony Orchestra when the "Sunset Symphonies" begin July 10 at the Watergate, near the Lincoln Memorial.

MOSS.

The new concert master was engaged to succeed Frederick Dvonch, who held the post during the 1937-38 season. The appointment was announced yesterday by C. C. Cappel, manager of the National Symphony. When rehearsals begin under Dr. Hans Kindler next week, Moss will take over his new duties.

The youthful musician has had his entire musical education in this country. He was a winner of the prized Julliard Musical Fellowship. Later he went to Europe for a concert tour, where he met with great success. In 1935 he returned to America, where he was awarded the Walter W. Naumberg prize and made his New York debut.

The summer symphonies will be presented from July 10 to August 17, each Sunday and Wednesday evening.

Too Many Jailed, Suggestion Made By Sanford Bates

Seattle, June 28 (AP).—Sanford Bates, for years director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons, discussed the possibility today that in the war on crime, too many men are being sent to prison.

"Prisons and Beyond" was the theme of his address to the sixty-fifth annual national conference of social work.

The Penologist observed that the country's women's prisons and reformatories, "which partake the least of the character of prisons, have the highest percentage of 'success' with their graduates."

Bates, Massachusetts commissioner of correction for ten years before entering Federal work, and now executive director of the Boys' Clubs of America, urged that probation work be disassociated from political control.

Davila, Rumania's Ex-Envoy to U. S., Loses Citizenship

Bucharest, June 28 (AP).—The Official Gazette announced today that Charles A. Davila, until last January 4 Rumanian Minister to the United States, had been deprived of Rumanian citizenship under a new law penalizing activities hostile to the state.

It was explained Davila had refused to return to Rumania despite repeated orders and that in Paris he had delivered a lecture regarded as injurious to the Rumanian government.

(Davila spent two months in Europe following his resignation. Returning to New York April 8, he declared King Carol was the dictator of Rumania and said he would not return to Rumania until the people had regained their liberties.)

Allen Throop Quits SEC to Teach at Yale

Chester T. Lane to Succeed Him as Agency's General Counsel.

Allen E. Throop, general counsel of the Securities and Exchange Commission, announced his resignation yesterday to join the faculty of Yale Law School next September.

Chester T. Lane, now assistant general counsel, will succeed Throop, while Robert H. O'Brien, assistant director of the registration division, will replace Lane as assistant general counsel.

Mr. Throop joined the commission's staff as assistant general counsel in September, 1934, and was appointed general counsel on January 15, 1937. A graduate of Hamilton College and of Harvard Law School, he practiced law in New York City from 1926 to 1934, and for a time served as counsel for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and as secretary of the Foreign Bondholders Protective Counsel, Inc.

Lane became a member of the commission's legal staff in 1935 and was appointed assistant general counsel in January 1937. He is a graduate of Harvard College and the Harvard Law School. He was a member of the faculty of Harvard College from 1926 to 1928, following which he practiced law in New York City with the firm of Millbank, Tweed, Hope and Webb.

O'Brien has been an assistant director of the registration division since June 1937. He first came with the commission in November 1934 as an attorney in the registration division. After graduation from the University of Chicago Law School, he practiced law in Chicago and later was a member of the legal staff of the Public Works Administration here.

French Jail Reich Spy, A Waiter, for 13 Years

Bordeaux, France, June 28 (AP).—A German cafe waiter identified only as "Schmidt" by military authorities was sentenced today to 13 years at hard labor for spying. A military court found him guilty of sending French naval building plans to Germany.

D'ALESANDRO.

D'Alesandro, handsome 35-year-old political leader in the city's Third Ward, announced formally Monday night that he would oppose Palmisano for renomination on the Democratic ticket. Palmisano filed his certificate of candidacy with the secretary of State yesterday, but D'Alesandro has not yet done so.

In announcing for candidacy, D'Alesandro came out for President Roosevelt, for Representative David J. Lewis, who is opposing renomination of Senator Millard Tydings, and for Herbert R. O'Conor for Governor.

Palmisano and D'Alesandro have been political opponents for several years. Four years ago D'Alesandro backed the candidacy of John M. Pohlhaus against Palmisano's successful bid for renomination.

Palmisano has always been regarded as a supporter of Mayor Howard W. Jackson, now a candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. D'Alesandro supports Jackson's opponent.

D'Alesandro, a member of the city council since 1935, first held office in 1927 when he was elected a member of the State House of Delegates. He was the youngest legislator then, and was a leader in the successful fight for Sunday movies in Baltimore. He also favored legalizing bookmaking, not yet enacted.

He resigned in 1933 to go with the Internal Revenue Department, and resigned again in 1934 after the order against Federal officers taking part in political activity.

Born in Baltimore August 1, 1903, D'Alesandro is married and the father of six sons. He was educated in parochial schools and Calvert Business College. He started as an office boy with Poor & Alexander and from 1923 to 1930 was a broker solicitor. He is a member of St. Leo's Catholic Church, Holy Name Society, St. Gabriel's Society, St. Leo's Confraternity and Loggia Roma.

In announcing his candidacy he said:

"I expect to receive the nomination at the hands of the Democrats of this district. I am making the announcement regardless of the views of anyone else. I am for D'Alesandro for Congress."

Frank Morrison to Speak.

Frank Morrison, secretary, American Federation of Labor, will address the Retail Automotive Salesmens' Union, Local 1391, at 9:15 p. m. today at 921 Pennsylvania avenue southeast.

Relief Population Best Hospitalized In Larger Cities

If you are on relief and require medical attention, be thankful if you find yourself in a large city, instead of a small town or rural area.

So said George St. J. Perrott, administrative director of the National Health Conference, to be held here July 18 to 20, in an address yesterday before the National Conference of Social Work in Seattle, Wash.

The addres was read by Dr. F. A. Carmelia, of the Public Health Service, which administered the recent national health survey directed by Perrott. The talk was based upon findings of the study, which covered more than 750,000 families in all parts of the country.

"In the large cities," he said, "25 to 34 per cent of disabling illnesses among relief families were hospitalized, as compared with about 10 per cent of all such cases in the relief population in small cities in the Southern and Central regions."

A. Grace Lind, Of D. C., Given Education Post

Named State Head of National Association at Convention.

New York, June 29.—Delegates to the representative assembly of the National Education Association held their first business session today in the New York Hippodrome, nominated candidates for the posts of president, vice presidents, treasurer, executive committee and State directors and heard a plea for a change in the by-laws so as to permit New York City teachers to become members of the association's board of directors.

A. Grace Lind, of Washington, was one of the 18 members named State directors of the organization.

Circus Ordered to Pay $15,000 in Crash Suit

Bluefield, W. Va., June 28 (AP).—Jury verdicts totaling $15,000 were returned in Federal Court here today against the Wallace Brothers Circus as results of a highway collision near Bluefield in April, 1937.

Dewey Wright, of Abb's Valley, Va., was awarded judgment of $10,000 and Bud Motley, of Bishop, Va., was awarded $5,000.

District Court Faces Few Cases This Summer

Equity Court Out From July to October, Wheat Decides.

A light summer schedule for the United States District Court was announced yesterday by Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat, despite a plea from the District Bar Association that criminal and equity trials be conducted during the customary recess.

A criminal court will be in session during the first two weeks in July and in September, as formerly, but there will be no trials in the six week interim.

Equity cases, already 19 months in arrears, will be at a stand-still from July to October.

United States Attorney David A. Pine said he will press as many cases as possible during July and September in order to lessen the usual congestion in the fall.

Meanwhile, the grand jury will continue to return indictments and persons will be lodged in jail until the fall term of court begins.

From July 1 to 16 either Justice Jennings Bailey or Jesse Adkins will preside over criminal court. For the first fall session Justices Joseph W. Cox and Daniel W. O'Donoghue will alternate on the criminal bench during the first two weeks in September and Chief Justice Wheat and Justice Peyton Gordon during the second half of the month.

Uncontested motions and pleas will be heard during the six-weeks recess on the following schedule:

July 17 to August 1, Justice Oscar R. Luhring; August 2 to 17, Justice James M. Proctor, and August 17 to September 2, Justice F. Dickinson Letts.

During the regular fall term beginning October 4, Justices Adkins and Proctor will preside in the criminal courts.

Real Estate Permit Deadline Is Friday

More than 1,000 real estate operators here who thus far have failed to renew their licenses to operate must do so before Friday in order to continue business, Fred D. Allen, chairman of the Real Estate Commission, stated yesterday. There will be no extension of the deadline, Allen said.

An examination of new applicants will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. in the District Building board room. All persons entering the real estate business and business chance field must pass to secure a license to do business.

C. I. O. Leader Assails House Seniority Rule

Committee Custom Gives Control to Non-Liberals, Oliver Complains.

Charging that Democratic committeemen in Congress are blocking the Administration's program, E. L. Oliver, executive vice president of Labor's Non-Partisan League, yesterday demanded the "scrapping" of the time-honored custom of selecting chairmen by seniority.

This demand of Mr. Oliver's, whose organization is publicity agency for the Committee for Industrial Organization, was made in a speech to the National Council of Social Work in Seattle.

The proposal to eliminate the seniority rule particularly in the House and "curb" the authority of its rules committee, has a natural outgrowth of an incident at the close of the last session of Congress.

Twice Mr. Oliver accompanied John L. Lewis, chairman of the C. I. O., and several of his associates in visits to the office of Speaker William B. Bankhead in an effort, (1) to force the rules committee to give right of way to proposed amendments to the Walsh-Healey act covering Government contracts, and (2) to induce the Speaker to suspend House rules for consideration of the bill. The Rules Committee by a vote of 9 to 3 rejected the proposal and the Speaker declined to accede to the demand.

In demanding Congressional leaders responsive "to the will of the voters," Mr. Oliver pointed out that "most of the key committees, especially in the House of Representatives are controlled by members from 'safe' districts many years ago and who, for the most part, are hostile to social legislation" . . .

"The two-thirds of the Democratic members elected since 1932 are a majority of the entire House. The committees through which they function are headed, on the other hand, on a ratio of 3-to-1 by pre-depression members."

Liberals within the Democratic Party, Mr. Oliver thought, probably could alter the seniority system but added that without such action there was little hope of enacting a progressive program.

Farmwife Runs as a Red For Governor of N. H.

Concord, N. H., June 28 (AP).—Mrs. Elba K. Chase, 46-year-old Washington Village farmwife, today announced her candidacy for Governor on the Communist ticket. Mother of five children, Mrs. Chase said her campaign slogan would be "Jobs, security, democracy and peace." She previously has been a candidate for Governor and Congress.

CIO Units Protest New Orleans Police Use on Organizers

New Orleans, June 28 (AP).—The Committee for Industrial organization, conducting a strike against ten trucking firms here, complained today to Federal court and the National Labor Relations Board against police interference after officers escorted three organizers out of town.

Judge Rufus E. Foster, of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals ordered Mayor Robert S. Maestri and other officials to show cause Friday why they should not be restrained from interfering with the C. I. O.

It was announced that John Brophy, director of the Industrial Union Committee, would arrive Thursday to place the full support of the national organization behind unions here.

German Guns Held Trained On Gibraltar

London

The government only recently checked an unfavorable trend in by-elections, attributed to Chamberlain's break with former foreign secretary, Anthony Eden, over how to deal with Europe's dictators.

Chamberlain's foes seized upon Sandys' charges that Attorney General Sir Donald Somerville threatened to use the secrets law to gag him as an instance of what they termed repression of criticism which might ultimately break the present government.

Chamberlain announced in Commons that a select house committee would inquire into Sandys' allegation that he had been threatened for refusal to tell where he obtained information on which he based an allegation that Britain faced a shortage of antiaircraft guns. Sandys said the attorney general told him he would be liable to two years' imprisonment if he refused to name his source of information.

Seek to Double Aircraft.

Ten members of the house will be delegated to the inquiry.

Chamberlain's announcement accompanied two by War Minister Leslie-Hore Belisha—one that he planned to more than double the nation's antiaircraft forces; another that a military court would probe the leak of secret defense data.

Privately, Hore-Belisha denied that the 3-inch anitaircraft guns with which the territorial army (national guard) is largely equipped are "duds." He said, however, that a better and newer 3.7-inch gun was being delivered regularly and produced at a rate equal to World War schedules.

In Commons, the war minister outlined a plan to increase antiaircraft personnel to 100,000 men as compared with the present 43,000 and to reorganize commands so as to unify and strengthen defenses.

Government critics contended that the attorney general's action in calling Sandys' attention to the interrogation powers provided in the secrets act was a move to spike an accurate attack on the war ministry for an alleged shortcoming in British defenses.

London newspapers have charged that Hore-Belisha failed to provide London with the most modern types of antiaircraft armament.

With Britain's seagoing pride stung by attacks on 59 British merchant ships—with a loss of 36 lives—since the Spanish war started, Chamberlain pressed Gen Franco to tell him why British ships were targets.

Powers Agree on Withdrawal.

But Franco's reply, which Sir Robert M. Hodgson, Britain's semi-diplomatic voice at Burgos, was ordered to bring back post haste, may not touch on the larger issue involving use of German and Italian planes and airmen in aerial warfare.

That issue runs squarely against Chamberlain's stubborn efforts to "appease" Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Premier Mussolini.

Britain, France, Italy and Germany tonight agreed to split the cost of the proposed withdrawal of foreign volunteers from Spain after Soviet Russia declined to shoulder her full share of the expense.

The agreement removed one more obstacle to the evacuation plan, but a new stumbling block rose to a concurrent British plan for sending a neutral commission to Spain to investigate aerial bombardments of civilian populations.

Sweden unexpectedly followed the United States' lead in refusing to join the commission although previously she had indicated her acceptance.

Britain, with the aid of France, is seeking to persuade The Netherlands to join Britain and Norway on the commission to determine whether air raids have been directed against military objectives. The purpose of the committee is to focus world opinion upon raids on civilian populations.

Rebels Kill 10 in Alicante.

Madrid, June 28 (AP).—Ten persons were killed and 20 injured in an insurgent air raid on Alicante, important Mediterranean port of government Spain, at midday today, according to a report from the civil governor. Thirteen houses were wrecked.

Insurgent planes later bombed Perello, 15 miles south of Valencia, where the American consul's residence is situated, and several other coastal villages. They also bombed the port of Valencia, but hit no ships.

Burgos, Spain, June 28 (U.P.).—Sir Robert Hodgson, British representative to nationalist Spain, will leave for London early Wednesday, it was learned tonight.

Rome, June 28.—Great Britain warned Premier Mussolini this afternoon that unless aerial attacks on British shipping ceased there was no chance of the Anglo-Italian agreement going into force.

Lord Perth, British Ambassador, conveyed this to Count Galeazzo Ciano in an interview lasting half an hour. The Ambassador said British patience had come to an end, and that his government was seriously concerned at the constant sinking of its ships in Spanish harbors. He was instructed to make it quite clear that public opinion was rapidly reaching a state of exasperation which would make ratification of the Anglo-Italian agreement impossible for a long time unless the aerial campaign came to an end.

Count Ciano was informed that the British government does not hold Signor Mussolini directly responsible for the sinkings, but believes that he can and should apply pressure on Gen. Franco to put an end to the attacks.

In the past two or three days, the press, which is controlled by the government, has been more circumspect about boasting of the powers of the Italian aircraft.

Japanese Loot, Burn Town to CurbGuerrillas

By the Associated Press.

Ankwo, Hopeh Province, China, June 24 (by Courier to Peiping) (AP).—The Walled city of Ankwo, 140 miles south of Peiping, was still smoking today as this correspondent entered it on the heels of a retreating Japanese army which burned it in a campaign of reprisal against Chinese guerrilla warriors.

There were smouldering ruins of more than 80 large buildings. More than 900 shops had been looted and unusable contents smashed.

A column of 500 Japanese soldiers and 1,500 Chinese mercenaries marched from the Peiping-Hankow railway on June 16 and occupied Ankwo after a two-day battle with 300 Communist guerrilla troops who had been holding the city.

Held Town Seven Days.

Most of the city's 3,000 population had fled before arrival of the Japanese, who remained for seven days.

Today the writer saw 53 wagon-loads of loot which had been abandoned outside the city. The local Chinese Chamber of Commerce estimated the value of this loot at $500,000.

Chinese mercenary soldiers who were captured by Guerrillas now holding the town said the Japanese ordered them to loot all shops.

Many of the few merchants who remained in the city during the week's reign of terror were victims of extortion. One tea merchant told the writer he was held up four times. A total of $1,000 was taken from him—all he had—and his clerks were shot.

180 Japanese Killed.

The writer within a few minutes talked to merchants who said they had been robbed of $3,800. The manager of the large British-American Tobacco Company building said his total loss was $30,000.

Altogether 22 civilians were killed for failing to produce money when it was demanded.

During the week's occupation the Japanese suffered 180 casualties from sniping Guerrilla fighters, and their commanding officer was killed in action. The Guerrillas' casualties were 60 killed and wounded.

A Belgian Catholic cathedral in a west suburb was damaged by 13 Japanese artillery shells, and one Chinese sister and the gate-keeper were wounded.

Fifth Town Sacked.

At the London Mission Hospital in an east suburb a shell burst in the operating room. Doctors and attendants miraculously escaped unhurt.

Ankwo is the fifth walled town of Hopeh province burned by the Japanese in reprisal for Guerilla activity since the war began, according to reliable foreign investigators. They state 230 villages in the same area have been similarly attacked.

Japan nominally is in control of the region, but Guerrilla bands have been increasingly active.

Swedish Prince Makes Speech By Telephone

Wire Carries Address by Ailing Gustaf to Philadelphians.

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, June 28.—Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden, although ill on shipboard, dedicated today a Philadelphia Memorial to the Swesh colonists of three centuries ago.

Propped up in his stateroom aboard the liner Kungsholm, docked in the Philadelphia Navy Yard, he telephoned a message formally opening the Swedish-American Historical Museum. He laid the cornerstone in 1926 on his first American tour.

His message finished, the crown prince was rushed by Automobile to a New York Hospital for observation. He was stricken with a kidney ailment last Tuesday while crossing the Atlantic.

In slow, precise English, he expressed regret that he could not appear and a wish that all would have "a jolly good time."

"This museum is to stand as a tribute to the heroism of the great number of Swedes who left their homeland to erect a new country in America," he declared.

Soldiers Moving In Chaco; Bolivia Purchases Planes

Buenos Aires, June 28 (AP).—Dispatches from northern Argentina today reported extensive troop movements in the disputed Gran Chaco region occupied by Paraguay during her three-year truce with Bolivia.

Travelers said many civilians were moving across the frontier into Argentina in fear that hostilities would be resumed since neutral peace negotiations in Buenos Aires seemed to be near a breakdown.

Genoa, Italy, June 28 (AP).—The Piaggio Aviation Co. was learned today to be negotiating for sale of 15 airplanes each to the government of Bolivia and San Salvador.

Bund Leader Sued in Behalf of Jews

New York, June 28 (AP).—A $3,000,000 slander suit was filed today against Fritz Kuhn, leader of the German-American bund, by Emanuel J. Jack, who said he was suing on behalf of himself and "all members of the Jewish faith who may join with me as plaintiffs."

The action was based on statements attributed to Kuhn when he testified recently at a legislative investigation into Nazi activities in this country. Kuhn was quoted in Jack's complaint as having testified that "all Jews without exception are enemies of the United States."

Coalition Rebels At Nazi Concession

Prague, June 28 (U.P.).—Premier Milan Hodza's hopes of pushing a compromise version of his minority reform statute through parliament this summer received a major blow tonight when leaders of his own coalition parties accused him of showing "too much consideration" for Konrad Henlein, Sudeten German minority leader.

Informed observers said opposition from the ranks of the premier's own supporters would force a postponement of his efforts toward an agreement on his minority proposals and the eight-point autonomy demands of Henlein.

Government sources admitted certain details of the government proposals were not welcomed by all parties in parliament.

Independence Move Is Likely In Hawaii Soon

It Will Probably Start as Philippines Get Final Divorce From U. S.

By the United Press.

Honolulu, T. H., June 28.—Agitation for independence for Hawaii probably will start when complete independence is granted to the Philippine Islands.

No other part of the United States is watching progress of the Philippines bid for freedom with sharper interest than Hawaii from these four viewpoints:

1. Racially, there are approximately 40,000 Filipinos in Hawaii, a majority of them young single men. About one-half are employed on sugar plantations, the remainder on pineapple plantations and other enterprises.

2. Defensively, removal of the American naval base at Cavite, if carried out, and withdrawal of American Army forces from the Philippines will leave Hawaii the absolute spear-point of Pacific defenses.

Sugar Competition.

3. Economically, Philippine sugar potentially is a ruinius competitor of Hawaiian sugar, due to much lower production costs; should the American and world sugar marketing setup break down, Hawaiian sugar companies might face economic annihilation.

4. Historically and politically, Hawaii's thus far futile bid for Statehood may be expected if the United States, establishing a precedent in the Philippines question, continues to contract its boundaries to the limits of the continental area.

There is no question but that the overwhelming majority of Filipinos in Hawaii favor independence. Classed as citizens of the commonwealth, a majority of them live with the expectation of returning to the Philippnies.

Strong Tie to Home.

Only a few weeks ago Gov. Joseph Poindexter rejected a plan to organize a division of "Philippnie National Volunteers," envisaged as a part of the "citizens' army of the Philippines." In Hawaii Territorial and Federal laws prohibited such an organization.

An idea of the strong tie between Filipinos in Hawaii and their homeland is given by figures compiled by the Hawaii Sugar Planters Association, showing the number of Filipinos arriving in the Territory and departing each year.

In 1932, 963 Filipinos arrived as sugar planters and sought to combat widespread strikes and find a better type of laborer for field work. In the same year 7,245 Filipinos returned to the Philippines and the Pacific Coast. A large number of those sent back were indigents.

Only a Few Allowed.

Only a small number of Filipinos are allowed to enter the Territory each year. Of those returning to the Philippines, many fail to obtain the necessary return permits, and thus are barred by immigration laws from returning to Hawaii.

Late in 1937 the Hawaiian Sugar Planters Association advised Francisco Varona, a personal representative of President Manuel Quezon, that it would extend to Filipino sugar and pineapple plantation workers more lenient contracts providing return passage. A considerable increase in the number of Filipinos returning to their homeland is expected as a result of these provisions. Most Filipinos feel that greater opportunity exists for them in a free Philippine home than elsewhere.

From a defense standpoint Philippine independence will sharpen the need for powerful naval and military forces in Hawaii, which more than ever will become the first line of American defense in the Pacific.

No Disaster Expected.

Philippine independence is not expected to have any economic repercussions unfavorable to Hawaii. It is extremely unlikely that the present United States sugar marketing and quota system will be upset, or that Philippine quotas will be materially increased.

Hawaii's political interest in a free Philippines involves the repeated failure of Congress to consider Hawaiian Statehood. There is strong likelihood that the next session of the Territorial Legislature, early in 1939, will authorize an island plebiscite on the issue of Statehood, with expectation of an overwhelming vote in favor of the proposal.

Hawaii will study American treatment of the Philippines for hints as to the ultimate fate of her own case.

Loyalists Halt Insurgents in Coastal Drive

Navarrese Army Shifts Its Attack Inland to Pierce Highways.

By the United Press.

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, June 28. — Stubborn resistance of 12,000 loyalists entrenched in a nine-mile-deep network of fortifications straddling the Teruel-Sagunto highway today forced insurgent colums to halt their coastal drive on Valencia.

An insurgent Navarrese army under Gen. Garcia Valino, within 30 miles of Valencia on the north and barely 17 miles from Sagunto, suddenly shifted its attack and drove inland on Artana in an effort to pierce the government's highway fortifications from the rear.

Gen. Miguel Aranda's insurgents pulled up outside the town of Burriana, 18 miles north of Sagunto and 32 miles from Valencia. Another army, under command of Gen. Jose Varela, is held up outside the loyalist fortified town of Sarrion and has been unable to batter down the nose of a dangerous loyalist salient at Mora de Rubielos.

[On the Catalan front, the government launched a strong attack high in the Pyrenees mountains sector and reported capture of the Ventolac peaks and La Mariola, north of Campine and northwest of the tiny republic of Andorra, the Associated Press reported—Editors note.]

Casablanca, French Morocco, June 28 (AP).—Eighteen crew members of the Danish freighter Jan, missing since May 26, reached here today with the disclosure the vessel had been seized by Spanish insurgents on the high seas and confiscated with her coal cargo.

The ship's captain said the Jan was bound from Cardiff, Wales, to Oran, Algeria, when halted in the Gibraltar Straits and forced to put in to Ceuta, insurgent-held Moroccan port, where the crewmen were held prisoners until June 24.

D. C. Lawyer Made Governor of Ahepa

Special Dispatch to The Post.

The district comprises Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia, North Carolina, and part of West Virginia. Bluefield, W. Va., was chosen the next district convention city.

Others elected were George Panos, Norfolk, lieutenant governor; Steve Tsagaris, Durham, treasurer; J. P. Mendeliaris, Richmond, secretary, and Guss Ketselis, Danville, marshal.

Davis Reports to Hull On His Talk With Stalin

Joseph E. Davies, former Ambassador to Russia, gave Secretary Hull yesterday details of a two-hour talk he had with Soviet Leader Joseph Stalin just before leaving Moscow.

The discussion with Stalin was a general review of the international situation.

Divorce Total Cut a Half in 2 Years in Russia

By Joseph Barnes.

Moscow, June 28.—Divorce has been cut almost in half in Moscow in the last two years, according to figures published here today in connection with the second anniversary of legislation declaring abortions illegal. From 16,182 divorces in 1936, they decreased last year to 8,961.

The abolition of the former Soviet liberal policy concerning abortions, according to the newspaper Pravda, "has played an enormous part in strengthening the Soviet family." Abortion first was legalized in the Soviet Union in 1920. Two years ago, after one month of public discussion, in which government leaders threw their weight against the practice on the grounds of national health, abortion was made illegal except upon a doctor's advice.

U. S. Attorney Goes Abroad in Quest of Spies

Hardy to Sale Today to Study 'Ramifications' in France, Britain.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 28.—The special Federal grand jury which indicted 18 persons for espionage on June 20 reconvened today after a recess which started immediately after the indictments.

Lamar Hardy, United States Attorney, and Lester C. Dunnigan, an assistant, were the only ones to go before the grand jury today. After a 90-minute session an adjournment was again taken until July 6. Later Hardy announced he would sail on the Normandie tomorrow morning to investigate "certain ramifications of the case abroad." He said that he would go first to France and then to England, where, he said, he has definite leads on the case. He said that the grand jury proceedings will continue in his absence, which will not be for more than a few weeks.

Indications were that he would confer with British secret service officials and attaches of the American Embassy in London, who helped expose the German spy ring operating here.

Another development in the case today was the signing by Judge Murray Hulbert in United States District Court of a stipulation in which Leon G. Turrou, agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, who resigned after the indictments, and The New York Post consented to the continuation of a temporary injunction restraining it from publishing information gathered by Turrou while he was in charge of F. B. I. activity on the case.

It appeared possible today that George C. Dix, attorney for Johanna Hofmann, one of four defendants in custody, would be called before the grand jury to substantiate his charge, filed in the court Monday, that Turrou might have had "a monetary interest" in the disappearance on May 10 of Dr. Ignatz T. Griebl, a key defendant in the case, who fled to Germany.

Veterans of '63 Return to Hills Of Gettysburg

Gettysburg

Another President dedicated the battlefield itself almost 75 years ago. A tall, gaunt, sorrowful man in a stovepipe hat and a long, black coat, he dedicated the field to the men who died there. His speech of dedication was so brief it disappointed the crowd. But so filled was it with the things men like to believe and cherish that it belied his prediction that "The world will little note nor long remember what we say here."

Earle, Woodring to Speak.

Formal ceremonies marking the seventy-fifth anniversary of the battle will open Friday with a band concert at 1 p. m. in the stadium of Gettysburg College. At 2 p. m. a meeting of veterans and visitors will be opened with an invocation by the chaplain of the Grand Army of the Republic. Addresses of welcome will be made by Gov. George H. Earle of Pennsylvania and Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring. Commanders of the G. A. R. and the United Confederate Veterans also will speak.

Saturday will be Veterans Day and Governors Day, with a parade and review of veterans of all wars in the college stadium at 1:30 p. m. A general assembly in the stadium will follow at 8 p. m.

Sunday's program wil be opened at 7:30 a. m. with a field mass in the stadium followed at 10 a. m. by a memorial service in the stadium. From 5:30 p. m. to 6:30 p. m. will be a band concert, a prelude to services dedicating the memorial. President Roosevelt, introduced by Gov. Earle, will speak at 3 p. m. At 9 p. m. an aerial demonstration will conclude the service.

Monday, anniversary of the day the Confederacy was stunned by the double tragedy of Pemberton's surrender of Vicksburg and Lee's retreat from Gettysburg, the United States Army will demonstrate to the old soldiers how the battle would be fought with modern equipment. Tanks and machine guns, rapid-firing artillery and rifles incredibly efficient to a veteran of the Civil War, will be used in maneuvers lasting all day and beginning at 9 a. m. That night fireworks will blaze over the peaceful field in feeble simulation of that other day.

The battle of Gettysburg was one of the strangest ever fought anywhere in modern times. It was accidental, the conflict of two huge armies marching without knowledge of the other's whereabouts, blindly feeling their way northward, certain to clash somewhere. That they met and fought here was the result of the need of shoes for those lean hungry men in gray.

At Cashtown June 30, 1863, Maj. Gen. Harry Heth, commanding a division in A. P. Hill's new Third Corps, heard there was a supply of shoes at Gettysburg, a few miles south. He ordered Brig. Gen. J. Johnston Pettigrew to take his North Carolina brigade down here and fetch them back. Pettigrew did not get those shoes.

On the outskirts of Gettysburg his advance ran head-on into cautiously advancing units of Brig. Gen. John Buford's Federal cavalry. Infantry muskets banged in the sultry air and the spiteful bark of carbines answered them. The prologue to the Battle of Gettysburg had opened.

Those were two strangely encumbered armies that straggled out for miles behind the sudden blaze of battle on the outskirts of this quiet little town. The Army of Northern Virginia, exultant after Chancellorsville, was nevertheless sadly disorganized. The death of Jackson had forced Lee to divide his force into three corps, one led by its old commander, that stolid Dutchman, James Longstreet, so reluctant ever to fight, so devastating when he made up his mind to strike. The others were commanded by officers who had never before led such large bodies of troops, Richard S. Ewell, limping on the wooden leg he brought out of Second Manassas; Ambrose P. Hill, fiery, impetuous, unpredictable. There was little love lost among the three.

The Army of the Potomac, fought to exhaustion at Fredericksburg, dispirited after Chancellorsville, suffering from many sudden changes in its high command, had still another cross to bear. On its way north, ignorant of Lee's position, harried by the nervous civilians at Washington, it again was given a new commander. George Gordon Meade replaced Joseph Hooker on the march.

To add to Lee's difficulties, J. E. B. Stuart, his spectacular cavalry chieftain, had gone off on another of his raids round the enemy. This time he left Lee without the cavalry screen he so needed, without the far-reaching antenae by which the army crawling along the dusty eacth felt its way. Lee knew of Meade's accession to the Union command and his approximate position only through information brought by one mysterious Harrison, a spy employed by Longstreet.

Lee had moved into Pennsylvania for three major reasons. He hoped to end the war with one victory on Northern soil by withdrawing from support of the war the Northern Peace Party, the pacifists of that day. He believed a victory in the enemy's country would bring recognition of the Confederacy by France and England. He could not stand and fight defensively south of the Rappahannock river because northern Virginia was eaten bare of food for his army and forage for its horses.

So when Pettigrew and Buford met near this town, a major accident was afoot. Here the fight must be, between two armies unsure of themselves, formidable chiefly in the indomitable spirit of the men who marched and fought in their ranks.

For so many years a shrine in history, Gettysburg this week will be made so in fact and forever.

The advance guard of Union and Confederate soldiers sat beside tents yesterday at Gettysburg as preparations were completed for the anniversary celebration of the Battle of Gettysburg. The veterans will live in the tent city during the week of the celebration beginning today.

Organization News

Col. Julius I. Peyser, commander of Costello Post, American Legion, has been appointed as one of the delegates to the 1938 FIDAC congress to be held in Bucharest, Rumania, in August, according to word received here yesterday from legion headquarters in Indianapolis.

Col. Peyser has long been identified with FIDAC work in the United States. The FIDAC—which stands for 'Federation Interallies des Anciens Combattants'—is an international organization composed of veteran associations of the countries allied during the World War, and the American Legion is its member society in this country.

Osiris Lodge.

Osiris Lodge, No. 26, and its Fellowship Club will hold its annual moonlight excursion down the Potomac tomorrow evening, the proceeds of which cruise will go into th organization relief fund. Worshipful Master Filton Conn has appointed F. M. Megby as chairman of arrangement.

K. of C.

District Deputy Francis A. McCann was elected faithful navigator of Washington General Assembly last Monday evening at the annual meeting of the assembly. He succeeds Col. Thomas F. Carlin, recently elected State Deputy of the Knight of Columbus for this jurisdiction.

Elected with Mr. McCann are the following: Joseph M. McKenna, faithful captain; Andrew L. Oehmann, faithful pilot; Francis J. Rafferty, faithful admiral; J. Fred Brady, faithful comptroller; Thomas K. Gallaher, faithful purser; Augustine W. Neale and John W. Grambo, faithful sentinels. Following the election of new officers were installed by Past Master of the Maryland-District of Columbia Province Arthur B. J. Williamson.

TERRELL JACOBS
LION KING
THANKS FOR THE CAMEL. NOW, MISS CONCELLO, HOW ARE CHANCES FOR A STORY ON YOUR BIGGEST THRILL AS A STUNT AERIALIST?
OH, ASK TERRELL ABOUT HIS LIONS!
OH, NO, LADIES FIRST. TONY, TELL HIM ABOUT YOUR FIRST TRIPLE SOMERSAULT IN THE AIR
WELL, YOU SEE, NO WOMAN TO MY KNOWLEDGE, HAD EVER EXECUTED A TRIPLE, MID-AIR SOMERSAULT. I'LL NEVER FORGET THE FIRST TIME I TRIED IT UNDER THE BIG TOP..."
"...BECAUSE THIS STUNT REQUIRES GREATLY INCREASED SPEED, I HAD TO DEPEND ALMOST ENTIRELY ON AUTOMATIC TIMING..."
"...BUT AS I WHIRLED OFF INTO SPACE... ONCE... TWICE... FOR A SPLIT-SECOND I PRACTICALLY LOST CONSCIOUSNESS..."
"...THREE TIMES... AND... I MADE IT! MY TIMING WAS PERFECT, AND ANOTHER 'FIRST PERFORMANCE' LEFT ME THRILLED AND SAFE!"
PHEW! I'LL STICK TO MY REPORTING
WELL, THAT'S NOTHING TO TERRELL'S BIG MOMENTS. TELL HIM ABOUT THE TIME SPARKY, OVER THERE, ALMOST FINISHED YOU
O.K.
"... I HAD ALMOST COMPLETED MY ACT WITH 25 LIONS, WHEN SPARKY AND ANOTHER MALE WENT FOR EACH OTHER..."
"TRYING TO BREAK IT UP, I WAS KNOCKED DOWN AND SPARKY TURNED ON ME. HE LOOKED AS BIG AS AN ELEPHANT FROM WHERE I WAS SPRAWLED. THINGS LOOKED PRETTY BAD, BUT..."
"...BY FAST THINKING AND MOVING, I GOT THE UPPER HAND. BEFORE I LEFT THE CAGE, EVERY LION WAS BACK IN PLACE."
WELL, IT'S HARD TO SAY WHICH OF YOU HAS THE TOUGHEST JOB. BUT IT'S EASY TO SEE YOU BOTH NEED HEALTHY NERVES!
WELL, WE ARGUE ABOUT WHOSE JOB IS THE HARDEST, BUT WE SURE AGREE THAT WE CAN'T RISK SHAKY NERVES
AND YOU CAN BET THAT'S A BIG REASON WHY WE BOTH SMOKE CAMELS. THEY NEVER BOTHER OUR NERVES!
CAMELS SURE SET ME RIGHT — FROM EVERY ANGLE. AFTER A TURN IN THE BIG CAGE, I NEED A LIFT IN ENERGY AND I GET IT FROM A CAMEL. I FIND CAMELS AID MY DIGESTION TOO. I'VE SMOKED CAMELS FOR 16 YEARS. HAVE ONE, TONY?
YOU BET, TERRELL. THERE'S A BIG DIFFERENCE BETWEEN CAMELS AND OTHER KINDS — IN MILDNESS... IN TASTE... IN THE FEELING OF CONTENTMENT THEY GIVE — IN SO MANY WAYS!
"WE KNOW TOBACCO BECAUSE WE GROW IT — WE SMOKE CAMELS BECAUSE WE KNOW TOBACCO" — TOBACCO PLANTERS SAY
You have to know tobacco to raise the fine grades Joe Brewer grows. He says: "Again last year my best lots went to Camel. I smoke Camels too. Most planters do. They know the finer tobaccos that go into Camels."
Calvin Wiggins specializes in raising quality tobaccos. "The best of my last crop," he says, "was taken by Camel. They paid top prices. Most growers hereabouts smoke Camels — we know they're made of costlier tobaccos."
"For a better cigarette, I always say smoke finer tobaccos," says Lee Mason, who grows the finer grades he speaks of. "I've seen the choicer tobaccos go to Camel many times. That's why I smoke Camels."

Civil Service Shift Puzzling; Chief Asks Aid of those who have been exempt is the next important step," he said, in urging classification for field workers.

Personnel Council.

One point in the orders drew his particular commendation, the section which will establish a council of personnel administration. This council will consist of the directors of personnel of the departments and and agencies, a representative of the Bureau of the Budget and of the Civil Service Commission and such additional members as the President may designate. The council will be the watchdog of the merit system. Bowen commented on the effective functioning of the personnel departments in Agriculture and Labor and belived the Executive orders would expand such a service in all branches of the vast Government field.

Agencies Excluded.

But, individually in the meeting, the question was being informally asked: "Is my agency excluded?" The Post has searched the statutes at large, the Executive orders, the United States Government Manual, the budget and the digest of appropriations and in the absence of any official statement finds the following units as being excluded from the orders: (the references show where the provisions may be found:)

Agricultural Adjustment Administration act, May 12, 1933 (48 Stat. 37) (declared unconstitutional January 6, 1936). However, there are still employed approximately 400 workers being paid out of the AAA act . . . Federal Housing Administration act of June 27, 1934 (48 Stat. 1246) . . . Securities and Exchange Commission, created June 6, 1934 (48 Stat. 885). Interesting to note that since the act did not make it compulsory to appoint employes with regard to the civil service there are some in SEC who were appointed without regard to the civil service rules and regulations . . . Tennessee Valley Authority, May 18, 1933 (48 Stat. 58) . . . Civilian Conservation Corps (50 Stat.) CCC made noncivil service last Congress . . . Home Owners Loan Corporation June 13, 1933 (48 Stat. 128) . . . Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation June 16, 1933 (48 Stat. 167) . . . U. S. Employment Service, June 6, 1933 (48 Stat. 113) Federal Reserve Board, June 16, 1933 (48 Stat. 167) . . . Federal Home Loan Bank Board, July 22, 1932 (47 Stat. 737) . . . Federal Radio Commission, now known as the Federal Communications Commission (48 Stat. 1064) . . . U. S. Maritime Commission (49 Stat. 1985). See remarks for the SEC (48 Stat.) . . . National Industrial Labor Board (49 Stat. 451). . . . the National Archives soon will come under civil service through Congressional act.

The Civil Service Commission, in preparing for its vast job of blanketing the more than 100,000 additional employes and also making effective the new legislation bringing first, second and third class postmasters under civil service, yesterday asked all agencies operating under the Executive branch of Government for statements of the laws covering personnel under which the agencies function.

Also, queries have gone out in various agencies regarding citizenship. This point has been made the first prerequisite to the taking of an examination. The Postoffice Department has notified all postmasters to suspend aliens from duty if they have been found to have neglected taking out first naturalization papers.

Mate Held in 'Cement Coffin' Slaying

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Mrs. J. Paul Bathelt, jr., whose husband (inset) is held without bail in a "cement coffin" murder at South Hadley, Mass., is shown in her Park avenue apartment in New York confined to bed with a broken leg. The body of the victim, believed to be a missing race horse owner, was found floating in the Connecticut River. Authorities said the body apparently had been entombed in cement before it was thrown into the river. A business associate of Bathelt was being questioned in the case.

Realistic Guidance For Youth Asked

A "realistic and vocational guidance program" as a means of aiding the youth of the Nation was urged last night by Dr Howard M. Bell, of the American Youth Commission, in an address under auspices of the Central Y. M. C. A., in the building at 1736 G street northwest.

Dr. Bell told of findings in the recent youth survey in Maryland which he supervised.

Gasoline in Toy Stove Explodes, Kills Girl, 5

Leper Committee Picks 5 in District

Five Washingtonians have been appointed to the national pig bank committee of the American Mission to Lepers, officials of the mission announced yesterday in New York.

They will aid in the year-long celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the idea of pig banks, which have brought in $1,000,000 for lepers.

Probe in Woman's Death At Lyons Creek Halted

The investigation of the death of Mrs. Esther Lewis, 30-year-old Washington woman found dead in Lyons Creek, near Prince Frederick, Md., was at a standstill yesterday as officials awaited results of a chemical analysis of her vital organs.

Baltimore chemists who are conducting the examination are expected to report either today or tomorrow.

900 Firms Bought Democrats' Book, Paying $849,812

More than 900 corporations, many of them doing business directly with the Federal Government, turned over a total of $849,812.64 to coffers of the Democratic National Committee through its sale of the Democratic convention book of 1936 in the form autographed by President Roosevelt.

The complete list of purchasers has been placed in the Congressional record by Senator Rush D. Holt, Democrat, of West Virginia. Of the total amount, $481,487.64 was received from January 1 to December 31, 1936, and $368,325 from January 1 to August 31, 1937.

"I have made a detailed study of the sale of these campaign books," said the Holt statement. "It is quite shocking to see money being accepted from some firms which the Administration claims to be so bitterly antilabor that they have been charged with violating the Wagner act. The list contains some of the best-known economic royalists, a class which has been so often spoken of as hostile to reform. These royalists become angels with their contributions."

'Sit-In' in 8th Day In Marriage Demand

Irvington, N. Y., June 28 (U.P.).—Mrs. Hedi Heusser, beautiful red-haired Swiss divorcee on a "sit-down strike" for a husband, gamely resisted the temptation to go home tonight after her seventh day of self-imposed confinement in Rolly K. Blanchard's mansion.

Blanchard, an engineer, fled to a secret hideaway last week after Mrs. Heusser announced she would stay in his home until he married her.

Versatility.

The world of contemporary letters probably had no two writers more dissimilar than Edward Verrall Lucas, the urbane English essayist, and James Weldon Johnson, the crusading Negro writer, both of whom died on Sunday. Perhaps only an age of violent tradition could have contained them both. And yet they had in common at least this much: Both were gifted, both were poets of a respectable kind, and both were extraordinarily versatile.

Johnson, although author of five books and editor of several others, was only incidentally a literary man. He began his career as the principal of a Negro high school in Jacksonville, Fla. Then for a time he practiced law in that city, where none of his race had been allowed to practice it before. About the beginning of the century he came to New York, where he wrote popular song lyrics and light opera librettos in collaboration with his brother, J. Rosamond Johnson, the musician.

Meanwhile he dabbled shrewdly in politics. In 1906 he entered the consular service, serving in Venezuela and later in Nicaragua at the time of the revolution which overthrew Zelaya. But it was in 1916, when he became secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, that he came into his true vocation. And if it might be said that there was probably more white blood than black in him, it can also be said that in his tireless crusades against the national disgrace of lynching, and in his ardent and effectual labors for the cultural awakening of the Negro, he did great service for all Americans.

The versatility of E. V. Lucas was almost entirely within the fields of journalism and letters. Possibly it was because he never betrayed any passionate conviction about anything—except cricket—that he could write virtually any kind of book. Poetry, fiction, biography, criticism, travel and guide books, weekly causeries for Punch—one was as much his meat as another.

He was the world's master of the tour de force. If he excelled as an essayist it was certainly because the essay offers little or no limitation of subject. It is characteristic that one of the longer and better known essays of E. V. Lucas is on the seemingly unpromising subject of custard!

New Banking Regulations.

There is no reason to suppose that the new uniform banking regulations will suddenly unlock billions of dammed-up credits. If there were a possibility of such credit expansion, it would imply abandonment of all those safeguards necessary to preserve a safe and solvent banking system.

The new examination and investment rules do, however, enable banks to pursue more liberal lending and investment policies, if they choose, without risking the criticism of official examiners. Indirectly they will be encouraged to make a larger number of slow commercial loans and be permitted to invest in the bonds of small local concerns. In this way they can assist the financing of smaller enterprises unable to distribute their capital issues through public offerings.

As previously stated in these columns, the wisdom of relaxing those restrictions upon commercial banks which are designed to assure maximum liquidity along with safety of loans is debatable. But there is no question about the desirability of eliminating conflicts between the official examining agencies and the Federal Reserve authorities. Rules and regulations should not only be uniform but should also take cognizance of changes in the banking laws. After that has been done, banking managements will still be free to follow their own judgment in making loans and investments within the limits set by the laws and supporting regulations.

To some banks, the new regulations will thus make little difference; in other cases, they will remove barriers to certain types of credit operations that have been held up by hampering restrictions. Yet liberalization of rules does not mean that bank examiners will be relieved of any of their present responsibilities. On the contrary, they will have an even more responsible task of supervision when called upon to apply more flexible tests of soundness to banking assets.

The basic principles of sound banking management may be modified to some extent for the individual bank by changes in the laws and regulations, but they cannot be ignored without endangering the safety of the entire commercial banking system. For instance, liquidity as well as ultimate soundness of assets is important for banks with heavy demand liabilities to meet. New rules cannot alter that simple fact.

"Unfortunate."

Nearly three years ago, when Aubrey Williams first began to catch the national spotlight, an intimate description of him was written for Collier's by George Creel. "Million-a-Minute Aubrey" was the sobriquet chosen by Mr. Creel for his subject. And this thumbnail biography concluded that of all the New Dealers none can "scatter money so swiftly and gracefully."

Mr. Williams' speed in scattering other people's money remains unimpaired. But current developments indicate that his gracefulness in this admittedly liberal activity is not what it was. The Senate Campaign Investigating Committee defines the impromptu remarks made by the Deputy WPA Administrator to the Workers' Alliance on Monday as "unfortunate." There are many to whom the adjective will seem understatement.

In writing to Senator Sheppard, the chairman of the newly-established investigating committee, Mr. Williams intimated that the stenographic transcript of his remarks, issued by the Workers' Alliance, was inaccurate. But whether or not he was correctly reported is now immaterial. For in this letter to Senator Sheppard he has committed himself over his signature. "I pointed out to them" (the organized WPA workers), said Mr. Williams, "that in a democracy it was important for them to keep in office those who had their point of view."

There is the issue in a nutshell. There is as good—or as evil—a summarization of the mingling of politics and relief as has been made to date. And it comes not in the form of an indictment from the Republican National Committee but as a statement of principle by the acting head of the WPA.

What Mr. Williams says in his letter to Senator Sheppard is the very negation of democracy. In a signed personal statement this high Administration official announces that it is "important" for those who receive subsidies through the good offices of a political party to maintain that party in perpetual control. This is not democracy but oligarchy. It is essentially corrupt government, dictated by the few to whom command of the Treasury has been provisionally granted as a public trust.

Mr. Williams' attitude toward the American form of government is the more startling because he evidently does not realize how essentially destructive his argument is. He actually denies that there is anything political in telling those who receive subsidies from the State that it is "important" for them to keep in office the party responsible for such subsidies. One may conclude that Mr. Williams himself believes this is without political implications. But nobody can expect that the millions of voters now on the relief rolls will be equally naive.

The political degeneracy which the present relief system is bringing to this country is more subtle than that which has overtaken Germany, Italy and Russia. In those countries a single political party, having achieved power, maintains it by ruthless suppression of opposition. The "liberal" party of President Roosevelt continues to permit criticism. But it is undermining democracy no less effectively when its officials tell the millions now supported by the public purse that their welfare depends on voting for those in power.

A democracy which accepts that insidious form of corruption is already feeling the whip of party dictatorship. And a party which indorses the wholesale purchase of votes with public funds is one which in time will bring ruin to the strongest nation. The observations made by Mr. Williams, and confirmed over his signature, are indeed "unfortunate." They are so unfortunate that nothing short of the summary dismissal of this official from his present post could undo the injury that has been done.

Fires Under Chamberlain.

Since the Spanish civil war began, 59 British ships have been attacked, with 36 seamen killed and 50 wounded. There have been 17 such attacks during the past month.

No wonder, then, that the fires of criticism lit by the opposition under the British government grow hotter and hotter, with Premier Chamberlain and his colleagues becoming more and more uncomfortable. For while they may prefer to continue the present do-nothing policy from fear that any recourse to strong measures would lead to a dangerous embroilment with the Spanish Nationalists and the powers backing them, continued inaction may have unpleasant and even dangerous domestic repercussions in Great Britain.

Nor is the position of the Chamberlain government made much easier by the fact that Franco and his allies have a partial precedent for their attacks on British vessels in the action taken by Great Britain herself during the World War. Soon after that conflict broke out, the British extended the definition of what constitutes contraband to include almost everything needed by the enemy. By the same token all shipments into Republican Spain, whether contraband or not in the meaning of the nonintervention agreement, are today viewed as fair game by the Nationalists.

There are, however, great differences between the precedent set by Great Britain in World War days and the way that precedent is being applied by Franco. In the first place, Great Britain, never having recognized Franco's belligerency, has never admitted the existence of an insurgent blockade of Spanish government ports. And so far as sea power alone is concerned there is no effective blockade. That is precisely why the insurgents have been bombing neutral ships in Spanish government ports. They hope, thereby, to intimidate foreign shippers into staying away from Republican Spain.

More important is the fact that British interference with neutral shipping during World War days did not involve the sinking of neutral vessels or the slaughter of neutral seamen. In this important particular the attacks by Nationalist bombing planes on British merchant ships bear a more striking resemblance to German submarine attacks on American ships, a development which led directly to American involvement in the war on the side of the Allies.

Appeals to precedent, however, are largely meaningless in these days of contemptuous disregard of all laws and rules. Force has become the principal and often the sole arbiter in international relations. That being so, it is argued with increasing vehemence in Great Britain that the Chamberlain government's policy of inaction gives definite encouragement to those responsible for current outrages.

It is certainly more than a coincidence that on the morrow of every recent parliamentary debate on the subject, with Chamberlain steadily insisting that the British government is helpless to stop Franco's bombers, more British vessels have been bombed. For his own part Chamberlain may be prepared to tolerate this state of affairs in the belief that it remains to Britain's interests to add no fuel to Spanish flames. But it is increasingly apparent that large and powerful sections of domestic public opinion do not view the situation with the same measure of equanimity and hopefulness.

Managerial Judgment.

The ICC decision permitting the Pullman Company to increase its charges 5 per cent coincides with the reopening of hearings on the petition of the Eastern carriers for an advance in coach fares.

One of the major arguments for the proposed fare increases is that the one cent spread between Pullman and coach mileage rates diverts passengers from Pullmans to coaches, with resultant loss of revenue. The new additions to Pullman Company surcharges will, of course, increase this discrepancy and strengthen the demand for the fare increases. Partly for that reason, but principally because the ICC has consented to reconsider the petition for fare increases after rejecting the proposal only last April, the chances for favorable action seem excellent.

In this particular instance, however, the financial distress of the petitioning roads is not—or at least should not be—regarded as the main issue. Now, as last April, the fundamental question is whether the roads have a right to test the efficacy of fare increases as a means of raising revenue when their need is unquestioned.

Opinions as to the actual effect of rate reductions upon net revenues, and the probable effect of the desired rate increase are conflicting and necessarily inconclusive. In rejecting the roads' appeal for increases last spring a bare majority of the ICC concluded rather lamely, and in deplorable English, that an "increase to 2.5 cents in coaches would probably produce revenue results to these applicants, which, especially over an extended period, would be less favorable than has been and is likely to be the case under the present fare basis."

On the other hand, experts testifying for the roads maintain that the volume of traffic which brought in increased revenues after the fare reductions ordered in 1936 was due chiefly to improved general business. They argue that the roads would have earned even more from passenger business if rates had been higher.

Of course there is no way of knowing what the financial results of the proposed increases would be. Opinions on that point are entirely conjectural. But there is a strong case for permitting the roads to test the assumption that increased coach fares would yield higher net revenues. Commissioner Eastman, although believing an increase in coach fares to be unwise, dissented strongly from the majority opinion handed down last April. "While my own judgment differs sharply from that of the railroad managements," he said, "I feel that they are entitled to take the risk, if that is what they want to do."

Commissioner McManamy was much more emphatic in his condemnation of the majority decision, asserting that it "so completely disregards the weight of the evidence that in my opinion it is arbitrary, and therefore void." Commissioner Mahaffie likewise considered the refusal of the majority to permit fare increases to be an unwarranted interference with managerial judgment.

The economic arguments in favor of the proposed increases are neither more nor less cogent now than they were last April. However, in the meantime, the prolongation and intensification of the financial pressure upon the carriers has driven home the fact that our regulatory policies have not been guided by official supermen.

The Roman Show.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A portion of this world of force today stands aghast at $10,000,000 being spent for scenery and setting for a Roman show for Hitler. The arrogant Il Duce would pay any price to dazzle and influence the Nazi dictator's eyes and so guard the peace which for the moment he so much desires. It was a big show—for great effect—between two great world forces—the supremacy of absolute force.

Those who see and know what is going on in world affairs, know that this show must be reckoned in billions, not millions. It means that these war-threatening nations—nations under the power of dictators of physical force—are running on a purely military basis.

Such Roman force shows cost billions outside of Italy. They inspire the war-fearing nations to put billions into armies and navies, armaments and munitions on a scale never before known. No nation places any faith in treaties made by dictators. Thus the crazy race is on for preparedness, a race which must continue until international bankruptcy wins if it does not also lead to a social revolution around the world. Force, bankruptcy, taxation on and on, to keep tyrants and even greater dictators in power.

Already it has been suggested that America put on a power and force show for Hitler, costing not less than $100,000,000. Some say it would be the cheapest course for us to take. He must be impressed—so must Mussolini. Who believes any real friendship exists between Hitler and Mussolini? This Roman show has but one meaning. The stage is being set for one—possibly in the near future—with absolute supremacy of force. And how strange it is that every dictator who has ascended to great force and power has climbed on the ladder of free press and free speech.

Millions are made today to worship the cold principle of physical force. The multitudes see force incarnated in men like Hitler and Mussolini and shout themselves hoarse, while they leave behind them economic ruin, the result of taxation to keep ambitious tyrants in power.

When Hitler marched into Austria Mussolini ordered the mobilization of the entire Italian army—he was angry, for he had been taken by surprise. These shows that lead to greater and greater world force also cause victory for international bankruptcy. R. L. GODWIN.

Your Brother's Keeper.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If one were to listen to some of the philosophies expounded by certain of our public leaders, he or she would gather by their statements that the future holds in store only necessary evils, about which nothing can be done. These leaders would have us believe that the rules of government under which we live are dormant things and that stagnation is one of the accepted modes of American life.

Their premises (unscholarly as they are) would be amusing if it weren't for the fact that they are so closely associated with human misery. Is it natural for men, women and children to be hungry, especially when an abundance of the good things of life are ever present? Is it reasonable to surmise that these same good people are actually going without food and shelter in a country overflowing with natural resources and God-given necessities?

Some people in their narrow conception of life would try to make us believe that the coal in the veins, oil in the wells, trees in the forests, the foodstuffs which grow and all other means which the Infinite put here for the benefit of the human race are articles of wealth belonging to one particular person or group of persons.

How utterly selfish and ridiculous such a philosophy is. It is merely a camouflage for those who like to ease their consciences so that they may continue to put a corner on all such wealth, which in reality belongs to no one individual or group, but to everyone alike. The time is not far distant, for the tendency is moving in that direction faster and faster each day, when such an individualistic and greedy philosophy will become as antiquated as the "divine right of kings."

Then will mankind demonstrate true Christian teachings of "the meek shall inherit the earth" and "you are your brother's keeper."

Legal Education.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Let me thank Mr. Edward M. J. Gowen for his article of June 23. His opinions are certainly mine. How many of our great lawyers would now be lawyers had they been compelled to give two unnecessary years (and money) to gain admission to the bar?

My son lost his father before finishing high school. We were left with money barely sufficient to last even a few months. He was graduated from high school with honor. He attended a business school and was given a position the day he was graduated. This position required a law degree for a more rapid promotion. He has just been graduated from a fine school which helps those of us who are unable to give our children the advantages of the rich.

My son has just taken the bar examination. He is ambitions. I cannot bear to think of what he would have done had not this kind school given him his great opportunity. Why cannot those who advocate two unnecessary years place their sons and daughters in the position of our less fortunate children? Surely those who work all day, help their families and go to night school deserve credit and their ambitions realized. S. M. G.

"Too Much Soda Water."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I always enjoy your editorials. I have just finished reading the one on "Stocks and Indices," which naturally appealed to me on account of my close association with Wall street for over 40 years. I am of the old school—Gould, Cammack, Keene, Traverse, etc.

Even admitting that the SEC upset the old apple cart with its stringent rules of control, I still maintain the tape of the New York Stock Exchange is still the best barometer in the world. It tells of prosperity and adversity alike before they come, discounting everything in advance that is humanly possible and never waiting for actualities, except in cases like Cleveland's Venezuelan message issued at midnight, Frisco's earthquake, the Johnstown flood, etc.

I believe the advance for the last seven consecutive days has been too rapid for the good of the patient—too much soda water all at once. I look for a corrective relapse before Tuesday's close and then a resumption of advance that looks like 1929 to me.

Dr. Roosevelt's Prescription.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Arguments, not blows, delivered in a proper ladylike manner and taken according to directions on the label.

Such is the prescription in Dr. Roosevelt's best fireside manner, on the subject of politics, reprisals and purges, just as the five billions of new paper is about to be blown to the breeze and happy days brought back to us—again.

But wait, these directions are supplemented by verbal orders. Go to the polls, weigh the samples of the opposing candidates, and if the injection of liberalism is weak and sappy—not up to New Deal standards of strength and density—grab the offending candidate kindly but firmly by the back hair, hack violently, then drop him in molten metal.

Rocks, dead cats, blows—all are taboo. All save the legal tender of the open court, the council chamber (and the smoke-filled back room)—arguments.

In Defense Of Pugilism.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The late Mr. Brisbane was accustomed to write into his editorials, on the eve of a heavyweight biracial prize fight, the concept of brutality and the comparison of the strength of gorilla versus man. Some recent columnists, run out of ideas, have done the same thing. Perhaps in some respects the fighting game is a gladiatorial exhibition more brutelike than football, but I doubt that its physiological effects are more devastating than those of football or basketball.

Don't we need to save, as a stimulus to the development of physically rugged individualism, some of the brutelike contests? In a civilization growing soft, youth needs contacts with some rough elemental forces even if we must leave the fine arts to men of age, the physically insecure and the tenderhearted. Of course, all gentlemen and artists are not weaklings. We simply deplore the trends toward weakening the moral fiber of youth.

Not many people can be thrilled by victory in tiddly-winks, checkers or golf. Some can be mildly thrilled. The boxing game can stir to the depths human emotions. Football and track probably rank next in appeal. These elemental sports have the power to send such a wave of hormones coursing through our blood that individuals frequently die under the emotional stress and strain.

During these battles, or races, we live again the life by which our ancestors survived to make possible our existence and our literature of today. The masses of virile men can still find vicarious satisfactions in masculine emotion when stirred by these events. It probably saves many men of culture from stalemate. It helps youth to preserve a physical balance in a world of softness. It is less brutal than war, to which editors frequently rush for interesting appeal.

In Praise Of Mr. Fish.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One should have exceptional resources for his information and should have made more than ordinary study of the subject before criticizing or commenting publicly on the stand taken or the opinion expressed on foreign relations by a member of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, who has served long and faithfully on that committee and who has made a comprehensive study of the subject.

With this in mind I have no doubt but that Linn A. E. Gale, whose letter appeared in Sunday's Post, can so qualify, or he would not have commented so freely on the statement made by the Hon. Hamilton Fish in regard to our Mexican policy.

The position taken by Mr. Fish on our foreign relations has been justified by subsequent events as shown by the public record and entitles him to the confidence and regard that is accorded him by his colleagues in both parties. Future events in our relations with Mexico will, no doubt, justify the soundness of the position taken by him in this instance. FRED B. WOODARD.

Women Drivers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: My heart bleeds for the poor, starving children of Armenia. My soul goes out to the handicapped deaf, dumb and blind. My lips quiver with remorse when the word "leper" is mentioned. I even have some feeling in my heart for your unappreciated "nonchog lover." But no man can attach my sympathy as does the poor unfortunate being that has the misfortune to be on the same street with a woman driver.

What misled, bewitched, unthinking person allowed the weaker (in name only) sex to operate a motor driven vehicle! When I say operate I do not want the word misunderstood as a synonym for drive. Until the Day of Reconciliation a woman will point left and turn right or vice versa. The ladies may counteract that statement by saying that even in comparison women have less accidents than men drivers. The bitter truth is that they've been frightening probable accidents out of range. TERRIFIED.

The Post Impressionist

Mr. Ellis.

THE depression brought Mr. Ellis and me together in a Washington rooming house. Otherwise I would probably never have had a table acquaintance with a one-time member of the New York Stock Exchange. To me the depression meant simply a shade more of the insecurity to which I have been accustomed since entering upon the age of reason. But to Mr. Ellis it was a ghastly end-of-all-solid things time. It was a nightmare of a time in which realities as much to be taken for granted as lamp posts swayed and grew thin and vanished, grinning as they passed away. It was a time in which unseen hands pulled chairs from under respectable citizens.

I always had the feeling that Mr. Ellis never really saw me, and the other roomers agreed that he did not, in fact, recognize our existence, nor any relationship with us. His body was there, just as our bodies were there. It took a cold bath every morning in the third-floor bathroom, ate its breakfast and patted the landlady's dog. Promptly at 9 it appeared in a Government agency downtown, did its work methodically and returned to duty strictly within the half hour allotted for lunch. All these trifling third-rate matters were a part of the breaking up of the old sacred order, and he was marching through them with his shoulders back like the officer and the gentleman that he was. But although his body walked the streets of Washington and passed the salt and pepper to Government clerks at the table, he really lived in his beloved New York canyons. We were shadows to him with whom he was passing through some shade.

* * *

Shadows though we were, he had to address himself to us. He might have been starved for talk, for he launched it at us—great quantities that muffled our small sounds. We had to meet it as we met the traffic on Connecticut avenue just around the corner, quietly awaiting our chance to make a crossing but never amounting to very much. His tales were interesting, but they had to do with yachts and hunting lodges and such things, and often we grew restless for we never had a chance when he was around to tell of our own inexpensive little jaunts. Not that he put on side with us, but in a supremely simple way he was disinterested in anything we had ever done.

One evening he joined us in the living room and started at once to discourse on traveling abroad. Here, I thought in delight, I could join him. One year I laboriously saved some $450, threw up a job I detested and took a trip to the British Isles, determined to wrest that bit of adventure from life even if I had to come back and scrub floors the rest of my days.

"Did you like London?" I asked, itching for a bit of reminiscing about the Tower.

"Oh, London," and he waved that whole grimy, entrancing city away. "The deadest hole on earth on Sunday. We just packed up and fled, simply fled, to Paris."

I could not follow him to Paris, because we had not had enough money to go on the Continent. But he had mentioned Devonshire.

"We spent two weeks in Devonshire," I confided. "We had rooms with an English family. Didn't you just love Devonshire?"

"Yes, yes . . . we spent some time in Devonshire. My father, you know, had decided ideas about our trip, and he said when we started, 'Now, don't let expense stop you from really seeing the country; take your time and get around.' We met some charming souls in Devonshire, charming . . . some lord . . . . Lord . . .' His eagle's face scowled in frustrated recollection. He snapped his fingers. "Oh . . . Lord What's-His-Name, and he motored us all over that part of the country."

* * *

Then he mentioned Dublin, and again I leaned forward. My Irish enthusiasm goes out to anyone who has ever had the faintest desire to visit that green and smiling island.

"Oh, did you get to Dublin? We spent . . . "

"No, we didn't . . . It's been my great regret." He was largely, seriously regretful. "We were invited over there to visit at a country house just outside of Dublin, and we should have gone."

I nodded—they really should have.

"But, do you know, it would have cost us $500 just to get the proper clothes, hunting clothes, and all that sort of thing you know. Father was so exasperated when I got home and told him, and he said, 'Well, why on earth didn't you wire home for the money?' He was simply disgusted, but I don't know, we just figured it was quite an outlay. But I've always felt sorry. You know," and he fixed me with those stern blue eyes that in his Army days had caused many a private to quail. He seemed to be in the mood to lecture me harshly on some lack in humanity. . . . "A person should make the most out of a trip like that, see all he can see . . . "

"Yes," I agreed meekly, "he should," and crept off to bed. He didn't even remotely suspect that I had ever crossed the Atlantic Ocean. HAZEL O'HARA.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

The Garble Sisters.

"WELL, I SEE where Europe is trying to get all visiting troops out of the Spanish war before Christmas."

"Yeah. I knew Ambassador Kennedy would have the whole thing cleared up before he had been in London three months. But if they take out all the foreign soldiers, will there be enough Spaniards left in the cast to keep the show running?"

"That's where the trouble will come in. John L. Lewis will be bound to act."

"What can he do?"

"You don't think he is going to stand by and see all those visiting soldiers thrown out of work with practically no notice, do you?"

"But the outside troops didn't have a contract. They were in on a piecework basis."

"It don't make no difference. Europe can't fire all those soldiers from a war that was running 24 hours a day without crippling the entire war industry. It will be a fine situation if soldiers can enlist for a long-term war and be fired without two weeks' notice."

"WHAT DID YOU THINK of the Schmeling-Louis fight?"

"It was all that was needed to break the depression and send the stock market up. What a break it was for Roosevelt!"

"How?"

"It brought all that money out of hiding and showed that everything is all right in the heavy industries, didn't it?"

"Have you been following the Japanese-Chinese war?"

"Not much. I read something about the Japs breaking the Chinese transverse process around Swatow and launching a new attack in the lumbar region."

• • • •

"WHAT DID YOU THINK of those American primaries?"

"I was glad to see Barbara Hutton win, but it was a surprise to me the way Walt Disney swept every State."

• • • •

"DO YOU THINK the depression is over yet?"

"I think it must be. Hollywood has decided to go ahead with 'Gone With the Wind' after hesitating three years."

"I think it was a mistake to pick Shirley Temple for the role of Snow White O'Hara, don't you?"

"I don't know. But I was sorry to see them choose Clark Gable to play Dopey Butler."

Three Heresies

By Robert M. Hutchins,

President University of Chicago.

Skepticism, Presentism, Scientism.

THE TWO MOST EMINENT SKEPTICS of modern times were among its most stalwart reactionaries. Hume was a Tory of the deepest die, and Montaigne was, too. This was a perfectly natural consequence of their philosophical position. Montaigne held, in effect, that "there was nothing more dangerous than to touch a political order once it had been established. For who knows whether the next will be better? The world is living by custom and tradition; we should not disturb it on the strength of private opinions which express little more than our own moods and humors, or, at the utmost, the local prejudices of our own country. There is another decision to which they could have come and at which others of their faith have actually arrived. If we can know nothing about society, if we have only opinion about it, and if one man's opinion is as good as another's, then we may decide to get what we irrationally want by the use of irrational means, namely force. The appeal to reason is vain in a skeptical world.

A second reason why some people doubt the social utility of the education I favor is that they belong to the cult of immediacy, or of what may be called presentism. In this view the way to world progress is to grapple with the reality you find about you. You tour the stockyards and the steel plants and understand the industrial system. There is no past. Any reference to antiquity or the Middle Ages shows you have no interest in social progress . . . Philosophers who lived yesterday have nothing to say to us today.

But we cannot understand the environment by looking at it. It presents itself to us as a mass of incomprehensible items. Simply collecting these items does not enlighten us. It may lead only to that worship of information which, according to John Dewey, still curses the social studies; and understanding escapes us still. We attack old problems not knowing they are old and make the same mistakes because we do not know they were made. So today Stuart Chase and Thurman Arnold, those great discoverers, are renewing the medieval controversy between the nominalists and the realists without realizing that the subject was ever discussed before and without the knowledge or training to conduct the discussion to any intelligible end.

SKEPTICISM AND PRESENTISM are related to a third "ism" that distorts our view of the method of education for social improvement. This is the cult of scientism, a cult to which, curiously enough, very few natural scientists belong. It is a cult composed of those who misconceive the nature or the role of science. They say that science is modern; science is tentative; science is progressive. Everything which is not science is antiquated, reactionary, or at best irrelevant.

A writer in so respectable and learned a publication as the International Journal of Ethics has called upon us to follow science in our quest for the good life, and the fact that he is a philosopher suggests that the cult of scientism has found members in the most unlikely places. For it must be clear that though we can and should use science to achieve social improvement, we cannot follow it to this destination. The reason is that science does not tell us where to go. Men may employ it for good or evil purposes; but it is the men that have the purposes, and they do not learn them from their scientific studies.

• • • •

FINALLY, WE HAVE the cult of anti-intellectualism, which has some oddly assorted members. They range from Hitler, who says he thinks with his red corpuscles, through the members of the three other cults, to men of good will, who, since they are men of good will, are at the opposite pole to Hitler, but who can give no rational justification for being there. They hold that philosophy of the heart which Auguste Comte first celebrated. Comte belonged to the cult of scientism. Therefore, he could know nothing but what science told him. But he wanted social improvement. Hence he tried to make a philosophy and finally a religion out of science, and succeeded only in producing something which was no one of the three and which was, in fact, little more than sentimentalism.

Observer Says Winant Appointment A Bow To U. S.; Predicts Director Will Worthily Carry On Thomas-Butler Tradition.

By Bertram Pickard.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Geneva.

THE APPOINTMENT of former Gov. Winant to succeed Mr. Harold Butler as director of the International Labor Office when Mr. Butler retires at the end of 1938 was, and is, important news. Much has been written in daily news stories concerning Mr. Winant's election. But, for readers of The Post, who not unnaturally take a particular interest in this event, it may be worth while to recapitulate the major reasons which determined the choice and to appraise its significance.

In Harold Butler's farewell report to the International Labor Conference the outgoing director laid stress upon the fact that the industrial center of gravity of the world is steadily shifting away from Europe. Butler claimed that, despite the withdrawal of Germany and Italy, the International Labor Organization was at least as representative, from the world point of view, as it was five years ago before the entry of the United States and the U. S. S. R.

The members of the governing body upon whom fell the duty of appointing Mr. Butler's successor are fully aware of Europe's diminishing importance in the economic sphere, since 8 out of 16 governments represented in it are extra-European, including the U. S. S. R. among the Extropean states.

It was natural enough then that, looking to the future, they should think it right to place the directorship in the hands of someone whose very appointment would symbolize this growing world-wide co-operation and economic and social interdependence.

Moreover, it was not merely a matter of statistics. At a moment of extreme political discouragement in Europe, it was natural to seek to redress the balance of a tormented Old World by bringing in something of those "youthful visions" of the New referred to by Mr. Butler.

Perhaps the "powers that be"—even if they did not say much about it—also thought that an American director, assuming he had the full backing of the United States Government, would link Washington with the I. L. O. as few things could.

But, there is another important factor that predisposed the choice of a national of the United States, over and above all considerations of demonstrating the extra-European importance of the work of the I. L. O. This factor must be explained by way of a slight digression.

Albert Thomas Set The Stage.

THE DIRECTORSHIP of the International Labor Office is a peculiar and difficult position to hold. It has no exact parallel in national government. The director of the I. L. O. is something more than the chief of a great administration. He has not, it is true, exactly similar functions to the minister in a national government, nevertheless he is not merely the servant of the governing body which appoints him, with no responsibility himself for policy.

The secretary-general of the League of Nations, from the constitutional point of view, is very similarly placed. But whatever the respective theoretical positions may be, the practical differences between the two posts is evident.

These practical differences are in no small measure a reflection of the widely differing personalities of the first secretary-general of the League (Sir Eric Drummond) and the first director of the I. L. O. M. (Albert Thomas). "There's the man for the League," M. Clemenceau is reported to have said at the Peace Conference, pointing to Sir Eric. "I've seen him sitting there for three days without expressing an opinion on anything."

Certainly Albert Thomas would not have passed Clemenceau's test. As someone put it, he not only ran the I. L. O., but the world also. That is to say he felt it to be part of his task to have first-hand contacts with the countries and interests (workers and employers) represented in the I. L. O. throughout the world. His annual report to the International Labor Conference and his reply to the debate on the report in the conference were two manifestations of a policy-forming function which belongs to the ministerial as opposed to the civil servant role of administrator.

MR. BUTLER fully continued the Thomas tradition, whilst M. Joseph Avenol (Sir Eric Drummond's successor) only recently has publicly defined the role of secretary-general in highly restrictive terms, so far as responsibility for policy is concerned.

If the director of the I. L. O., however, exercises to some extent the functions of minister as well as administrator, he has not a cabinet to fall back upon for support when in difficulties, as has a Minister in a national government.

True, the governing body may, in some circumstances, give him the backing he needs. But in the case of staff appointments for example, where the director has the final word in striking the delicate balance between the requirements of efficiency on the one hand and legitimate national claims on the other, he is sorely in need of strong backing at times. Moreover, the governing body, by its very international composition, is unable, national feeling being what it is, to give the director the backing so essential to him.

Indeed he needs not only occasionally, but all the time, a sense of moral and material support in his office, which is not forthcoming from any international body at the present juncture of world development.

Hence, despite the theoretical advantages that might be thought to accrue from the placing of the highest international posts in the hands of nationals from all states, on the grounds that they would be the least likely to be influenced by the exigencies of power politics, experience appears to suggest that this would not work out well in practice. The fact that he has a powerful and respected government behind him is an enormous asset to anyone who aspires to lead one of the great international institutions.

When once it was certain that the United States Government was not only ready but anxious to see a citizen of the United States hold the directorship of the I. L. O., former Gov. Winant's appointment virtually became a foregone conclusion.

This brings us to the man himself—or rather to the men—for until Mr. E. J. Phelan withdrew his candidature, Mr. Winant had a competitor for the position whose knowledge and experience of the I. L. O. were incomparably greater than his, and whose brilliant service to the organization from its earliest days had put the institution deeply in his debt.

Politics A Factor In Winant Choice.

IT IS OBVIOUS that what may be styled broadly as political considerations outweighed questions of personal preparedness, or even of administrative qualifications.

Any doubts that might have existed, moreover, as to the suitability of placing a relative newcomer above a colleague whose skill and long experience made his co-operation indispensable were set at rest by the particular solution found, namely, that Mr. Phelan should become deputy-director, a post which had lapsed at the time of Mr. Butler's succession to the directorship.

The Winant-Phelan combination has remarkable potentialities. Mr. Phelan's long and intimate experience of all the complex details of a great machine qualify him par excellence to bear the chief administrative burden. The dynamic qualities of Mr. Winant's personality and his flare for leadership, on the other hand, fit him for a role which involves constant adaptability to changing circumstances and an output of great mental and physical energy.

Miss Perkins, in her speech to the conference, said that Mr. Winant had in his own country been tried in the fire and found faithful. Geneva will certainly provide a further rigorous test of Mr. Winant's qualities and aptitudes. But in international circles here Mr. Winant has already created the impression that he can and will rise to new occasions.

At first sight the lack of facility in speech appears to handicap him in a setting where fluency is proverbial. But I hear of one non-English speaking member of the governing body who, not knowing what to make of Mr. Winant's halting speech of thanks following his appointment, was entirely won over to the new director when the palpably sincere substance of Mr. Winant's words was interpreted.

Doubtless Mr. Winant's present unfamiliarity with French will prove a serious inconvenience in many ways. But Albert Thomas' command of English was very modest, and yet by sheer force of personality he overcame the barrier to a remarkable degree.

Fanny Kemble

By Lewis Gannett

An "Abundant Liver."

"FANNY, WHY DON'T you pray to God to make you better? a fellow asked Mrs. Siddon's little niece, somewhat more than a century ago. "So I do," Fanny Kemble answered, "and He makes me worse and worse."

"Fanny Kemble, a Passionate Victorian" (Macmillan, $3), Margaret Armstrong calls her book; it is the Book-of-the-Month Club's July selection. It is not only the portrait of a high-strung daughter of a family which, in its day, was to England what the Barrymores have been to our America; it is also a pageant of Victorian England and America.

For Fanny Kemble grew up in days when it was considered wise punishment to take a naughty little girl to see a criminal's head sliced off by the guillotine; she became the first actress of the London stage before she was 20; she toured America in the 1830's and married the richest slaveholder in Georgia; she revolted at slavery and broke with her husband; she did her bit to convert England during our Civil War by publishing her diary of Georgia plantation days, and she lived, homesick in Italy, happy in Switzerland, to be one of Henry James' major inspirations. She was born in 1809; she died in 1893.

The Kembles were for more than a century the gods of the London stage; they defied conventions which ostracized stage folk from proper society. Reynolds, Gainsborough and Lawrence felt honored to paint Fanny's Aunt Sara Siddons; her Uncle John smiled complacently when Byron called him "supernatural;" wits said of John that in his retirement in Switzerland he was jealous only of Mont Blanc. Apollo might have envied the looks of Fanny's father, Charles; her grandfather had rescued a king; her mother had been known as "the little French fairy," and known by royalty, before she married the Olympian Charles.

FANNY GREW UP "POOR." Her father had inherited the Covent Garden Theater and its eternal debts, and Covent Garden weighed on the family for decades. It was partly in the hope of rescuing it that Charles put Fanny Kemble on as Juliet when she was only 19, and for a time she did bring back the old Kemble prosperity. It was typical of her that she could hardly be heard through the first act; she won all her plaudits in the last act. She never outgrew stage fright, and more than once, when a play ended in a scream, she could not stop screaming, and was carried off in hysterics. But she became the toast of England.

Fanny and her father determined to try their fortune in America. Their ship made a fast voyage—five weeks to New York. They put up at New York's best hotel—the American, on Broadway. But the wash-basins crawled with red ants; one clothes closet was infested with moths, another with bugs. Fanny did not like the drinking water, brought to the hotel daily in big butts. (Conservative New Yorkers thought it unsafe to drink water that had run underground through metal pipes.) Fanny was impressed with the clean, comfortable hackney coaches, but thought the private carriages shabby, and was amazed that the menservants were not in livery. The pigs rooting in the streets appalled her; but she thought American men exceptionally courteous, and was surprised to see no poor around. And she loved the trees on the Battery, and the fine forests across the river and up the island, beyond the Bowery.

Dolly Madison and John Quincy Adams came to see Fanny in Washington; Chief Justice Marshall wept at her acting. She liked battered old President Jackson, but thought the White House, forlornly set in a withered-grass plot with palings in front, and at the back a stretch of untidy waste land, "unfortunate." And wherever she went—and she went almost everywhere, even away out to Niagara Falls and up to Quebec—the swankiest young men in America danced attendance on her.

Pierce Butler, of Philadelphia and Georgia, followed Fanny on tour, playing the flute in the orchestra in order to be near her, and in June, 1834, Fanny married Pierce and was somewhat dubiously admitted to Philadelphia society. She shocked Philadelphia by her open distaste for bores, even when of the best families; she spoke of an Edinburgh fishwife as her friend; she invited actors to dine, which was a little more than Pierce could stand. He could marry an actress, if she retired; he could not entertain mere stage folk. Fanny tended to agree with Mr. Emerson, who said that "If the world were all Philadelphia, although the poultry and dairy market would be admirable, I fear suicide would be exceedingly prevalent."

• • • •

SO FANNY FOLLOWED her husband to his rice plantations on the Altamaha River, in Georgia, close to those marshes of Glynn which Stephen Lanier was one day to make immortal. Pierce Butler considered himself a model slaveholder. He had an infirmary; he flogged very little; he seldom broke up families. But Fanny was shocked by what she saw. The infirmary was filthy and dark; the cabins were filthier; when she complained to her husband that the women did not have time to keep their babies clean, the informers were flogged. The aristocracy of the South seemed to her merely pitiable; she tired of old men telling of the great days "before the war"—before the Revolution.

Pierce Butler told Fanny she was ruining his slaves with her mistaken tenderness; with the current price of cotton and rice he had enough on his mind without this everlasting fuss about sick babies and religion and flannel petticoats. He forbade her to bring him any more tales; when she said she would write books to earn money for her charities, he reminded her that by law a wife's earnings belonged to her husband. He forbade her to correspond with her abolitionist friends in the North.

The quarrel went deeper than slavery; soon the couple had separated, Pierce forbidding the children to see their mother. Fanny returned to Europe; Pierce sued her for desertion. She returned to America, determined to fight. The court refused to admit her statements as evidence, but they appeared in the newspapers. Fanny had to wait seven years to see her daughters—until they became of age.

• • • •

BACK IN ENGLAND, Fanny was amply able to take care of herself. She was a Kemble. She became Macready's leading lady; she gave Shakespearean "readings," very popular in that day, both in England and in America. The Longfellows and the Alcotts were her friends. But it was not until 1863, when she was shocked to discover her England so friendly to the cause of the slavocracy, that she finally published that 1836 journal, which is, perhaps, her chief claim to enduring fame. Oddly enough, it was criticized in its day less upon its plain statement of observed facts than for its assumed "indecency;" it told facts which, whether facts or not, should have been suppressed!

Fanny lived on, one of England's grand old ladies. One daughter married Dr. Owen Wister, of Philadelphia, and had as son the author of "The Virginian;" another tried a post-war experiment in old ways in the South. Fanny wrote memoirs, she climbed mountains, she maintained a salon. Henry James thought her one of the most "abundant livers" he ever met; the Swiss christened her "la dame qui va chantant par les montagnes." . . . And much of that rich personality speaks in Margaret Armstrong's pages . . . Who said that the Victorians were dull?

Turns With A Bookworm

SPEAKING FURTHER of Zephine Humphrey's "Cactus Forest," William E. Wilson and Benjamin Wallace Douglass both hasten to affirm that the "golden rain trees" still flourish in New Harmony, Ind., the historic site of Robert Owen's utopian experiment . . . But we were guilty of misrepresenting Mrs. Humphrey's remark about the trees . . . She doesn't say there are none left, only that she was disappointed not to see them on driving into the town, and she adds "the latter failure was probably due to the fact that this was not the rainy season for such trees." . . . Then she doesn't mention them again. . .

• • • •

AS FOR THE RAPP EXPERIMENT, Mr. Douglass explains that "nothing went wrong with it" . . . One might say it expired of success . . . The founder "sold the whole works to Owen for $150,000 cold cash and took his tribe back to the Pennsylvania wilderness and started carving a new settlement. Owen's colony lasted until Owen's bank roll was used up.

Ayres Predicts Recovery Turn In September

Depression Nearly Over, Economist Says; Fears Political Control.

By the Associated Press.

Ottawa, Ont., June 28.—America already has reached, or will reach late in 1938, the bottom of the present depression, Leonard P. Ayres, economist of the Cleveland Trust Co., told the American Association for the Advancement of Science today.

Characterizing the United States Government's $3,753,000,000 spending program as "politically primed prosperity," Ayres admitted it would spur business activity.

He said "American resources are so great that they can support such a program for a long time to come," but added:

"This is a very serious condition, for in the long run the new system of political prosperity can be made to work well enough to destroy gradually the habits of self-help and enterprise on which a free society depends."

Turn in September.

As the United States enters on its "second vast experiment in pump priming" it is well on the way toward the control of business "by persons whose principal occupation is not industry, finance, agriculture, or trade, but the winning of elections," he told the economics section of the association.

He said business, after continuing its present slump through August, will probably pick up materially from September through December and on into 1939. The two major influencing factors well be the course of business abroad, which may restrict but not prevent recovery, and the growing crisis among American railroads, Ayres declared.

One-third of the United States railroad mileage is in receivership, he pointed out, and "it now sooms wholly probable that before the end of 1939 some new relationship will have come into existence between the Federal Government and the railroad systems."

Gill Defends Spending.

Sound recovery in the United States and Canada will not get get under way, he added, until the national income produced in the two countries stops shrinking, and it must be based on the production of such "durable" goods as building materials, machinery, automobiles, furniture, bridges, ships and locomotives.

In another analysis of economic conditions, Corrington Gill, of the Works Progress Administration, Washington, D. C., declared that the checkrein on the United States Government spending could not be applied until conditions approximating full employment prevail.

Questions and Answers.

Q. I have heard that approximately 15 per cent are expected to fail noncompetitive examinations. In case of failing, is there no chance of holding on to the job?

A. The examinations mentioned are expected to be little else than qualifying tests. But even if you failed and have been an efficient employe, the head of the agency may nevertheless keep you on the pay roll outside of the classified service.

• • • •

Q. I am a classified employe and would like to know what you think of the executive order.

A. As a classified employe you should be very pleased that the political and friendship-appointed employe is brought within the classified service. Otherwise, your job and chances are always endangered.

• • • •

Q. Does the executive order carry provision for longevity credits benefiting older employes in the event of reduction in forces?

A. No. However the reduction in force laws carry a few points for longevity. There is for consideration of the longevity credits reduced back in 1933 because of involuntary retirements under Section 8(a) of the economy act, now discontinued. If you are a union member, bring this up for discussion.

• • • •

Q. Is it true that all "blanketed in" will receive promotions?

A. Positively no. Find out what the CAF employes grade is who is performing similar work to yours; the minimum received by CAF in this grade will be the amount authorized to you upon passing of examination. If you are getting less than this amount, your pay will be brought up to minimum of CAF grade. In this connection, it may be stated that many E. O. employes are already receiving the maximum pay. There will be many promotions, but certainly not as many as first was predicted.

• • • •

Q. Will I be entitled to retirement benefits upon becoming a classified employe?

A. Yes; upon the payment of the usual 3½ per cent deduction.

• • • •

Q. What if Congress refuses to appropriate additional funds for necessary promotions?

A. Since all will be classified employes the law authorizes standard pay. If no additional funds are forthcoming, reduction in force or furloughs most likely will result.

Q. I am an employe of the CCC and does my job come under the executive order?

A. No. The past Congress saw fit to make appointments in the CCC noncivil service. However, since many of the appointments were made under an act providing for civil service this is one of the questions bound to go before the Attorney General and/or the Comptroller General for decision. The answer "no" is predicated upon the fact that you were appointed during the past month and since the Congress made CCC noncivil service.

• • • •

Q. Who sponsored promotion opportunities through training facilities?

A. We don't know the answer; but the annual report of the commission as far back as 1932 suggested such a plan and L. J. O'Rourke, director of research and personnel, Civil Service Commission, was the author.

• • • •

Q. What is the meaning of "qualified" persons in taking examinations?

A. The commission may disqualify you for many reasons. Among these are disqualification for commission of crime, noncitizenship, physical disability, reasons of age and for many other reasons.

• • • •

Q. Does the executive order change the efficiency rating plan?

A. No. The Executive would have no authority, since the original efficiency rating is provided for by an act of Congress through the classification act of 1924.

• • • •

Q. Will the Comptroller General or Attorney General render decisions regarding jurisdiction?

A. Very likely; if the questions involve payment of salary, the C. G. will decide—questions of procedure will be for the Attorney General's determination.

It is to be found in the exposition of boy life at the famous Bernardo Homes in England, where orphaned youngsters are educated in the trades.

BELL.

This particular picture, previewed yesterday afternoon by the drama desks, deals with the Russell-Cotes Nautical Training School, in which lads without parents or other means of honest support, are educated for the British Merchant Marine, a reserve force of the Royal Navy. There are strong elements of both patriotism and character-building woven into the warp and woof of this new vehicle for two of the most able young players on the contemporary screen. For purposes of dramatic effect—and it is an effect that is held in abeyance almost too long, as the story works out—a thin thread of adult criminality also runs through the fabric of the play.

"Lord Jeff" is very, very British in all that it says and does and bears no relationship whatever to American juvenile films aiming at the reclamation of youthful hoodlums through the agency of the reformatory. The Barnardo Homes are anything but corrective institutions, beyond the application of ordinary scholastic discipline. They are, on the contrary, sources of inspiration.

Freddie Bartholomew, in this subject, finds himself cast in much the same type of role that he played with such success in "Captains Courageous." He does his present assignment equal justice, taking into consideration, of course, the fact that "Lord Jeff" is largely lacking in the thrill of the open sea and the other turbulent qualities that characterized the earlier film. The point is that Freddie, in the role of Geoffrey Braemer, again steps off on the wrong foot and has to acquire the advantages of respect and comaraderie among his associates the hard way. Involved with a precious pair of jewel thieves, he has much on his mind and much to live down beyond the fact that he is an unconscionable little snob. The manner in which he overcomes the obstacles placed in his path forms the crux of the story.

Contributing largely to the effectiveness of Master Bartholomew's performance is the rough-and-ready enthusiasm and honesty of Mickey Rooney, as Terry O'Mulvaney, the Russell-Cotes recruit who thinks he has struck it soft and that life in the merchant marine is an existence just one step this side of Heaven. The contrast between these two able young actors is not as great as it used to be. Freddie Bartholomew is sprouting up into young manhood with amazing speed. He no longer is the fragile lad that was seen in "David Copperfield" and "Little Lord Fauntleroy," but a strapping youth with a bit of the man about him and a proportionate acquisition of dramatic forcefulness and authority. It now is possible for Freddie and Mickey to have their battles on almost an equal footing and without the foregone conclusion that Master Freddie necessarily must have his block knocked off!

But withal this mental and physical development, Freddie Bartholomew remains the screen's outstanding example of polished young actor, whose diction is perfect and whose demeanor is that of an instinctive young gentleman. Not many have bridged the gap between small boyhood and adolescence with such complete retention of the capabilities that first made him a "child prodigy."

It will be interesting to watch the future course of the Bartholomew career.

• • • •

But, lest it be mistakenly surmised that Freddie and Mickey are the only juvenile members of the cast of "Lord Jeff" worth watching, there is a tiny newcomer in this picture who bids fair, on the strength of this single performance, to become one of the early child stars of the cinema. This is a little shaver by the name of Terry Kilburn, son of a London bus driver, who speaks with a Lancashire dialect you could cut with a dull knife and possesses something of that quality of plaintive pathos that stamped the work of the fabulous Jackie Coogan when he was the toddling protege of Mr. Charles Spencer Chaplin, from whom he effectually "stole" "The Kid." This little Kilburn fellow evidently comes to the American screen with a bit of film experience behind him. He plays with the surety of a veteran and his part is not a small one. While you are contemplating Freddie Bartholomew's rapid development in "Lord Jeff," it might be well at the same time to bend an eye on Terry's initial effort on this side. He is a kid who will do with more than a bit of watching.

And while we are on the topic of precocious camera artists well on the juvenile side, it seems that Shirley Temple, Washington's completely charming young visitor of the week, has gone slightly intellectual on us.

One of Shirley's most enjoyable few minutes since arriving in the Capital last Thursday night—or so one is given to understand—was spent late Monday afternoon in the section of the Library of Congress devoted to rare old juvenile books. The dimpled Duse reputedly went into raptures, no less, over some of the priceless volumes that were shown her, even manifesting a momentary inclination to desert her two favorite dolls in their favor.

Thus another little-known facet must be added to the clear-cut endowments of this remarkable young woman. In addition to being the world's favorite motion picture star, she also is by way of being a bibliophile with the perception of a connoisseur!

The month of May, according to the bona fide ticket wicket compilations published in the June 25 issue of the Motion Picture Herald, continued to nominate more than the average number of "Box-office Champions." For the second consecutive month, if memory serves, there were eight favored releases on the list. These were "Th Adventures of Marco Polo," "The Adventures of Robin Hood," "Dr. Rhythm," "Four Men and a Prayer," "In Old Chicago," "Kentucky Moonshine," "Test Pilot" and "Vivacious Lady." Once again it falls to the Capital's fortunate lot to have seen all of these releases on local screens. In the estimation of this column—not that it matters—a few of them do not belong on any roster of "champions," but, as has been remarked here so many times before, money in the till talks louder than mere fingers on a typewriter. This octet of top money winners gives Twentieth Century-Fox a little the best of it, with three listed pictures. The rest are divided, one each, among United Artists, Warner Brothers, Paramount, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and RKO-Radio. No wonder Mr. Zanuck could take his polo ponies on a trip to Europe.

Two new players are making their Washington debuts in "Plot and Passion," at the Roadside Theater this week—Anne Moran and John Miller.

Miss Moran hails from Waterbury, Conn., and did not develop a yen for the stage until after she had moved to this city. She enrolled first with the Greet Academy and then became a member of the Blackfriars. Mr. Miller, it appears from the record, comes from all over, having lived in Canada, this country and South America. Since coming to Washington he has appeared with the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School group and the Montgomery Players.

There is a bit of a contradiction in the cast at the Roadside this week, too. The villain repulsed with such scorn by Betty Gray, in the role of Madame de Fontanges, is a young gentleman whose ardors were greeted with less repulsion away from the theater, if recent society columns in the daily press may be relied upon. That work out on the Rockville pike, I submit, must be real acting!

• • • •

Since the matter of the local groups has bobbed up again, it might be well to know that the Wilson Winjammers' performance of Kenyon Nicholson's play of "The Barker," originally scheduled for the National Sylvan Theater last night, was postponed until tonight. Those low-hanging clouds did the business.

It's-an-Ill-Wind-Etc., Note.

If the sun ever does come out again—and it always has—it will make it nice for the gentlemen with large stocks of smoked glasses to sell whether they are in on the pump-priming or not.

For Sale.

The 38-foot cabin cruiser, Golden Hind, used in "Spawn of the North," starring George Raft, Henry Fonda and Dorothy Lamour, will be offered for sale. It has an 11-foot beam, a 2½-foot draft, and a top speed of 28.8 knots generated by a six-cylinder, 200-horsepower motor.

In 'Western.'

Sulky Young Seaman Makes 30 'Nots' an Hour!

FREDDIE BARTHOLOMEW, MICKEY ROONEY AND CHARLES COBURN, as they appear in "Lord Jeff," a story of the training schools for England's merchant marine, coming to the screen at Loew's Palace on Friday. Master Bartholomew and the stalwart Rooney are cast in roles not unlike those they played in the memorable "Captains Courageous"—without the squalls and the heavy seas off the fishing banks. The veteran Mr. Coburn is the commandant of the Russel-Cotes Nautical Training School.

Versatile Actor Begins to Fret About His Tax

By the United Press.

Hollywood, June 28.—Dick Lane, actor, etc., with particular emphasis on the latter, started today to worry about his next year's income tax returns.

Well he might, because the figures he will present his Uncle Sam undoubtedly will be the most complicated morass of profit-and-loss statements produced in Hollywood.

Lane's business currently include the following:

1. Movie acting for R-K-O in the Rogers-Astaire picture, "Carefree."
2. Radio straight man on the Joe Penner program.
3. Backing a wrestler known professionally as Gentleman Danny McShain.
4. Financing a dentist in New York.
5. Operating a Venetian blind factory.
6. Running a perambulating tire regrooving and retreading outfit, now doing business with northern California motorists.
7. Drawing royalties on the manufacture of a candy bar.
8. Operating a chemical farm, where tomatoes grow in water, at Santa Paula, Calif.

"Nothing to Do."

He sold his automobile agency a couple of months ago and he's got time hanging heavy on his hands.

"So now I'm figuring on going into the Persian lamb business in Oregon," he said. "You get caracul fur from these beasts and I hear it's mighty profitable."

All of Lane's enterprises are in the black, except his chemical farm, which is newly established but which he believes soon will be producing vegetables in large quantities, while all other farms are frozen in.

Lane owns 15 per cent of gentleman Danny McShain, former lightheavyweight champ, and the villain of every match he enters. The income from Gentleman Danny is small but regular.

The New York dentist pays Lane 30 per cent of his profits, in return for the fancy office the latter paid for on Madison avenue. The dentist is doing all right, too, he said.

The tire retreading business gives him 50 per cent of the profits. This enterprise also is doing fine, but Lane doesn't patronize it himself. He uses new tires on his car.

Blinds and Bars Pay.

The Venetian blind factory pays him 50-50, while the candy bar, which he invented, gives him 2½ cents on every carton sold.

"But what I like best about the farm is the potato crop," he said. "You fill a big tank full of water and the proper chemicals, then you plant your potatoes. Pretty soon they're full grown. So you just let the water evaporate and you've got a tank crammed full of potatoes, so clean they don't even need to be washed before they're boiled."

Lane, one of the best of the movie's character actors, has appeared in so many R-K-O films that few directors on the lot even consider starting a picture without him. In the last 17 months he has acted in 32 features.

"One day I really was busy," he said. "I played in three pictures and made a trailer at lunch time."

In Hollywood

With HEDDA HOPPER

Hollywood, Calif., June 28.—Dashed over to Warner's studios to see a couple of rebels at work. We don't call them that—some do. Bette Davis and Errol Flynn in "The Sisters," their first picture together. The two firecrackers of the season. Not only in breaking records, where "Jezebel" and "Robin Hood" have been shown, but in speaking their minds when asked to do pictures not suited to them.

HEDDA HOPPER

Bette was punished by a layoff without pay. And Errol—well, he took off to Cuba and had himself a time.

Bette and Errol were calm as a May morning. Bette looking lovely but uncomfortable in a pair of old ironsides from her shoulder to her knees, fitted over a pad to give her that "sticky out" look in the rear. The minute the scenes were finished, Director Litvak said, "Check your corsets, Bette."

She checked—quickly, and settled down instantly into knitting a white angora sweater for husband, Ham Nelson, who'll look like a polar bear in it. Can only knit half an hour at a time. Wool tickles her nose—gives her hay fever and she begins to sneeze. No greater love hath any woman.

And while sitting beside her, Errol opened a telegram from Bette inviting him to her Tail Wagging party. We'll all be wagging together on August 4th at the Beverly Hills Hotel at a dinner dance. So all you who love dogs, have them, or want them, come on along and wag with us.

Both are enthusiastic over their parts. It is the first straight leading lady Bette's ever done. They always put in a kick or two for her. Feels strange—she's playing a nice woman.

Errol does a natural—likes to roam instead of face facts, but makes the great sacrifice at the finish. Just as he did in real life, when he left Cuba, where he was having a rip snortin' time, and came back to work.

Did you know he went deep-sea diving for buried treasures off the Cuban coast? Got mixed up with a shark one day—didn't stop him. Doesn't say much about it.

He's the wildest, most fun-lovingest don't-give-a-damn Irishman I've ever met. Yes, I've known a few! Nearly fell for one once. While making love in the most intense manner he kept saying, "But don't believe a word I tell you . . . I'll never do you any good . . . but, oh, you are so sweet . . . don't fall for me, you'll have nothing but misery."

Erroll is exactly like that. The game of life will always be more important to him than being a great actor. Sure he likes to act. Who doesn't? It's thrilling—pays rather well, too. But nothing like as exciting as being in an open boat on an open sea. He's the greatest ribber in town—you know, gagster.

They turned the tables on him his first night in Havana, when his friends took him to a rowdy party, and he heard his name being called from the street. On peeking through the shutters he discovered dozens of school girls, who came to give him a royal welcome. They did and how! But they weren't school girls. Cubans have the right idea: Love, music, fighting, women and movies. I asked him if he was going to play in "The Miracle." He said: "What, the nun?" "Why not? Aren't you the glamour boy?" But I ducked when I said it. Nothing makes him more furious.

He's had countless hair-raising experiences. Most vivid in New Guinea, where he spent 5½ years. His black boys sold him out to another tribe.

His friends have had some narrow escapes, too. The other night at his birthday celebration—he's 28—he ganged up on one of his best pals, Pat Knowles. During dinner at his house, two policemen forced their way in and served Pat with a writ and a summons for being in contempt of court and wanted to take him right then and there. Pat's wife begged him to confess what he'd done. He tried to make them all believe he was innocent. Johnny Law was soft hearted enough to say: "We'll wait till you've finished your dinner." Then Errol said he'd go his bond and guarantee to have Pat in court at 10 o'clock the following morning. Not until Pat decided to go down that night and get it over with did he realize it was another one of Flynn's gags. I hope I'll be present when they get Flynn. They will.

I asked him how he became an actor. He said, "My parents won't believe it yet, but I think grandmother gave me the idea. I used to hide behind rose bushes and watch grannie, happy as a lark rocking back and forth, until she saw me, then she'd double up with the miseries."

He started running away from home when he was 8—managed it at 16.

"Suppose your father had a strong whip hand," I said.

"No," smiled Errol, "mother had. What a life I led them! At 7 I gave away her engagement ring. She got it back. I managed to dispose of some of her best silver and her tortoise shell toilet set. I always enjoyed giving away other people's things—still do."

And now he's giving all that lusty living to the screen and we're lapping it up.

Boy Actor Shines Up Cast's Faces

Injury to Star Cancels Comedy

Owing to an unfortunate foot injury, sustained on the way to the theater by automobile and too severe to permit of his playing, Arch McDonald was unable to appear in the title role of Don Marquis' comedy of "The Old Soak," at the Cross Roads Theater last night, and the scheduled performance was canceled.

It is anticipated that he will have made sufficient recovery to enable him to appear in the part tonight, in which case a review of this famous play will appear in tomorrow's issue of The Post. If not tomorrow, "The Old Soak" will be reviewed on this page as soon as the engagement is resumed.

Pictures Will Aid John Fan Through Heat

Theater patrons this year will be treated to the biggest array of important pictures ever released during the summer months, a survey of cinema plans for the public revealed today.

Paramount studio is releasing "You and Me," starring Sylvia Sidney and George Raft, this month, and later in the summer "Spawn of the North," an epic of the Alaskan salmon pirates, costarring Raft, Henry Fonda and Dorothy Lamour. Another epical action film, "The Texans," starring Joan Bennett and Randolph Scott, is to be released in August.

The same studio also has several comedies timed for the hot weather, including "Professor, Beware!" Harold Lloyd's first feature in two years, and "Tropic Holiday," with Bob Burns, Martha Raye, Dorothy Lamour and Ray Milland.

"Give Me a Sailor," with Martha Raye, Bob Hope, Betty Grable and Jack Whiting, and "Sing You Sinners," starring Bing Crosby and Fred MacMurray, are to be given nation-wide release in midsummer.

Universal studio will present Danielle Darrieux's first American picture, "The Rage of Paris," Deanna Durbin's "That Certain Age," and John Stahl's "A Letter of Introduction."

Among other strong pictures, "Blockade" and "Algiers" will be brought out by United Artists; Warner Brothers will present "The Cowboy from Brooklyn" and "Boy Meets Girl."

Senators Hold Williams Talk 'Unfortunate'

Relief

—that if we elect people to office who are hostile to a works program on an adequate basis, we cannot expect higher wages or better conditions."

Lasser said WPA workers "will support such candidates who favor at least the liberal policies of the New Deal."

"Even after Mr. Williams' explanation of what he said, we have expressed our disapproval of his speech," Senator Sheppard told reporters, "and we have given a second warning that such incidents will be reported to the Senate. There isn't much else the committee can do. But I wouldn't say the incident was completely closed until after I have looked over the speech."

Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, one of the first to criticize the Williams speech, declared last night the Senate committee was "very considerate and indeed generous in dealing with Mr. Williams' admitted statement." King said he agreed that the incident was "unfortunate" but he thought the committee's action was "mild."

Pepper Defends Williams.

"Inevitably the statement made by Mr. Williams created the impression among those on relief that it is undesirable to remove from political power those now controlling Governmental activities," said King. "I do not agree with Mr. Williams that his address was not susceptible of political implications."

Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, came to the deputy administrator's defense with the declaration: "I do not believe Aubrey Williams said what they said he said, but if he had said it, he would have been right."

Chairman Sheppard yesterday morning phoned Williams for an explanation of his speech, and the official's letter in reply was laid before Sheppard, O'Mahoney, of Wyoming; and Harrison, of Mississippi; three of the five committee members, at a special meeting.

Williams replied he was unable to "send you a complete transcript of my talk for it was extemporaneous."

Says Wages Discussed.

"What I said and what I am reported as saying are entirely two different things," wrote Williams. "I was discussing the question of wage reductions and wage increases. I agreed that the wage scale was too low and, in many instances, too low, but was as high as available funds would permit and as high as an important segment of public opinion would stand for.

"I pointed out to them that in a democracy it was important for them to keep in office those who had this point of view just as their opponents think it important to remove from office those who have their point of view.

"There was nothing political in what I said nor were any political implications intended. It does so happen, however, that there are a few people so steeped in partisan politics that they read insidious political motives in every statement of a public official."

Statement Unanimous.

The Senate committee discussed both the speech and Williams' explanation. Then the three members unanimously approved a two-paragraph statement. It said Williams "expressly disclaims any political intent in the speech which he made to a certain group of WPA workers on June 27, 1938."

It added that "the committee accepts this statement, but in view of the instructions given the committee by the Senate, the committee feels that because of his position in the Works Progress Administration the speech of Mr. Williams was unfortunate." It told Federal officials to take note of the committee's obligation to report such incidents to the Senate.

In Albany, N. Y., Representative Fish (Republican), of New York, declared President Roosevelt should promptly remove Williams from office and "pubicly repudiate his statement."

Fish said the Workers Alliance, which Williams addressed, "is one of the principal means of spreading Communist propaganda." He called the Williams speech a bid for Communist support and said it "proves how far the Administration will go in dispersing relief funds for partisan purposes."

Williams, Fish said, "makes a political football out of the Works Progress Administration and plays politics with human misery in a manner and scale never dreamed of before."

"Acceptance" Not Approval.

Chairman Sheppard in his interview with reporters late yesterday denied the committee statement that it "accepts" Williams' letter meant it adopted his view of the incident.

"We didn't agree with him," insisted Sheppard. "We accepted his statement but expressed disapproval."

The Senate committee chairman said Lasser's corrected "record" of what Williams said would be submitted today to members of the committee still in town. He said Williams might be shown a copy of the Workers Alliance transcript, to see if it represented his views.

Kentucky, Oklahoma Eyed.

Sheppard further told reporters the committee may look into reports that recent WPA wage increase in Kentucky and in Oklahoma were larger than the other relief pay step-ups announced Sunday. Senate Majority Leader Barkley is running for re-election in Kentucky, while Senator Elmer Thomas is facing two rivals in Oklahoma.

The "record" of Williams' speech sent Sheppard last night by Lasser contained three penciled corrections of "inaccuracies" in the text. But there were no changes in that portion dealing with the alleged appeal for political support.

"We've got to stick together," Williams was quoted as saying. "We've got to keep our friends in power. I thought that speech (President's fireside chat) was wonderful. I don't need to tell you. You know your friends very well.

Rabbis Elect Dr. Simon.

Dr. Abram Simon, of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, was elected to the executive board of the Central Conference of American Rabbis which just closed in Atlantic City, it was announced here yesterday.

JOHNNY SLAUGHTER, whose orchestra stirs up harmony in the Wardman's Metronome Room. Upper is "Wou" of "Wicky, Wacky and Wow" at the Bamboo Gardens. She is really Thelma Shalley.

A surcharge of exoticism fills the air when Stafford and Louise glide into their "Black Tango" and waltz numbers at the Shoreham. Polish is of their essence. The Shoreham setting, already beautiful as Monte Carlo, takes on the atmosphere of one of those incredible Oppenheim novels under the spell of these internationalistes who have played at "Grand Hotels" all over the world.

(Ol' man trouble hovered over the Shoreham Monday but lifted his wings and flew away. Both the ritzy Stafford and Louise and the funny Kelo Brothers got bogged on the Maryland roads and barely made the floor show.)

Phyllis Cromling, Mayfair's new Manhattan singer, is by way of being a society pet. While singing at the Hotel New Yorker, she was also regularly drafted to canary at society parties. She's from that model town, Evanston, Ill., but you should hear her sing "Temptation."

Mayfair's promotion manager, Jimmy Byrd (sorry we made him a "Bird" in the column lately), says the coming song sensation will be "I Locked My Heart and Threw Away the Key."

For a combo circus, dance festival and rodeo—see "Wicky, Wacky and Wow," capering at Bamboo Gardens. These irrepressibles do skating, spring and Russian dances, tap a la Bill Robinson, a Highland fling and fancy roping. They also have the nerve to bring black-out bits to a floor show—without the black-outs.

Seen at Madrillon was Dr. William Mann, director of the Zoo, discussing chances of adding the "Great Gargantua" to his collection. He was a member of the party given by Dr. and Mrs. Cajigas in honor of Mayor Tormos of Ponce, Puerto Rico, and Senor Jose Guillermo Vivas.

There'll be a new face in the Rainbow Room orchestra at its fancy opening party (gallons of gala) on Friday. Durwood Bowersox, one of the best dance music violinists in America, has joined the Meyer Davis Rainbowers.

Madness is king at Lotus what with those two lunatics, Jones and Rooney, taking their fun where they find it (largely flat on their faces) and Elaine and Carroll's "old-fashioned waltz" with new-fashioned moments that will fair paralyze your Aunt Eliza.

Bill Strickland's Dixieland Swingers are doing "Flat Foot Flugie" with paddy-whack effects and insets of all the nut numbers of the last generation, beginning with "Yes, We Have No Bananas."

Drammer is being added to the Steve Le Sieur doings on the Powhatan Roof. The boys are doing what we fear is a censorable version of "Little Nell," with "Tiny" Meeker in the title role wearing a big hat topped with a flower garden.

Musical fireworks are due at Glen Echo on July 4. Howard Becker and his "Parade of Youth" orchestra will offer cannon crackers of swing, skyrockets of melody. It's a big 12-piece outfit specializing in hot rhythms and featuring Vocalists "Mac" Harris and Bob Stall.

Only upholstered bar in town is that overstuffed red leather one at the King Cole Room. Over this de luxe bar is a mural of King Cole, modern style, with topper and monocle, attended by a fiddler, bass and sax, instead of those old "fiddlers three."

Hi-Hat's Oscar looks like an Esquire illustration these days. (No, we don't mean those Petty girls.) What we started to say is that Oscar is white-carnationed, white-flannelled up to the nines.

Brinkley's is regularly packing 'em to its 221 capacity, says manager Jimmy Crandall. If 222 come in, the extra fellod will have to sit on the ork stand with Jack Torry's boys.

Show Boat's Three Dees play 12 instruments between them. Justified is "Dee" Clements' declaration that they're the "biggest little band for hundreds of miles around."

Nye Takes Lead Over Langer in N. Dakota Vote

Primary

John Field, 131; C. F. Kelsch, 855; Sivert W. Thompson, 1,002, and Henry G. Owen, 800.

However, in the Democratic races, 20 precincts gave for Senator: Halvorson, 128; E. A. Johansson, 34; Nygaard, 440.

For Governor, 20 precincts gave: Moses, 490; Rosenberg, 37.

Senator Nye gained considerable of his advantage in Cass County with but few returns in from Western precincts normally constituted the stronghold of the Non-partisan League of which Gov. Langer is the titular head.

Elected together on the Nonpartisan League ticket six years ago, Nye and Langer head opposition tickets, Nye with a newly organized Progressive Republican organization, and Langer as titular head of the league. They campaigned almost exclusively on State issues.

Cloudy skies overhung North Dakota and early reports indicated a lighter vote than two years ago when 222,245 votes were cast for Governor in the primary.

A partial slate of Union Party candidates were unopposed and few called for that ballot. Democrats, featuring a three-cornered fight for Senatorial nomination between J. J. Nygaard, Jamestown; E. A. Johanssen, of Raub, and Halvor Halvorson, Minot independent, expected an increased vote over previous primaries.

Rabbi's Wife Dies, 40th Auto Victim

Mrs. Bessie Goldman, 80, who with her husband, Rabbi Morris Goldman, was struck by an automobile during Monday night's rainstorm, died of her injuries last night in Emergency Hospital. She was the year's fortieth traffic fatality here.

Rabbi Goldman, who is connected with the Tifetroth Israel Congregation at Fourteenth and Euclid streets northwest, and Mrs. Goldman were crossing at Fourteenth and Upshur streets northwest when they were struck by an auto police said was driven by Katherine M. Kilgour, 3909 Morrison street northwest.

She suffered fractures of the leg and skull. Rabbi Goldman received a fractured leg.

Mrs. Fowler Rites To Be Held Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Fowler, 69, who died Monday, will be held at 2:30 p. m. today at her residence, 1358 Maple View place southeast. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Fowler was the widow of George W. Fowler, former building contractor here, and mother of Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter L. Fowler. Three other sons survive; William D. Fowler, Silver Spring, Md.; the Rev. George A. Fowler, Oak Park, Ill., and Albert C. Fowler, Miami.

She is also survived by four daughters, Mrs. Maude C. Tate, this city; Mrs. Gertrude V. Brasse, Arlington County, Va., and the Misses Laura and Alice I. Fowler, of this city.

C. A. White Dies; Rites Tomorrow

C. Albert White, a native of Washington and an attorney here for over 30 years, died Monday after being ill several months.

Mr. White entered the law business after being graduated from Georgetown University and receiving is bachelor and master of law degrees at Georgetown Law School. He was an organizer of the Columbia Building & Loan Association and had been its treasurer and attorney. His home was at 3161 Eighteenth street northwest.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Margaret K. White, a sister, Miss Stella White, and a brother Francis P. White, all of this city, and a brother, Lewis C. White, of San Francisco.

Funeral services will be held at 9 a. m. tomorrow at the Shrine of the Sacred Heart. Burial will be at the summer home at Whitney Point, N. Y.

Hanged Va. Girl Called a Suicide

Special Dispatch to The Post

Berryville, Va., June 28.—Sheriff W. W. Smallwood announced here today he would discontinue his investigation into the hanging of 17-year-old Wanda Whetzell May. The announcement followed filing of a certificate of suicide by County Coroner Carroll M. Iden to the effect that the girl's death was caused by hanging and showed no signs of foul play.

Sheriff Smallwood launched his investigation into the death of the attractive girl when "peculiar circumstances," he said, indicated she did not take her own life, but might have been strung by a rope to the barn rafter to cover up her murder. A young farmhand who was seen with the girl the night before her body was found was questioned at length by authorities here last night, but released when he accounted for his activities after he left the girl.

Georgian on Trial For Killing Woman

Savannah, Ga., June 28 (U.P.)—William B. Aycock, 42-year-old police chief of a manufacturing plant, today was brought to trial for murdering an attractive woman friend, a crime which his wife had confessed committing.

Solicitor General Samuel A. Cann, refusing to accept the confession of Mrs. Aycock, proceeded fession of Mrs. Aycock who had been charged with shooting to death Mrs. Martha Sikes, 27, last May 12.

Bedtime Stories

By Thornton W. Burgess.

A Royal Homemaker.

Who plans and works to make a home
Will never after seek to roam.
—Old Mother Nature.

Peter Rabbit sat just outside the home that Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse had left for good only the day before. Peter didn't know that they had left. Queen Bumble of the Bee folk had gone inside. Peter was waiting for her to come out. He waited and waited, but got not so much as a glimpse of Queen Bumble. Could something have happened? Could it be that Danny and Nanny had been at home and had killed Queen Bumble? He didn't like to think that. It was queer that neither Danny nor Nanny appeared.

"Buzz-z-z-z!" Queen Bumble suddenly appeared buzzing so loudly that Peter jumped pack. He had no mind to feel the sharp little lance that Queen Bumble carries. Before he could say a word she had buzzed away.

Peter started after her. She had alighted on a flower. Before he could catch up with her she had buzzed away to another flower. At the third flower Peter caught up with her. She was busy filling the pollen baskets on her hind legs. She was heaping them with the precious flower gold dust which is, as you know, called pollen.

"Did you"——began Peter, but Queen Bumble, her baskets full, buzzed away straight back to the old home of Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse.

Lipperty-lipperty-lip ran Peter after her. He got there just in time to see her disappear inside. Again he waited and again she was in there quite a while, but not as long as she had been the first time. You see then she had found a lot of work to do to fix that nest to suit her. Now she emptied her pollen baskets and mixed the pollen with nectar she had brought from the flowers. She was making a kind of bee-bread. This she placed in the nest. As soon as she had made all the bee-bread she had pollen and nectar for she buzzed out and away before Peter could find his tongue.

Finally Peter gave up. She made him tired. Yes, sir, she made him tired. How any one could work like that and keep it up all day long he couldn't understand. Still less could Peter understand how Queen Bumble was happy. She she could be happy doing it. But Queen Bumble was happy. She hadn't been happy when Peter first met her while she was looking for an empty house and unable to find one. Now that she had found one and had started to make a home there she was so happy that she hummed.

Lipperty-lipperty-lip ran Peter after her.

Having no one to help her, of course, she had to do everything herself. She had to first prepare the nest.. Then she had to collect the pollen and nectar and take them home to make her bee-bread. She could make only a very little at a time, then must go hunt for and collect more pollen and nectar. There was no time to waste, and she wasted none. Not until night did she rest.

Early the next morning she was out at work again and she worked all day. It took many trips to make that bee-bread grow to a mass of any size. Had she had some workers to aid it would have made matters far easier for her. But she was alone, a queen, with no subjects. Whatever was done she must do, and she did so with no complaining whatever.

When she considered that she had made enough bee-bread she took time off to lay just a few eggs on the bee-bread and covered them over with wax. When those eggs hatched, which they did very soon, the babies, which were tiny white grubs, promptly began eating bee-bread. It was for this that Queen Bumble had made this bee bread. They ate holes in that bee-bread and pushed their way into the holes as they ate. The bigger they grew the more they ate. So the bee-bread made of flower pollen and nectar was at one and the same time a cradle and food for the baby bees. There when the time came for the great change which would turn white grubs into black and yellow Bumble Bees they spun silken cocoons, one in each hole.

All the time Queen Bumble was mother, nurse, housemaid and provider. A harder working and busier person was not to be found in all the Great World.

Mixed Chorus at Sylvan.

The Shubert-Shakesperean Club will present a mixed chorus of 100 voices at the Sylvan Theater, Monument Grounds, at 8:30 p. m. tomorrow. Miss Mattie Jenkins, soprano, and Lawrence Whissanont, tenor, will be soloists. George W. Murphy will direct, assisted by Miss Gladys Ward.

Just judge the folks who come and ask for your support by the crowd they run with."

Partisan Mention Denied.

There was also the statement that "the men who stand for these sort of things (Federal arts projects) are the men you are going to send to the elections."

Lasser wrote Sheppard that Williams did not "indicate that our friends can be found in any one political party. Nor should our delegates nor our hundreds of thousands of members have been influenced by any such statement if it were made."

"Frankly, Mr. Senator," Lasser wrote, "the WPA workers are becoming nauseated by the hypocritical campaign in the press indicating that the WPA workers are being 'coerced' by the national Administration. This campaign is being carried on by those who are enemies of the unemployed and who oppose the unemployed securing governmental work or decent conditions."

Private Citizen, Pepper Says.

Lasser said that "despite its shortcomings and inadequacies, we support the present national Administration because it represents more closely than any other that has been in power the needs and aspirations of those we represent." He said WA workers will support candidates favoring "liberal policies of the New Deal . . . irrespective of Mr. Hopkins or Mr. Williams."

Senator Pepper, who received support from the President's secretary-son, James, in his successful Florida primary campaign, said he had no sympathy with injecting politics into public relief "but I know Mr. Williams too well to believe he intended to inject politics into relief." He said Williams had expressed "private sentiments which he had a perfect right to utter as a citizen of the United States."

"I do know," Pepper said, "that Mr. Williams was right in the statement that if people getting relief expect to get such assistance from the Government in the future they must keep in office people who appreciate their needs and who want to help those who by a vicious series of circumstances beyond their control are unable to help themselves."

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: For about a year a certain boy went with me, with my sister as chaperone. We have known him for a number of years and we liked him as much as he liked us. My sister has been married over six months and expects to be home for a visit next month. I am sure this boy would enjoy seeing her as much as she would enjoy seeing him. Please tell me how to go about letting him know she is coming and that she would like to see him.

* * * *

You see, he stopped coming to see me some time ago, because I was going out with another boy on nights when I had no dates with him (jealousy, I suppose) and I haven't corresponded with him since. But I have talked with him and he seems as friendly as ever. However, I wouldn't want him to think I was trying to get him back "on the string" in a left-handed manner. Yours truly, L. L.

* * * *

DEAR L. L.: Of course you are trying to get the boy within hailing distance again, using your sister's visit as a pretext, and your pretensions to the contrary are transparent in the extreme. Who is he, anyway, an old beau of hers whom you got a crush on? And who faded out of the picture after she married? You're not a very convincing yarn-spinner, L. L., and your evasive skirting of the truth—whatever it is—rather annoys me.

* * * *

I think you had better wait until your newly married sister arrives and get her permission to ask former men friends to call upon her, before issuing invitations to such worthies in her name. She might prefer not to be bothered; or she might think she was not playing fairly with her husband, in being party to such a procedure.

* * * *

There would be no harm, however in telephoning the young man one day soon and saying, simply: "Jane is coming home for the month of July and I felt sure you would want to know. Maybe we can get together one evening for old time's sake. I don't know what her plans are, but I'm sure she hasn't forgotten you. You might ring us up after the Fourth, or I'll call you, and we'll see what we can cook up." In other words, take responsibility for bringing about such a meeting as you hypothesize squarely on your own shoulders, where it belongs. If you haven't the social aplomb to do that, and get away with it—whether he responds or whether he doesn't—then you'd better just abandon the idea.

M. H.

Bachelor's Dilemma.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a man of 40, a bachelor of moderate means. At one time I loved a girl very dearly but due to her heavy drinking we separated. Since then I had been very lonely until recently when I met a young lady 36 years old. We like each other, but the extent of our interest has not been defined. She cannot make up her mind whether to let her work take her out of the city, and I cannot make up my mind about asking her to marry me.

* * * *

The reason I hesitate is because I may not be able to provide her the things she has been accustomed to, her family having greater wealth than I. Nor do I have much chance for advancement. For a number of years I lived with, and supported in comfort, a relative who is now dead, and I feel that, for my part, on my means, I could be as happy with this new-found love as I was living with that relative.

* * * *

Should I sell my property out in the Northwest and build a small comfortable home in nearby Virginia, and ask this woman to marry me? I am opposed to my wife's working. I might add that this woman and I are interested in the same things, such as sports and so on. Sincerely, A. B.

Pop the Question.

DEAR A. B.: The only way to get your bearings in this situation is to ask the woman to marry you. If she says "yes," let her help you decide whether to sell your property in the Northwest and whether to build a home in nearby Virginia. In proposing, be frank about your finances, and let her decide without pressure whether you can support her in a style to which she can gracefully and happily adjust, even if it is not the style to which she has beeen accustomed. And let her say whether she shall continue in business. It is your privilege, of course, to say that you would prefer that she did not work after marriage; but it is her privilege to decide whether she shall or shall not.

* * * *

She might thoroughly enjoy being the business-woman wife of a man of small means; but she might definitely dislike the idea of being the homebody wife of such a man. That's the whole trouble with you confirmed bachelors; you get so "set" in your ways as you near 40 that you either don't know how, or aren't willing, to make allowances for the individual rights and preferences of others. It will be splendid personality training for you—if you can "take" it—to develop some elastic powers of adjustment, through learning how to live happily and intimately with a woman who is a personality in her own right, and who isn't content with being or becoming your rubber-stamp complement.

* * * *

If the woman says "no" to your proposal, then, again, all your other questions will be more or less resolved. There wouldn't be much point in building a home in nearby Virginia if you were confronted with the prospect of a continued bachelor existence.

Pastel Spectator Costume

A WIDELY varying summer life can be led by this spectator costume as it can rise to almost any occasion. Of fine rayon sheer, it is distinguished by the clever use of pleated frilling. The slim one-piece frock has a softly turned-back V neck above a row of tiny self-fabric buttons, short puffed sleeves and a gracefully flared skirt banded at the hem by the self-pleating. The belted jacket has a matching pleated frill at the edges and shoulder front. Available in pastel shades, this costume can be worn for 'spectating," lunching, cocktailing and shopping.

The GENTLER SEX

By Malvina Lindsay.

The Second Wife.

Heavens, I'm tired; I don't know why I ever told him I'd fix these pants. Any other woman would have made him send 'em to the tailor. Well, I know one thing—after I'm dead and gone he'll find out what it is to look after himself. The whole trouble is I've spoiled him. I've waited on him hand and foot . . . made a baby of him. And he hasn't appreciated it. Men never do. But just wait till I'm gone and he marries some little nitwit who wears high-heeled shoes and runs around to shows all the time. Just wait! Then he'll find out a thing or two.

Picking up after him is enough to wear anybody out. Well, I bet one thing—SHE won't do it. I bet she'll teach him to hang his clothes in the closet instead of spreading 'em out over all the chairs in the house. Another thing, he'll have to hang up his towels and not leave the bathroom like a cyclone had struck it.

* * * *

I ought to take a nap right now—that's what SHE'D be doing. So she'd look fresh and rested when he came home . . . and sit up in black lace pajamas . . . or a pink satin hostess gown.

I'll bet she trains him to help around the house . . . and stays in bed mornings and lets him bring her breakfast. Another thing—I bet they eat out of cans! She'll never bother fixing things over a hot stove. No siree! They'll just eat out at restaurants and roadhouses and places. Where I made my mistake was in always cooking . . . and cooking . . . and having meat . . . meat . . . meat—every meal.

Well, I know one thing—I'm not going to make that lemon pie he kept hinting about this morning. A man has no conception of the work it takes to make a lemon pie. It's the hardest kind of a pie in the world to make—and in all this hot weather. And especially after I'd been doing all that cleaning. Anybody else would have had somebody in to help 'em. I don't see why I'm such a fool as to save money this way for him to spend on some other woman. I bet she'll not worry any about the bills. That type of women never do. She'll just let him spend his money on cigars and lottery tickets and drinking parties with the men at the office and let the house go to rack and ruin.

* * * *

What's more, she'll never go without things the way I have. She'll not wear one winter coat five years. Not on your life! She'll have a Scottie and a Hudson seal and all sorts of house coats and fancy negligees and cute little pajama sets . . . and she'll have a new electric refrigerator . . . and one of those new enamel gas ranges . . . and a new vacuum cleaner . . . and she'll never put up with this rug for a minute . . . or those drapes . . . or that old overstuffed set.

I'll just bet she makes him move into some hotel apartment . . . where she won't have to cook at all . . . and can gad about all the time and go to shows and things. Well, I know one thing—about the time he has to be out night after night—at his age—making whoopee until all hours of the morning, he'll appreciate what it was to sit here in his carpet slippers.

* * * *

The nerve of him wanting me to make a lemon pie over a hot stove! I'm simply not going to do it! SHE wouldn't! What's more I'm not going to clean that spot off his necktie. Let him send it to the cleaners. Or clean it himself. He's the most helpless man I ever saw. Like a great big baby. He'd simply never get dressed if I didn't . . . Oh, well, I guess I'll clean it off this time. He depends on me so. But you can bet your life SHE wouldn't.

Anyway, I'm NOT going to make that pie. Still . . . he'll be so disappointed. He's such a baby that way and always gets such a little boy look on his face when he sees anything he likes. Oh, well, I . . . I guess I'll make it . . . this one time. SHE wouldn't, but then . . . oh, well, maybe some day when he has to eat out of cans he'll look back and remember it.

Men Want Bride Able To Balance the Budget

That's More Important Than Good Cooking, Expert Holds.

By Genevieve Reynolds.

THERE IS NO USE asking the modern bridegroom, "Can she bake a cherry pie, Billy Boy?" He isn't thinking about that. He is wondering if she can balance the budget and still have a cherry pie.

That is the way it appears to Mrs. Kathryn Van Aken Burns, president of the American Home Economics Association, who has been attending the national convention of Phi Upsilon Omicron. Balancing the budget is the predominant problem confronting newlyweds today, Mrs. Burns believes. "More family disturbances start around money than any other thing," she said.

"Naturally the young husband is more concerned with his bride's ability to spend and manage on a limited income than he is with her expertness in cookery.

Speaks From Experience.

As head of the Home Economics Extension Service and teacher at the University of Illinois, Mrs. Burns knows whereof she speaks. For she comes into daily contact with both men and women who are studying home economics for a profession or background.

"Does the modern man expect his bride to be a good cook?" she was asked.

"No," she replied, thoughtfully. "But he does expect her to learn quickly."

"Whether a bride has to cook or not, she should know how to supervise and judge cooking," she cautioned. "Furthermore, she should know food values in relationship to health and how to buy intelligently."

"However," she said, "I believe the modern girl is preparing herself for home making. Formerly, she studied home economics as the basis of a vocation or profession. Now, she studies it as a foundation for marriage or better living in an apartment alone. Either alone or as a marriage partner most girls have to start out on a small budget and it behooves them to know values, so as to get the most out of what they have."

Training Not Necessary.

While previous technical training in Home Economics is desirable for new brides, it isn't necessary with so many reliable sources of information available after marriage, Mrs. Burns pointed out. Among these sources are the United States Bureau of Home Economics, and the State University Extension Services.

"When home economics began to be interpreted in broader terms than sewing and cooking, men entered the field as students and professors," she said. "Consequently, more boys and men invaded the field than ever before. Three men at the University of Illinois are making it their major subject. One of the boys is interested in the food angle as a background for hotel ownership. The other two want a knowledge of fabrics and textiles for factory management.

"Still other men enter the field to study and interpret more intelligently personal responsibilities as related to personal family relationships. Men have come to recognize the importance of grasping both tangible and intagible factors involved in successful home life."

She said men are seeking training in balancing the budget, setting a high standard in household efficiency, getting the best value for their money.

"Home making is a profession for both men and women—not a gift from the gods. It must be studied and practiced with patience and intelligence," she added.

Gay Beach Pajamas.

Paris (AP).—If you want your beach pajamas a little gayer you'll make them of red and white candy-striped Indian head cotton, with the stripes running vertically on the wide slacks and horizontally on the short-sleeved top. Put a patch pocket on the knee; a blue corselet belt (fastened by three nickel buckles) around the waist; and there you have a model which will doubtlessly parade the Riviera.

SPICE CUP CAKES.
½ cup of butter
1½ cups of brown sugar
2 eggs
1 cup of thick sour milk
2 cups of cake flour
1 teaspoon of soda
1 teaspoon of cinnamon
½ teaspoon of cloves
½ teaspoon of nutmeg
¼ teaspoon of salt
1 cup of seedless raisins
½ cup of broken nut meats

Cream the butter. Add sugar gradually. Beat until fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating after addition of each. Sift flour with soda and spices. Add alternately with sour milk to the first mixture. Mix nuts and raisins with last addition of flour. Turn into paper baking cups and fill about one-half full. Place in a shallow baking pan and bake for 25 minutes at a temperature of 375 degrees.

Lemon juice sprinkled over fresh mushrooms during the cooking, in the proportion of half a teaspoonful of juice to a cup of mushrooms, will help keep them from turning dark if the mushrooms are not overcooked.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

WHEN THE BROADWAY show season fired its last shot, the shell proved to be a cream puff. Marc Connolly, the nude-skulled gentleman who wrote "The Green Pastures," presented dozing Broadway with a lacy, airy bit of operetta called "Two Bouquets," an English product. The critics treated it like a delicate valentine, though one or two took a good solid yank at its fragile lace.

All the sharpshooters united, though, in caressing the two lovely young American girls who sing leading roles. They are blonde and brunette, reading them left to right, and they are beautiful and promising newcomers. I tooled around to the dressing room they share at the Windsor Theater to inspect them.

Marcia Westcott, 18, hailing from Chicago, was educated in Paris, she says, while her girl friend, Patricia Morison, is a 21-year-old native of this very town. They make a happy team in the dainty show and in the confining, nervous world of the dressing rom. "We're never jealous, and we've never had a fight," says Marcy, while Patsy nods. Both have heavy-duty singing ambitions, but when it comes to acting, they girls agree that they'd rather be like Garbo than any living trouper of our sex. But Marcy is sure that she'd rather be able to sing like the great Flagstad than resemble any mere actress, however big.

* * * *

Oddly enough, both pick Greta the Great as tops in her line, and both say that men don't like the Swede—"She looks too wise. Men never like women who know too much." What's your idea on this? I admit that Garbo is a greater favorite with women, but I also know plenty of men whom she reduces to jelly. Nice kids, Marcy and Patty, headed for the heights—and when they go out together of an evening as The Two Bouquets, the men around them can't concentrate on the food and drink!

Shortage of Vitamin A in Diet May Cause Night Blindness

Richest Sources of Element Are Butter, Cream, Milk and Green Vegetables.

By Ida Jean Kain.

IF YOU ARE an expert driver in the daytime but run off the road after nightfall, stumble when you walk in the dark and have to fumble for your seat in the twilight of the movie theater, you probably have what is commonly called night blindness. The whole trouble may be a lack of vitamin A in your diet.

Specifically, the peculiar condition of being able to see only in the bright light is caused by a lack of visual purple in the eyes. In the retina at the back of the eye there is a pigmented substance called visual purple. This substance is constantly bleached when the eyes are subjected to strong light. Normally, it is regenerated, but failure to reproduce the visual purple results in night blindness. Scientific experiments have discovered that vitamin A is essential to the normal reproduction of the purple pigment.

Common in Labrador.

Night blindness is most common in those parts of the world where the diet is low in viatmin A. In Labrador, where the fishermen spend much of their time in the sunshine, night blindness was especially prevalent. They could see perfectly until twilight set in, then suddenly they could not see at all. Once home, in the bright lights, their vision would again be all right.

Since the close link between vitamin A and night blindness has been established, the fishermen know that by eating codfish livers, which are rich in A, they can see much more clearly in the dusk. In fact, the story goes that if a fisherman cannot see in the dim light one evening, he promptly eats a quantity of the fish livers and his vision is normal by the next twilight.

Night blindness is also prevalent in mining and lumber camps, and the cause has been traced to the diet, which is composed mainly of bread, salt pork and tea.

Slaves Couldn't See.

Scientists today are solving many of the mysteries that puzzled chroniclers of other ages. As we come across a curious incident in which Brazilian slaves were unable to see when they returned from their labors after sundown, although they had no difficulty in seeing before sunrise when it was much darker, we find a connection between their diet and the reproduction of the visual purple. Although they never heard of vitamin A something in their evening meal provided this important vitamin and the visual purple, bleached during the day, was restored before morning.

Night blindnss is not the only ill effect of a deficiency of vitamin A, even though it may be the most annoying. On a prolonged diet deficient in the vitamin the resistance to such infections as colds and sinusitis is greatly lessened. Other manifestations are extreme dryness of the skin and, sometimes, acne.

Ordinarily the richest sources of vitamin A are butter, cream and milk. These are curtailed in the reducer's diet, which makes it important that the diet be adequate in these foods and rich in other sources of the vitamin. Excellent low calorie sources are green and yellow vegetables, especially spinach and carrots. Egg yolks and tomatoes are also rich in vitamin A, and cod liver oil and haliver oil are valuable concentrates. There is no reason why your diet should ever be deficient in this vitamin.

Pettingills Fete Officers Of Almirante Saldanha

Comdr. Washington Perry de Almeida and Staff Are Guests, as Diplomats, Navy and Residential Set Turn Out.

After a brief early summer lull in social goings-on, Washington pulled itself together again yesterday afternoon for the first of a series of parties for visitors arriving from four foreign countries.

Guests of honor yesterday were Commander Washington Perry de Almeida, commanding officer of the Brazilian Training Ship Almirante Saldanha, which dropped anchor yesterday at the Navy Yard, and members of his staff. Hosts were the genial Commandant of the yard, Rear Admiral George T. Pettingill, and his charming wife.

Gazing about the spacious rooms of the Commandant's quarters, it was hard to believe that this was the time of year when formerly there was "absolutely nobody" left in town. Diplomats and residents were present in full force, and the whole effect was as of winter, except that the rugs were up, the shades down, and iced coffee instead of hot was served.

However, most of those present were busy talking over plans for getting away from it all. Mrs. Jouett Shouse was telling friends she would be sailing in two weeks for Europe. She was accompanied by her son and daughter, William and Joan Dodd, both making their first appearance at a grown people's party.

Naval Attache and Wife Receive With Hosts

Receiving with the hosts and the guests of honor were the Naval Attache of the Brazilian Embassy and Mme. Reis, the latter wearing a brick-red frock and a fox scarf. Mrs. Pettingill was attired in a floor-length frock of cafe au lait crepe with a sash of darker brown. She leaves July 7 to spend the rest of the month in Southampton and at her home in Connecticut, but will return to pass August here, going away again for September.

Present yesterday were Frau Dieckhoff, wife of the German Ambassador, the Mexican Ambassador and Senora de Najera and the Czechoslovak Minister and Mme. Hurban from the diplomatic corps; Mrs. Eldridge Jordan, in a smart black sheer frock and a black hat trimmed with a white flower, and Mrs. William MacCracken.

Mrs. Charles Edison, wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, was there, as were Mrs. McCeney Werlich, Ralph Hill, Miss Anne Randolph, Mrs. George Barnett, Commander and Mrs. Theodore Wilkinson with their pretty debutante daughter, and Mr. and Mrs. John Caswell, who were accompanied by the latter's daughter, attractive Miss Margaret Lansdowne.

The Navy was well represented. Commander and Mrs. Robert Griffin, Commander and Mrs. William Popham and Miss Nancy Brereton, Commander and Mrs. Hudson, Commander Jerauld Wiltse and Commander and Mrs. F. J. A. Coleby, of the British Embassy, were among those present.

Brazilian Charge Gives Dinner Later

Guests included the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Charles Edison, the Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. William D. Leahy, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Pettingill, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Ralston S. Holmes, Dr. L. S. Rowe, director general of the Pan American Union; Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Duggan, Commander and Mrs. W. H. P. Blandy, who will entertain for the visitors this afternoon; Lieut. and Mrs. John Butler, Commander and Mrs. Harold Nelson, Capt. and Mrs. Robert Monroe, Col. and Mrs. Robert Blake, the Naval Attache of the Brazilian Embassy and Mme. Reis, and Lieut. Comdr. Annibal Pradode de Carvalho and Lieut. Capt. Antonio Doria, from the ship.

Betty Stone, Fiance Feted

Miss Betty Wyllys Stone and her fiance, George E. Allen, jr., whose wedding will take place this evening in Arlington, will be the guests of honor at a buffet supper before the ceremony to be given by Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Rees, of Arlington. The marriage will be performed at 8:30 o'clock at the First Baptist Church by the Rev. Perry L. Mitchell.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Morell Stone, who now have as their house guests the young ladies who will serve as bridesmaids—the Misses Donna and Doris Day, of Bradenton, Fla.; Miss Evelyn Klemme, of Belleville, Ill.; Miss Dorothy Sperry, of New Haven, Conn.; Miss Carey Bell Bowen, of Ridgewood, N. J., and Miss Jane Cloy, of Concord, N. C.

Last evening the wedding party was entertained at a dinner dance at the Shoreham with Miss Mary Jess Jones, Miss Carey Bell Bowen and Ashton C. Jones, jr., as hosts. In the afternoon Miss Stone gave a luncheon at the Washington Golf and Country Club for her attendants.

Monday evening Mrs. Cecil T. Rice and her daughter, Miss Rebecca Rice, feted the couple at a supper party at which their attendants were also present. That afternoon Miss Stone was honored at a tea by her aunt, Mrs. Leverett C. Stone, of Washington.

Stapletons Return From Detroit Visit; To Leave Friday

Mrs. Daniel C. Stapleton and her daughter, Miss Stellita Stapleton, returned yesterday from a visit to Detroit. They will leave Washington Friday, closing their house for the summer, and will be in New York City, at the Plaza for several weeks.

Miss Elvove Is Bride Here

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Edelson, who were married at 7:30 Sunday evening, are now on a wedding trip to Boston and Canada. The bride is the former Miss Kady Elvove, daughter of Mrs. Simma Elvove and the late Jacob Elvove, of Paris, Ky. Mr. Edelson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Edelson, of Washington.

Their marriage took place at the Beth-El Synagogue, the Rev. Aaron Volkman officiating. The bride, given in marriage by Louis Elvove, her brother, wore a gown of white chiffon made on simple lines, with small buttons down the front. A smart white silk-draped turban, with a shoulder-length veil, completed her costume, and she carried a white prayerbook with a shower of lilies of the valley.

Miss Ethel Elvove, her sister, and Miss Gertrude Edelson, the bridegroom's sister, were her only attendants. They wore pink gowns of mousseline and carried bouquets of garden flowers. Elies Edelson served as his brother's best man.

Following an informal reception in the vestry room, the couple left for a wedding trip to Boston and Canada. The bride was wearing a black silk frock with a brief jacket, white accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

Mrs. Edelson attended the University of Kentucky and George Washington University law school. The bridegroom attended George Washington University and the National Law School.

Ethel R. Close Becomes Bride

Miss Ethel Roberts Close was married yesterday to Louis A. Potter, jr., son of Louis A. Potter, Washington musician. The ceremony was performed in the First Methodist Church of Frostburg at 8:30 p. m. by the Rev. J. J. Rives, of Richmond. On their return from their wedding trip the couple will live at 5225 Eleventh road, Larchmont, Arington.

Miss Close, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander G. Close, of Frostburg, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white tulle dress appliqued with lace medallions and terminating in a long train. Her fingertip tulle veil was draped from a halo headress and she carried white roses and lilies of the valley.

The bridesmaids included Miss Dorothy Potter, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Helen Simons, Miss Dorothy Thomas and Miss Betty Hohing. They all wore pink lace redingotes over blue taffeta, and large leghorn picture hats. They carried old-fashioned bouquets. Little Patty Sanders was flower girl and was dressed in a frock of white tulle and a poke bonnet trimmed with forget-me-nots.

Edward Dawson, of Washington, was best man, while the ushers were Charles Mason, Samuel Goodson and Tage Foltz, all of Washington, and Arlington Judefind, of Baltimore.

At the reception in the home of the bride's parents, Mrs. Close, mother of the bride, was attired in a black lace dress and black lace hat, while Mrs. Potter, mother of the bridegroom wore peach lace and a peach and blue hat. Those assisting were Mrs. Walter B. Johnson, Mrs. Albert C. Cooke, Mrs. Reford Aldridge, Mrs. George Sanders, Miss Betty Hitchins and Miss Nancy Hitchins.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. Charles Potter and Mrs. Evelyn Du Bey, of Washington; Ira Milton Jones, of Milwaukee, Wisc., and Miss Jean B. Porter, of Beckley, W. Va.

The bride is a graduate of Frostburg State Teachers College. Mr. Potter is an alumnus of the Julliard School of Music and Peabody Conservatory of Music in Baltimore.

Sherers on Trip To New York

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Sebastian Sherer, who are now on a wedding trip to New York City and Mountain Lake Park, N. J., were married Monday evening. The ceremony took place at 9 o'clock at the Shrine of the Blessed Sacrament, with the Rev. Thomas G. Smyth officiating.

Mrs. Sherer is the former Miss Clara Margaret Spates, daughter of Webster Spates and the late Mrs. Spates. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter S. Sherer, of Miami, Fla.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a beige crepe traveling dress and a corsage of orchids. Miss Georgia Clancy, her maid of honor and only attendant, was in a light green suit and had a corsage of Gardenias.

About The Town

With Dudley Harmon

NUMEROUS out-of-town guests have already arrived for the biggest wedding of the week—the marriage this afternoon at 4 o'clock of Miss Margot Garrett to Mariano Zuberbuhler of the Argentine Embassy. The ceremony will be performed at St. Matthew's Church and will be followed by a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Garrett.

DUDLEY HARMON

Mrs. Robert Livingston Clarkson, sister of Mrs. Garrett, has come down from New York with Mr. Clarkson for the event, and Mrs. Alistair MacLean of Scotland, another sister, is also staying with the Garretts. Other out-of-town guests include Mrs. Sidney Scott, of Wilmington, Del.; Mrs. Glendenning Frazer, of Philadelphia, who has visited here often before as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Garrett; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gray, of New York; Mrs. Nelson Slater, Harry Prindiville, and Col. and Mrs. William Donovan. Col. and Mrs. Donovan used to live here, and still maintain a residence in Washington which until recently was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lippmann.

* * * *

ALL THESE out-of-towners attended the dinner which Mr. and Mrs. Garrett gave last evening at Grasslands, the lovely old club on Nebraska avenue. The dinner was followed by a small dance.

Members of the wedding party were also at the dinner. These included Senora de Acebal, sister of the future bridegroom, who will be matron of honor; Miss Elaine Darlington, step-sister of Miss Garrett, the maid of honor, and Miss Phyllis Whitney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Whitney, of New York; Miss Beatrice Gray, also of Manhattan; Mrs. de Peyster Brown, of Pittsburgh; Miss Jessica Butler, of Chicago and Washington; Mrs. F. Moran McConihe, Miss Martha Bacon, Miss Emily Davis, Miss Nancy Leiter and Miss Angelica Lloyd.

The Argentine Ambassador is to be best man at the wedding today. The ushers will include the second secretary of the Argentine embassy, Ricardo J. Siri, the commercial counselor, Miguel E. Quirno-Lavalle, Harry Darlington 3d., Mrs. Garrett's son; John Vietor, Samuel Biddle, William Russell, George Wheeler, George Mahoney, Angel Sanchez Elia of the Argentine; C. Manuel Periera, first secretary of the Chilean embassy, and Decio de Moura, second secretary of the embassy.

Arriving in Washington today by plane for the wedding are Mrs. Douglas McKay of Bronxville, N. Y., and her daughter, Miss Patricia McKay, cousins of Miss Garrett. Mrs. McKay is the former Miss Henrietta Vandergrift, granddaughter of the late J. J. Vandergrift, of Pitsburgh, who was one of the founders of the Standard Oil Co. During their stay Mrs. McKay and her daughter will be at the Shoreham.

UNDAUNTED by the fact that she had to move the furniture and the food in and out of doors six or seven times because of bad weather at her garden party several weeks ago, Mrs. George Pulver entertained at another one on Monday evening. The weather was even worse this time, but finally the rain let up so the guests could sit outside.

Among those there were Lady Lewis, Edward Gardner, who with his niece, Mary Louise Marsh, leaves soon for a summer at the Dunes Club in Narragansett; Mr. and Mrs. Morris Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Exnicios, and about 15 others.

Audrey Iselin Makes Debut

At the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Iselin, of Westbury, Long Island, on Monday evening, their daughter, Miss Audrey A. Iselin, was presented to society.

Receiving with Miss Iselin at the supper dance in Wheatley Mills were two members of the younger set who are well known in Washington and both of whom were classmates of the debutante at Foxcroft. The first was her cousin, Miss Nancy Iselin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin, of Middleburg, Va. The second was Miss Louise Dillingham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dillingham, of Honolulu. She will remain on Long Island for a short time before joining her parents in Hawaii.

Precedting the affair, which took place in the extensive garden under the usual gayly striped marquee, the three debutantes were honored at an earlier dance the same evening by Mr. and Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin, jr., who are at Wolver Hollow, the Brookville home of Mr. Iselin's mother, who is passing the season in London.

Mrs. F. A. Mason Gives Lunch for Mildred Rogers

Mrs. McMillin Honored By Democratic Women

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

Henderson Manor, 2108 Sixteenth street, was the scene of a reception given yesterday afternoon by the Democratic Woman's National Council in honor of Mrs. Lucille Foster McMillin, civil service commissioner. Mrs. Harry Woodring, wife of the Secretary of War, also was an honored guest.

The affair was to have been a garden party, but the cool, rainy weather changed plans of the committee and the large rooms of the house, the former home of the late Representative Thomas W. Phillips, of Pennsylvania, accomodated the guests comfortably.

The house, which has been closed for several seasons, was built and occupied by Dr. and Mrs. Loren B. Johnson and later purchased by Representative and Mrs. Phillips. Two Washington hostesses spent their girlhood there, Mrs. David S. Barry, the former Miss Neville Johnson, and Mrs. Leander McCormick-Goodhart, the former Miss Janet S. Phillips.

The council president, Mrs. Harry A. Dodderidge, and the guests of honor received yesterday in the drawing room. Others in the receiving line were Mrs. Arthur Codon, former president of the council, and Mrs. A. E. Higgins, corresponding secretary. Mrs. R. Kirkpatrick Noble, chairman of the committee in charge of the tea, is first vice president of the council.

Miss Evelyn Adams, recorder of the General Land Office and parliamentarian of the council, welcomed the guests at the head of the stairs and made the introductions.

Attractive Gowns Add Color to Party

Despite the gloomy day outdoors, the hostesses achieved a gay atmosphere inside with bouquets of gladioli and other summer flowers decorating the rooms.

Mrs. Woodring wore a flowered print on a black ground and a soft, wide-brimmed black straw hat. Mrs. McMillin was in a moss green crepe, trimmed in a quilted flower design around the hem, and with it she wore a brown hat with touches of green in the trimming. Mrs. Dodderidge was in a gown of blue lace and a rose-colored horsehair hat, trimmed in blue of the same shade; Mrs. Condon wore a paisley print of rose color and blue; Mrs. Noble was in a flowered print of green and orchid on a grey ground, with which she wore a rose colored hat, and Mrs. Higgins wore a white flowered dimity.

Miss Adams, who has just returned from New London, where she attended the boat races, wore a white Swiss with tiny black dots, made with a wide Bertha, trimmed in black. In her hair and at the neck of her dress she wore red cherries.

Mrs. Walter H. Maloney Presents Musicale

From the drawing room the guests went to the ballroom, where the program of the afternoon was presented by Mrs. Walter H. Maloney, wife of a member of the coal commission, who recently came to Washington from Kansas City. She delighted the audience with the rich, full quality of her soprano voice. She sang two groups of English songs, accompanied by S. P. Holland. Mrs. Maloney wore a black gown, appliqued in red roses, a black hat and black net gloves.

The table from which punch and cakes were served was arranged at the end of the ballroom, overlooking the garden. Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith served, wearing a costume of black and white with a large black hat. Mrs. Katherine Ikard Nichols, hostess at Henderson Manor, which has recently been opened as a guest house, assisted members of the committee. Her gown was a bright flower print made with a bolero jacket.

Among those at the party was Mrs. Florence Jackson Stoddard, the only living relative of Andrew Jackson. Mrs. Lane Scofield, who has recently returned from a visit at her former home in Ohio, also was present. She is president of the District of Columbia Chapter, Daughters of 1812, and will devote part of her time this summer to plans for the society for the coming season.

Among others there were Mrs. Thomas McAllister, chairman of the woman's division of the Democratic National Committee; Mrs. May Thompson Evans, assistant chairman; Mrs. A. C. Wimberly, Miss Jennie Henderson, Miss Ethel Weaver, Mrs. Vincent Miles, Mrs. Max Walton, Mrs. Virginia McLeod, Miss Mabel Brandt, Mrs. Raymond Smith and Mrs. Daniel Cronin.

OF INTEREST in connection with the recent broadcast, honoring Susan B. Anthony, in which Mrs. Adelaide Johnson, distinguished sculptor, participated, is the fact that 225,000,000 stamps, bearing the picture of Mrs. Johnson's marble portrait of Miss Anthony, have been distributed since 1936. The stamp with its message, "Suffrage for Women," has gone all over the world.

The portrait in marble is in Mrs. Johnson's private gallery, at 230 Maryland avenue northeast. In the crypt of the Capitol is her Woman's Monument, which includes not only Miss Anthony, but also two other pioneers in the suffrage movement, Lucretia Mott and Elizabeth Cady Stanton. Mrs. Johnson, herself a pioneer in the woman's movement, has used her art to immortalize its leaders.

D. C. Officer Held in Killing; Says Man Ran

Rookie's Case Sent to Grand Jury as Colored Worker Dies.

A coroner's jury deliberating less than ten minutes yesterday ordered Rookie Policeman John Sobolewski held for grand jury action in the fatal shooting early Sunday of Wallace McKnight, colored night man at a restaurant.

The policeman was immediately released, however, under $2,000 bond set by the United States District Attorney's office. His case will be presented this morning to the grand jury, according to Assistant District Attorney John J. Wilson.

A capacity crowd of friends of the slain colored man heard Lieut. Arthur C. Belt, commanding officer of the Third Precinct on the night of the shooting, tell the jury "I would have done the same thing under the circumstances."

Disorder Quieted.

Mild disorder was quieted by Coroner A. Magruder McDonald, who threatened to clear the jury room.

George Hayes, counsel for the family of the slain man, asked Lieut. Belt if he was aware "some 59 colored men have been killed in the last five years by police here." Charles Ford, counsel for the policeman, jumped to his feet and objected to the phraseology of the question, whereupon Hayes deleted the word "colored" from his original question.

Sobolewski was not placed on the stand. He calmly listened to the testimony.

Carried Package.

Belt said he was told by Sobolewski the colored man carried a package under his arm. The time was 3:45 a. m. Sobolewski approached the man, and asked him what he had in the package.

"The man told Sobolewski he had his clothes in the package," Belt testified.

There followed several more questions by Sobolewski, the man's employer, where he worked, Belt said.

To these questions McKnight said he worked in the 1700 block of K street northwest, but did not remember the name of his employer.

Dropped Bundle, Fled.

"Sobolewski told me that when the package dropped he could tell by the sound it made when it hit the pavement it contained something other than clothes," Belt stated.

Thereupon, Sobolewski gave chase to the fleeing man.

"He fired in the direction of the fleeing man, after repeatedly yelling to him to halt," Belt related, "the man continued to run after the shot was fired. Sobolewski commandeered an automobile and finally overtook the man beyond Thomas Circle. Here he came upon the man and noticing he was injured, hailed a cab and took him immediately to Emergency Hospital."

Here McKnight died 24 hours after he was brought to the hospital, his death attributed to the to the gun shot. The bullet entered his back between the tenth and eleventh ribs and passed through his liver.

Manual Quoted.

Lieut. Belt was asked if anywhere in the Metropolitan manual could be found a justification for the policeman's act. He answered "yes." A manual was produced and he read from it pointing out a section relating to shooting after a fleeing suspect after other means of arrest had been exhausted.

The manual also justifies shooting of a suspect who has committed a felonious act such as murder, rape or housebreaking. Belt was asked if, in his opinion, Sobolewski had any justification to assume a felony had been committed by McKnight.

"Under the circumstances, yes," he replied.

McKnight was employed by Lofton Wesley, proprietor of Wesley Hall, 1703 K street northwest.

According to Belt the package contained a dressed chicken, a pound of butter, a dozen oranges, 2 pounds of bacon, a dozen bananas, several dozen eggs and other pieces of fruits and vegetables.

Freed by Jury

T. MORRIS WAMPLER, who, with his wife, was declared not guilty of manslaughter charges in the death of Charles Adams, handyman on their Fenwick estate in Maryland.

Panel of 20 Picked For Trial of Scheid

Two days of tension ended in Arlington County Courthouse last night with the qualification of the required 20 jurors for the trial of Edwin Scheid, young Falls Church policeman charged with the murder of Theodore B. Daugherty, Washington musician.

During the two-day examination, 99 veniremen were questioned and 79 disqualified, most of them because they said they had formed an opinion as to the defendant's guilt or innocence. Of the three panels, totaling 110 veniremen, summoned since Monday morning, only 11 had not been examined.

The jury selection probably will be completed in open court today. Commonweath's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas and Frank L. Ball, counsel for the accused "speed" slayer, each will strike four jurors from the list of 20, leaving the 12 men who will decide Scheid's fate.

Policeman Fined $10 On 'Disorder' Charge

A fine of $10 for disorderly conduct was imposed on Policeman Lawrence T. Mahoney, 35, of the Tenth Precinct, yesterday by Judge Walter J. Casey in Police Court. Witnesses testified Mahoney fought four policemen who arrested him after a call had been made that a man was trying to set fire to an automobile.

Wampler Pair Freed in Death Of Hired Man

Wampler

"just as helpless as a baby" when drinking.

Drinking Described.

During the day she said that she, her husband, Buck and Adams had consumed two quarts of whiskey and 12 bottles of beer.

In a surprise move the defense called Sheriff Russell T. Howard to the stand. He testified that in his opinion Wampler was intoxicated that night when he arrived. He said that Wampler was in bed when he arrived, then fell out of bed and had to be helped back.

State's Attorney Edelen in his closing argument had recalled testimony of Mrs. Daniel Thew Wright, wife of a former justice of the District Supreme Court, that about 5:15 in the afternoon she had heard Mrs. Wampler screaming and pleading to someone to "stop it, stop it, stop it I say."

On the stand Mrs. Wampler said that her pleadings were addressed to her dog, which she frequently spoke to in a similar manner.

Paint, Witnesses Say.

Two witnesses were called to testify concerning the spots on Mrs. Wampler's blouse. Nicholas De Angeles, a La Plata cleaner, said that he was given the blouse to clean. He ascertained that it was paint before he set to cleaning it, he said.

Dr. Donald Campbell, Charles County health officer, testified that microscopic examination proved the spots to be paint and not blood.

In denying on the stand that she or her husband struck Adams, Mrs. Wampler described the scene as she came into the garden from their house. Adams jumped up and said "You're simply nothing" and raised his arm as though to strike her, she said.

At that point Buck stepped in and struck Adams "once or twice," she testified. These were all the blows struck, she said, although she had seen Adams hit Wampler sitting on a bench earlier.

Physician Testifies.

On cross-examination by State's Attorney Edelen, Mrs. Wampler said she didn't term it a "fight or a disturbance."

Further bolstering of the defense came from testimony of Dr. James McKavanaugh, of Waldorf, Md., who performed an autopsy on the body on May 26, 6 days after the first autopsy performed on Edelen's orders. He said that he was unable to determine cause of the death because of condition of the body at the time he examined it.

He said numerous discolorations on the face and shoulders were "caused by force," but how the force was applied he said would be "just guess work."

La Plata Meeting Set.

Through Attorneys Henry I. Quinn and Richard W. Galiher, Robey charged that agents of the finance company attacked him on September 17, 1937, as a result of which he suffered a compound skull fracture and other injuries.

1 Dies, 3 Hurt in Va. As Car Hits Hearse

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Warrenton, Va., June 28.—A motorist whose car crashed into a hearse 10 miles north of here today was killed. Three others were seriously injured, including the driver of the hearse.

The impact was so great that a basket containing a body was catapulted through the driver's seat of the hearse.

Frank Gosselin, about 25, of Asheville, N. C., was killed. Those injured were R. L. Moser, Warrenton undertaker, and two passengers in Gosselin's car—Bruce Beaver, 24, of Candler, N. C., and Horace Gardner, 26, of Weaverville, N. C.

The crash took place at Gainesville, where the Lee highway and the John Marshall highway intersect. Moser, hearse driver for the E. J. Sudduth Undertaking Co., of Warrenton, was travelling south on the Lee highway, with the body of a Washington colored man named Woodson.

Police were told that Gosselin ignored a stop sign and sped onto the Lee highway just in time to crash headlong into the hearse. The coupe was demolished.

Sylvan Theater Festival Put Off Until Tonight

Postponed last night because of threatening weather, the second festival of music and drama will be presented tonight at 8 o'clock in the Sylvan Theater.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

Tourists from the interior, who have heard that Washington drinks more Scotch whisky per capita than any other city in the world, are usually amazed at the small amount of drunkenness in the Capital . . . Intoxication is definitely unfashionable; nothing ruins an official or diplomatic career more quickly . . . Saturday night in Wichita or Baton Rouge would be a bacchanal for the sprightliest Washingtonian. Congressmen's wives go home wondering why Podunk's smart set thinks it's fashionable to get stinko.

• • • •

Mere politicians turn green with envy when they get an earful of Lewis lingo . . . The CIO chief swings just about the meanest vocabulary in town; his eloquence beats against you like a heavy surf.

Mr. Messersmith . . . rescued 'em

He likes resonant phrases like "the fabric of Culture" or "the most fearful enemy of domestic strife and savagery" or "the ideal and practice of human freedom" or "our responsibilities to the future of our race."

After a dose of that, most oratory seems anemic.

• • • •

SPIES IN WHITE TIES: Gossip persists that a foreign power whose name begins with a "G" has our eastern seaboard all charted for aerial bombardment; that lectures have been delivered to bombing squadrons, with maps and aerial photographs, by aviators who have flown over our cities; that the bombing planes would be piloted by men familiar with our vulnerable spots from the air. This friendly power has two fast ships which can catapult big bombers into the air within easy range of our coasts.

An eminent Russian scientist, lecturing to the savants of our Bureau of Standards here on astrophysics, used very glibly the letters O, B, A, F, G, K, M, R, N and S, which represent the complete classification of stars. Our learned men marveled aloud at his facility with these symbols, and he let them in on his secret in his quaint Russian accent. "In their right order, these letters make the initials of all the words of a sentence," he explained, blinking roguishly through his thick glasses. "I merely think of this sentence: 'Oh, Be a Fine Girl, Kiss Me Right Now, Sweetheart!' "

PAJAMA PORTRAITS.

YANKEE DIPLOMAT.

A few of our diplomats at the State Department seem veddy, veddy English alongside George Messersmith, who is so American that he seems to have stepped out of a Sinclair Lewis novel . . . He is famed in the Capital as the Assistant Secretary of State who saved several innocent victims from the axe of Herr Hitler's executioner when he was at our Berlin embassy in the garish excitements of the Nazi dawn. He also rescued dozens from concentration camps . . . He sensed early that the only way to deal with a Nazi is firmly—though it was a British diplomat who coined the axiom, "The only way to deal with a Nazi is to kick it in the snout." Mr. Messersmith could not, of course, agree with any treatment so violent; but his diplomacy is of a realistic sort that contrasts favorably with Prime Minister Chamberlain's brand of "realism."

• • • •

GILT OFF THE DOME: Two congressmen celebrated the adjournment of Congress by taking a taxi ride all the way to Detroit to see one more big-league ball game before returning to Class D territory. . . . Senator Pat McCarran remembers your home town more easily than your name—he's apt to greet you, "Hello, Painted Post!" . . . Senator Bulow, of South Dakota, always apologizes to others in the Senate elevators when they're taken past their floors so he can get to his promptly.

"—Il Duce is off his feed."

A little sleuthing reveals that the latest Garner-for-President boom, the one which had the "support" of 30 Senators (each no doubt a candidate for President himself), was launched by none other than Jack Garner himself. He told a friendly and indulgent newsman that he had the support of 30 Senators for the nomination, and lo, his boom soared like a blimp. Each Senator will probably endorse each of the other 95 for the Presidency at least once during the next two years.

Benito Mussolini hasn't been the same since Hitler moved into the Brenner Pass . . . He used to be fairly jovial, always wisecracking, poking you in the ribs, asking Italians back from America what the misguided, democratic Yankees thought of him, his policies, scowls, speeches, and the like . . . Since his pal Adolf took Austria he has withdrawn into himself . . . Italian visitors here say the Berlin-Rome axis is a hollow joke; since the Vienna putsch Hitler has been cussed openly in the best clubs of Rome. In the small bars along the Corso Umberto a popular toast is "To the Axis!" with the free thumb turned down.

Izaak Walton Group Wars On Pollution

Sportsmen Call Meeting to Present Appeals to Authorities.

Seek to Cleanse Potomac, Rock Creek, Other Nearby Streams.

A determined offensive against pollution of the Potomac River and Rock Creek, and their tributaries, will be launched today at a joint meting of Izaak Walton League chapters in this area.

Resolved to clean up the fresh-water streams of Greater Washington, the outdoorsmen will present the findings of an exhaustive survey of Federal, District and Maryland State and county officials at the meeting, to be held at National Park College, Forest Glen, Md.

The officials will be guests of the organization, DeWitt Harry, president of Washington chapter, said yesterday in announcing plans for the conference. It will open at 4 p. m. and all persons interested in the pollution problem are invited to attend, Harry declared.

Finnan Lauds Aims.

C. Marshall Finnan, superintendent of National Capital Parks, lauded the objective of today's session, saying stream pollution is one of the most important problems confronting the District.

"Conditions were perfectly vile last week when Rock Creek was low," he said.

While admitting that the situation could be improved, J. B. Gordon, District director of sanitary engineering, emphasized that no raw, undiluted sewage is being dumped into Rock Creek from District sources. Under the WPA program, he said the creek's pollution problem has been relieved, in Montgomery County. Pending PWA projects for sewer conversion in the upper northwest section will further abate the nuisance, he added.

Nolen Blames Growth.

John Nolen, jr., planning director of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, explained increased contamination of Rock Creek is due largely to the rapid growth of communities in its drainage area in recent years.

Rock Creek could be stocked with catfish, bluegills, bream and, in some sections, bass if the stream could be cleansed, said Glen C. Leach, chief fish culturist of the Bureau of Fisheries.

Highlight of today's meeting will be the presentation of a large-scale map showing pollution sources of the Potomac, Rock Creek and their branches. It will be explained by Abner L. Roe, chairman of the pollution control committee of Bethesda-Chevy Chase Chapter, Izaak Walton League.

150 Child Cripples Cruise on Potomac For Three Hours

Some 150 of Washington's crippled children cruised down the Potomac yesterday on the fourth annual boat-ride sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce. The trip was made on the City of Washington, donated for the day by the Wilson Line.

The children, who came from local institutions for the crippled, were entertained by games during the three-hour cruise. They were provided refreshments by the Carry Ice Cream Co. In charge of the outing was Dr. J. A. Nolan, of the commerce body.

Display Parley Lists Speakers At Session Today

"What a Display Man Should Do," is the subject of an address to be made by Al Parke, of Canton, Ohio, at a meeting of the International Association of Display Men at the Mayflower Hotel this morning.

Also scheduled to address the meeting are Earl Elhart, editor of Retailing Magazine of New York; Jacob Steinberg, legal adviser of the association, and Joseph Levine, director of the retail sales promotion division of The Gray Agency of New York. A business session will be headed by Syl C. Rieser, managing director of the association.

Afternoon sessions will be given over to election of officers while a banquet will be given tonight at the Shoreham Hotel. A board meeting and final visit to manufacturers' exhibits will conclude the organization's five-day convention here tomorrow.

Bachelor Dinner Given Court Clerk Driscoll

Charles H. Driscoll, veteran clerk of the Police Court, was honor guest at a bachelor dinner at the Shoreham last night on the eve of his marriage to Miss Ann Albach.

His hosts were the Police Court lawyers. Guests of honor included the four police court judges—John P. McMahon, Hobart Newman, Walter Casey and Edward Curran. About 100 attended. Joseph (Jiggs) Donohue was toastmaster.

'Big Top' May Yet Carry On as Heads Confer, Encouraged by Nation's Protest at Its Closing

Associated Press Photos.

The circus girls in the upper picture are wondering how it'll all turn out. They are (left to right) Estelle Clark, bareback rider; Charlotte Shive, aerialist; Marjorie Naitta, tight wire walker, and Lucia Maschino, acrobat. The camels are shown as they were fed at Potomac Yards as the Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey Circus stopped for the night.

The "greatest show on earth" may still complete its 1938 season.

Closed by a combination of labor and boxoffice obstacles, the Ringling Bros. & Barnum and Bailey Circus came to Washington late yesterday en route to winter quarters, but early this morning its heads were discussing the possibility of returning to the road.

Significantly, the show—91 carloads of performers, officials, workmen, canvas, equipment and animals—was scheduled to remain in Alexandria's Potomac yards overnight. Railway dispatchers said they had received no orders to route the wheeled city south of Alexandria.

Although no statement was issued by the circus, it was learned that John Ringling North, 24-year-old executive head; his younger brother, Henry Ringling North, and General Manager George Smith were still in conference well past midnight, debating chances of resuming the abbreviated tour.

Bound for winter quarters in Sarasota, Fla., out of Scranton, Pa., where the circus was forced to shut down last week when the American Federation of Actors refused to accept a 25 per cent wage cut for its members, the show's heads were prompted to discuss chances of carrying on by a huge batch of telegrams from all parts of the country, pleading against ending circus tradition.

They are expected to announce their decision today.

Melvin D. Hildreth, president of the National Circus Fans Association and prominent Washington attorney, went down to the yards to commiserate with the troupers. First, however, he sent a telegram to William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

It said:

"As president of the Circus Fans Association, with members in every State in the Union, may I appeal to you as president of the American Federation of Labor to save the circus for the children of these United States.

"The press of the country is unfairly blaming the A. F. L. for its destruction, which is not true, because union musicians and union billposters have been put out of work.

"Can you not call for a report and demand an investigation into this matter and save the circus for the performers who want to go on and for those of us who view its annual visit as a great American experience?"

But Green was out of the city yesterday, to be gone for a couple of days, according to his office, which said the plea would be considered.

In the yards the reporter spied Larry Davis, head bull (elephant) man and 26 years in show business. What did he think of the shutdown?

"Think? What is there to think? The performers and many of the workmen were willing to take the 25 per cent pay cut. They were simply outnumbered by the Whitehead crowd. (Ralph Whitehead, executive secretary of the American Federation of Actors, refused to accept the wage slash.)

"Take the 30 men working elephants under me," Davis continued. "Twenty-one of them were agreeable to the reduction, that the show might go on and their jobs with it. But it's all over now."

Out of one of the sleeping cars jumped Frank Braden, the show's press agent. How about it, Frank?

"It looks like the jig's up, at least for this season, but wotta'ell. Job gone, everyone out of work—it's screwy."

That's the word they had for it—"screwy"—down in the coaches with the lesser hired help.

"Six weeks ago tonight we play in Washington to big crowds," he said. "Now we go back, to what, who knows?"

The show carries—or carried—1,600 men and women. Most of them from roustabouts to such high salaried performers as the lion trainer, Capt. Terrell Jacobs, will go back to Sarasota. A few stayed behind when the circus was loaded at Scranton Monday. Others will drop off at their homes as the trains proceed southward—if they go southward.

Great Ideas Vital to World, Westminster Conference Told

Nothing is more important to the world than a great idea at the proper time, said Dr. J. Lowrey Fendrich, jr., speaking last evening at a Westminster Summer Conference rally at Hamline Methodist Church, held under the auspices of the Organized Bible Class Association of the District.

Urging his hearers to become "servants of great ideas," Dr. Fendrich, pastor of the Metropolitan Presbyterian Church, declared, "I would rather be used as the instrument of a great idea than be intrinsically great."

Warning against the common tendency to become "servants of vicious ideas," he condemned men who opened their minds to the ideas of greed and selfishness that resulted in a war which almost wrecked civilization.

Page McK. Etchison, Religious Work Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and president of the Bible Class Association, presided. Speakers included George Harris, executive secretary of the group, and Dr. W. H. Burgan, Hamline clergyman.

Dr. Charles E. Resser, president of the D. C. Sunday School Association, offered a motion extending greetings to the International Council of Religious Education now meeting in Columbus, Ohio. Miss E. a Zahn, a delegate from the Bible Class organization, is one of the 11 local persons attending. William Schmucker was song-leader at the rally, which was attended by over 200 persons, among them a delegation from Potomac, Md.

Board Names T. W. Gosling For Schools

Junior Red Cross Chief Is Recommended to Head 'Highs.'

If Approved, He'll Take Place Vacated by Dr. Harvey Smith.

Dr. Thomas W. Gosling, national director of the American Junior Red Cross, yesterday was recommended by the personnel committee of the Board of Education for assistant superintendent in charge of senior high schools.

If the committee's recommendation is followed by the board at its meeting Friday, Dr. Gosling, who had wide experience as an educator and administrator, will succeed Dr. Harvey A. Smith, who resigned effective July 4 to become superintendent of schools at Lancaster, Pa.

Principals for Him.

Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, informed the committee that the high school principals in divisons 7-9 were of the unanimous opinion that Dr. Gosling was the best of four candidates for the post.

The principals, in a memorandum to Dr. Ballou, said they believed Dr. Gosling's "broad experience and training would enable him to perform outstanding service." The memorandum was signed by F. C. Daniel, principal of McKinley High School.

In a letter transmitting the memorandum to the committee, Dr. Ballou revealed that the principals at conferences held to select a candidate for indorsement, had "indicated they knew of no person in the school system whom they would propose for the position."

Ballou Concurs.

Dr. Ballou said he concurred in the finding of the principals. He added that he had conferred with the other assistant school superintendents who, he said, "join with the principals in recommending the appointment."

At the same meeting the committee decided to recommend to the board the appointment of Mrs. Elise Z. Watkins as board secretary. Mrs. Watkins, secretary of Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, board president, has been acting secretary of the board since the resignation last month of Charles S. Deggs.

Should the board accept the recommendation of the committee which is headed by its vice president, Robert A. Mauer, it will break a long-established policy of making such appointments from within the school system. None of the senior or junior high school principals were candidates for the position.

Explains Reluctance.

Dr. Smith offered an explanation of their reluctance to apply for the post. He pointed out that the difference in salary is slight and, in his opinion, not sufficient compensation for resigning an association with "boys and girls to come down to the Franklin Building and sit all day at a desk."

Dr. Gosling holds degrees of A. B. and A. M. from Yale University and a Ph. D. from the University of Cincinnati.

He was a teacher and school principal in Cincinnati (Ohio) schools until 1918 when he became supervisor of high schools in the Wisconsin State Department of Public Instruction. In 1921 he was made superintendent in Madison, Wis., and in 1928 went to Akron, Ohio to take a similar post until accepting his present position with the Red Cross in 1934.

He has taught at summer sessions at Miami, University of Ohio, Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore; the universities of California, Wyoming and Wisconsin, New York University, Ohio State, and the University of Chicago.

In his letter to the committee, Dr. Ballou emphasized the need of finding an adequately experienced successor to Dr. Smith, "especially at this time when four of the seven high school principals are relatively inexperienced, having served less than three years.

Four applicants were considered by the principals. They were, in addition to Dr. Gosling, Dr. Ellis Haworth, a professor of natural sciences at Wilson Teachers College; Dr. William H. Bristow and Dr. Clyde C. Huber.

Landis Gets Life As Wife's Last Words Are Told

Doctor Hears Mate Struck Her Twice, District Attorney Reveals.

The dying statement of Mrs. Blanche Gertrude Landis, 22, accusing her husband, James L. Landis, of her murder, was revealed yesterday by the United States attorney's office as Landis was given a life sentence by Justice Jesse C. Adkins.

The statement, which was not admitted as evidence against Landis in the trial, was made by Mrs. Landis March 24 in the presence of Dr. J. W. Braden, of Casualty Hospital, and Detective Sergt. John W. Wise, of the homicide squad.

Landis, who will be eligible for parole at the end of 15 years, received his sentence without any outward emotion after Jean Boardman, his counsel, had made a vain plea for a light sentence.

Mrs. Landis' dying statement was not admitted in the trial because the Casualty Hospital physician testified that he did not tell her that she was going to die before he questioned her.

The statement reveals, however, that Dr. Braden did advise Mrs. Landis that she "may die," and "had better tell the truth."

"Well, you better get my Jimmy here so I can tell him my condition," Mrs. Landis said.

Asked whether she was hit in the car or on the street, Mrs. Landis replied:

"Well, to begin with he hit me in the car."

"Then did he push you out or did you get out?" Dr. Braden asked.

"I got out. I was so nervous I didn't know what I was doing," she said.

"Then he struck you again?" asked Dr. Braden.

"He struck me and I went unconscious," said Mrs. Landis.

"You mean your husband?" asked the doctor.

"Yes," said the wife.

"Do you remember getting choked," asked Dr. Braden.

"I do not remember," said Mrs. Landis as she lapsed into unconsciousness.

Larger Fight On Venereal Disease Sped

Clinic and Gallinger Facilities, Staffs to Be Expanded.

Health Officer George C. Ruhland yesterday formulated a four-point plan to improve treatment of venereal disease patients here, following word from the United States Public Health Service that $16,860 would be allotted the District as its share of the $3,000,000 Federal anti-syphilis act.

The plan includes:

Addition of several physicians and nurses to clinic and hospital staff.

Enlargement of medical-social work, which means a more elaborate system of "follow-up" on active cases of those infected.

Expansion of laboratory facilities.

Dr. Daniel L. Seckinger, assistant health officer, said the District health department had available approximately $25,000, making a total of $41,860 to fight syphilis.

Last year clinic and the hospital treated 6,711 patients on 90,500 visits. It is expected many more will be treated and diagnosed under the enlarged plan.

At the present time the clinic is open only two nights a week, Seckinger said. He expects it to be made available for the sick more often because of the Federal aid.

The check-up system of infected patients has been largely handled by WPA workers, Seckinger pointed out. Under the new plan it is expected experienced social workers who specialize in this field will be added.

The proposed plans, although as yet not complete, include also a more thorough laboratory check-up of patients. Private physicians knowing any indigent patients will be requested to send them to the clinics.

Mysterious Blast, Heard Two Blocks, Just Bursting Tire

A mysterious explosion which smashed a plate-glass door and marred several pianos at the F. A. North Piano showroom at 908 Eleventh street southwest, early yesterday, was only a blowout, it was decided last night.

A Bureau of Standards scientist "solved" the case after examining a piece of truck tire casing which was found in the showroom. He said the piece was hurled by air pressure, probably from a tire.

The blast which awakened residents within a two-block radius occurred at 4 a. m. yesterday. It came less than 24 hours after the main office of the North company had received a "ransom" note demanding $500 on the threat that their establishment would be bombed.

18 WASHINGTON: WEDNESDAY, JUNE 29, 1938 ★★★

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Boston, June 28.—On the day that War Admiral is shorn of his racing plates and is retired to stud duty on the same Lexington, Ky., farm that now houses Man O' War, Mr. Samuel Riddle will be a happy and grateful man.

Mr. Riddle said so today. He said so at the Suffolk Downs track where tomorrow the silken-coated son of Man O' War will take the track as an odds-on favorite to win the Massachusetts Handicap and add $50,000 to the Riddle coffers.

POVICH

Mr. Riddle is an old man. He is weary of high-pressure horse racing, he said. These days, he is accompanied by his personal physician wherever he goes. He has had his day in the racing sun. Too many of them, in fact, he says. He hopes he never owns another Man O'War, or another Crusader, or another War Admiral.

* * * *

"Truthfully, I hope I don't," said Mr. Riddle. "Those kind of horses always make too much trouble. I am a peace-loving man and I am getting old. When you own a War Admiral or a Man O' War, there is too much high-pressure racing. Too much bickering over purses and weights and match races. I would prefer to be left alone, but my good horses won't let me.

"The happiest days of my life in racing were the eras between Man o'War and Crusader, and between Crusader and War Admiral. In those days I owned and raced good horses, but none of them were the phenomenal kind. I could run them as I pleased and where I pleased and track promoters were not annoying me.

"But now, it's different. They post such huge purses that I must run War Admiral. When I do not choose to run him, they say I am afraid of the opposition. Racing secretaries pester me for his entry and I feel sometimes that I am a slave to my horse's fame. Every race now is something of a grand event, and that really isn't horse racing."

The man can hardly be accused of being coldly mercernary about his horse racing. In fact, to hear him tell it, it is his great misfortune to breed a transcendent turf figure. He would prefer to take an inconspicuous part in the racing scheme, for he shuns the publicity and likes best of all to watch his horses run in their class.

"Three horses I have owned I could have sold for a million dollars," said Mr. Riddle. "Those three were, of course, Man o'War, Crusader and War Admiral. But I raised my horses for the satisfaction of seeing them run in my colors. I don't prefer to breed them for the market.

"I was offered $500,000 for Man o' War by Mr. Waggoner, the Texas multimillionaire, but I wouldn't part with him. Why, when I wouldn't sell, Mr. Waggoner thought I was demanding more money for the horse and he told me to name my price and he'd pay it. I couldn't seem to make him understand that I didn't want to sell the horse.

"They offered me $250,000 for Crusader a few years later, and I turned that down. That's where I made a mistake, for three weeks later Crusader was kicked by Peanuts in the Dwyer Stakes and I had to retire him. He would have gone on as a great horse. Don't forget, he's the only horse that ever won two Suburbans.

"Right now, the offer for War Admiral is $300,000. But I don't choose to sell. The Riddle family won't part with that Man o' War line. It's something to live for and look back on."

* * * *

There isn't much doubt that the old gentleman loves those three horses—Man o' War, the daddy, and his two illustrious sons, Crusader and War Admiral. There was a break in his voice as he mentioned Crusader, the horse that broke down before reaching the full bloom of his racing career, and you guessed perhaps that this one was his favorite.

But no, Mr. Riddle was not ready to concede that Crusader could have beaten Man o' War or War Admiral. "I wouldn't bet on that," he said simply.

* * * *

So we asked him what his guess would be if War Admiral, Crusader and Man o' War were to have met in the same race at equal weights. Who did Mr. Riddle think would win that race?

"Well," said Mr. Riddle, "I've often thought about that race. And I have two pretty definite ideas about what would happen."

And what are they, Mr. Riddle?

And your second idea about the race, Mr. Riddle?

"Well, Man o' War would set a new record for the distance. Because he'd have to!"

Seabiscuit May Not Race War Admiral

By the Associated Press.

Boston, June 28. — The names of ten horses, including those of War Admiral and Seabiscuit, tonight were in the entry hopper for tomorrow's $50,000 Massachusetts Handicap at Suffolk Downs, but whether Seabiscuit would go postward rested in the laps of New English's fickle weather gods.

"We're still on the fence," C. S. Howard, Seabiscuit's owner, said as the rain that started on Sunday morning continued.

"It it keeps raining and the track remains sloppy, we'll run, but if it stops and the track becomes holding and sticky, we won't like it. Seabiscuit simply can't do himself justice on a heavy track and the mud is becoming heavier. But we won't decide until tomorrow forenoon, probably not before 10 o'clock.

Expect 50,000 Crowd.

With national figures from Hollywood and the world of sports already in town, track officials expected 50,000—the largest crowd ever to see a horse race here—if the weather is fair, but paradoxically, that was precisely the condition that probably would force Howard to scratch his entry from the mile and an eighth test.

After three days of rain, railbirds explained, there was bound to be a holding track if the weather cleared, so the chief hope for the long-awaited clash, scheduled to start at 4:45 p. m. (Eastern standard time) was for more rain.

Admiral at No. 10.

Meanwhile, War Admiral, great son of Man o' War, drew the outside position, No. 10, while Seabiscuit drew No. 8. Separating the two will be Hal Price Headley's speedy Menow.

John Hay Whitney's Flying Scot drew the No. 1 position, and at 12 to 1, seemed to have considerable support partly because he will go in at only 101 pounds as against the 130 that both the Admiral and the Biscuit will carry.

Handicappers have made War Admiral a 6-5 favorite on the advance line. Seabiscuit is the second choice at 2-1. In addition to these two, Menow and Flying Scot, Mrs. Emil Denemark's Finance and War Minstrel, Mrs. Doris Wood's Busy K., W. V. McGrath's Peligroso II, Ben Lister's Old Comrade and Mrs. F. C. Dunn's Singers Folly are listed to go to the post.

Lawrin and Dauber In Hollywood Test.

Inglewood, Calif., June 28 (AP).—Lawrin and Dauber, two of the Nation's greatest 3-year-olds, were named today, along with two other candidates, to run in the $50,000 added American 3-year-old championship purse at Hollywood Park tomorrow.

Wing and Wing and Rommy completed the field, but few viewed them as anything but dummies for decorative purposes and whatever long-shot money they might draw into the betting rings.

To Lawrin, Herbert M. Woolf's Kenturck Derby champion, and William duPont's Dauber, second in the Kentucky classic and later winner of the historic Preakness, fell all the attention and contention.

Stagehand and other sought after horses remained in the East, leaving Lawrin and Dauber in a battle that looms as a match race in every way except name.

Dizzy Dean's Arm Called "Almost Cured."

His report said the torn muscles in Dean's right shoulder, jerked loose as Diz warmed up in the bullpen during a double-header with the Giants two weeks ago, virtually had healed and Dean may be allowed to do some practice pitching "in a few days."

Cards Trim Cubs, 9 to 3

Score 7 Runs in Third; Warneke in Form.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 28.—The St. Louis Cardinals combined a seven-run blast in the third inning with some excellent pitching by Lon Warneke today to beat the Chicago Cubs, 9 to 3.

Warneke held the Cubs to seven hits while his mates pounded Tex Carleton, Charlie Root and Al Epperly for 13 hits. One was a home run with two on by Pepper Martin, who drove in four of the nine Cardinal runs.

The Gashouse Gang knocked Carleton out of the box in the big third, to account for Carleton's seventh defeat of the season and Warneke's sixth triumph.

A crowd of 9,830 saw the Cubs slip back to a game and a half behind the second-place Cincinnati Reds, who won over Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Moody and Misses Jacobs and Marble Advance in Wimbledon Tennis Title Tourney

By the Associated Press.

Wimbledon, England, June 28.—California all but annexed the tennis world today.

Helen Wills Moody's contribution was the British Empire. She thrashed pretty Kay Stammers, 6—2, 6—1.

Alice Marble took care of the French. She routed Mme. Rene Mathieu, 6—2, 6—3.

And just when little Sarah Palfrey Fabyan was marching on Germany and Denmark, a gust of wind blew her away and Hild Krahwinkel Sperling, tall angular German girl who married a Dane, beat her, 4—6, 6—4, 6—4.

Thus at the end of one of America's great days at Wimbledon only Mme. Sperling stood out against the challenge of the "big three" in women's singles.

Miss Jacobs will play Miss Marble in the semifinals on Thursday, while Mrs. Moody is attempting to stop Mme. Sperling, who beat her in the recent London championships.

The odds favor Miss Marble and Mrs. Moody to win, but Wimbledon is hoping that Miss Jacobs comes through and gets a chance to avenge her historic defeat by Mrs. Moody in the 1935 finals. Mrs. Moody won that particular match and her seventh Wimbledon championship with a spectacular rally in the third set.

Miss Jacobs' comeback is the story of this tournament. She has not been really well for a year. For two weeks before the tournament she carried her right arm in a sling as a result of a nerve injury. Ten pounds underweight, she collapsed an hour before her second round match.

Still, here she is in the semifinal, having eliminated on successive days, Margaret Scriven, British ace, and "Ja-Ja," both of whom were seeded while she was not.

Miss Jacobs might have been playing chess out there, her plan was so subtle and so shrewdly executed. Obviously she decided to stay away from "Ja-Ja's" withering forehand. Every shot she could aim went spinning to the backhand and when she did play to the forehand side she gave the Polish girl nothing but a spinning ball to hit.

The tip-off of the entire match came in the fourth game when Helen overcame a 0—40 deficit and won the game to take a 3—1 lead. She never was headed; in fact, never even looked troubled after that.

So piercing were Helen's drives that "Jed" won only two games off her own service. The other three she got were achieved against Miss Jacobs' service.

Miss Marble was only once in trouble against the canny Mme. Mathieu, who holds the French title. After jumping into a 4—1 lead and riding it to victory in the first set, the San Francisco girl let Mme. Mathieu get a 3—1 lead in the second. That must have made Alice mad for she started going to the net and ran away with the next five games with the loss of exactly 5 points.

Ruth Has Narrow Escape in Crash.

Ridgewood, N. J., June 28 (AP). Babe Ruth had a narrow escape from injury late today when his car brushed another coming in the opposite direction, swerved 30 feet across a road and turned on its side as it hit a low stone wall.

The home run king, alone in the car, stepped out unscathed.

Ruth's car was badly damaged. The other machine, driven by Miss Rose Beck, remained on the road and was only slightly damaged.

Atlantan Suffers Hand Injury in Net Play.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 28.—Bobby Riggs, of Chicago, seeking his third straight National Clay Courts Tennis championship, went into the finals today when his opponent, Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, of Atlanta, was forced to default because of a blistered hand.

Riggs will meet twelfth-seeded Gardner Mulloy, of Miami, Fla., tomorrow, and a victory would make him the third player to win the event three or more times. Big Bill Tilden and Grant had accomplished the feat previously.

In the Grant-Riggs match today, Riggs had taken the first set, 6—3, and they were 6-all in the second when Grant was forced to retire because a blister, the size of a half dollar, broke open in play and he was advised not to continue. The

Clip Giants' Lead to 1½; Defeat Jinx

Win First Game, Since August 11, 1936, at Forbes Field.

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, June 28.—The Cincinnati Reds, who have come to rely on Johnny Vander Meer as much as Johnnie relies on his pay check, accomplished a lot of things today behind another of the young southpaw's handsome pitching jobs.

They beat the Pirates, 5 to 2; cut the New York Giants' National League lead to a game and a half; widened their margin over the third-place Cubs by a full game, and chalked up their first triumph in 22 appearances at Forbes Field. They hadn't won here since the second game of a double-header on August 11, 1936.

Vander Meer, after getting off to a shaky start, settled down and pitched one-hit ball for the last six innings. In gaining his tenth victory of the season and his ninth in succession, he allowed a total of six hits and also struck out six, while giving only two bases on balls.

Behind him the Reds let loose a 14-hit attack that sent Russ Bauers to the showers in the seventh. Frank McCormick led the parade with four singles in five trips to the plate; Ival Goodman got three and Ernie Lombardi drove home three runs with a pair of safeties.

Successive singles by McCormick, Goodman and Lombardi got Vander Meer off to a one-run lead in the first, but the Reds fell behind an inning later when the Pirates scored both their runs on doubles by Johnny Rizzo and Al Todd and a single by Pep Young.

Singles by Berger, McCormick, Craft and Riggs, a base on balls and Lombardi's infield out gave Cincinnati two more and the lead in the sixth, and they routed Bauers in the seventh on successive hits by Frey, Goodman, McCormick and Lombardi. Mace Brown finished on the mound for Pittsburgh.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, June 28.—A crowd of 18,000 saw the league-leading Indians belt Tommy Bridges for five runs in the second inning and then hang on to gain a 5-4 decision over the Detroit Tigers that ran the Indians' American League to 4½ games over the out-rained Yankees.

Jeff Heath led off on Bridges with a triple; Earl Averill walked, and both came riding home as Hal Trosby boosted his eleventh homer over the rightfield wall. A moment later Ken Keltner followed that with a terrific blast that cleared the centerfield fence, and when Frankie Pytlak, the next batter, singled, Bridges was yanked in favor of Southpaw Harry Eisenstat.

The Indians got one more run and one hit before the former Brooklyn schoolboy could retire the side, but from then on they didn't even come close to the plate. Eisenstat gave them only three more hits, all singles, and not a man got past first.

Navy's Victory Makes Harvard Crew Champion

By Alan Gould.

Associated Press Sports Editor.

New York, June 28.—Navy's stirring victory in the big boat race at Poughkeepsie automatically gives Harvard's great crew the No. 1 claim to intercollegiate varsity supremacy for 1938 . . . The Crimson, only unbeaten varsity boatload in the country, included Navy among its victims in capturing the Eastern "sprint" championship . . . There's no telling what would have happened over the 4-mile route but Harvard outrowed the sailors by a length at one mile and three quarters and did it on the Navy's own course . . .

* * * *

Navy's record time of 18:19 on the Hudson, compared with Harvard's winning 20:20 for the same 4-mile distance on the Thames River, doesn't mean what it seems . . . The Thames course is much "slower," especially upstream, whereas the Hudson is like grease when the fleet catches the full sweep of the tide, as happened yesterday . . . Not since Yale was on top in 1924, the year the Elis won the Olympic championship at Paris, has either Yale or Harvard had so good a claim to national honors as the Crimson now enjoys . . . There's something besides "ivy" nowadays in the "old east."

Two of the greatest stroke oars of the current college generation, Don Hume, of Washington, and Spike Chase, of Harvard, have closed their campus careers . . . Harry Stuhldreher, the old "horseman" who now coaches Wisconsin's footballers, warns the Big Ten to look out for Iowa this fall . . . Harry, togged out in a nautical sou'wester, was at Poughkeepsie to cheer Wisconsin's best varsity crew since the Badgers were runners-up to Washington in 1924.

Ted Williams, the kid outfielder from the West Coast optioned to Minneapolis by the Boston Red Sox, is the home-run sensation of the American Association . . . Looks like the All Stars passed up a couple of sentimental bets, the National by not selecting Babe Ruth for coaching duty against his old mates, and the American by passing up Al Simmons, former batting king, who has been flogging the ball lately in old-time cleanup fashion . . . It's still a good guess that, if and when the Brooklyns make a managerial shift, Chuck Dressen will have a better chance of landing the job than Babe Ruth.

Down In Front

By Richards Vidmer.

New York, June 28.—The rain came down in silver sheets, irritating the surface of the Hudson's angry waters, and the wind whistled through the rigging of the ships afloat at the finish of the 4-mile course. Overhead the heavens scowled and a murky scene usually so gay with bright colors and a holiday spirit.

VIDMER.

"God help the poor sailors on a day like this," someone murmured, and at the moment it seemed an appropriate remark. For the Navy didn't seem to have a chance. Its shell was bobbing at the mooring boats along with six other shells and one of the others was California and another was Washington.

For six long years these two had ruled the Hudson when the crews assembled for the Poughkeepsie Regatta and it seemed certain that they would continue to rule. Already during the afternoon California's freshmen had won their heat with Washington second, and Washington's junior varsity had won their heat with California second. It looked as though the varsity event would develop into a two-crew race with the Far Western entries sweeping the river even more decisively than the rain that kept coming down in silver sheets.

But eight sturdy oarsmen and a little fellow with a stop watch around his neck and a megaphone strapped to his head sat grim and silent and determined in the Navy shell. Most of them had been there before. They had been there in 1936, when they came speeding down the last long mile in front only to be overtaken by Washington's Huskies before the finish line was crossed. They had been there last June, when they had led the way as the judge's boat hove into view—but again they had been passed by Washington.

* * * *

Before the Gun.

This time they sat there remembering these things—and others. They remembered the two beatings they had taken and how each time apparent victory had been snatched from their grasp.

They remembered that their coach, Buck Walsh, lay on a hospital cot up the bank of the river toward Vassar College, lay there helpless with an injured spine and hoping with all his heart that his boys would be able to get along without him. They remembered the six gaunt, gray destroyers anchored in the river that they had passed as they paddled up to the starting line, and they knew that aboard those great gray ships were 550 midshipmen, all believing that their Navy crew would win.

* * * *

And when Julian Curtis sang out, "Are you ready?" and a few seconds later fired the starting gun, the Middies bent their backs to their task. The wind and rain beat in their faces and the little cox's voice beat in their ears, but through their brains must have beat a medley of thoughts:

* * * *

Four-Mile Rhythm.

"Buck is up there in the hospital . . . he can't see us now . . . but he'll be able to see us in the last half mile . . . We've got to be up . . . for Buck . . . those destroyers down below the bridge are packed with Navy men . . . Middies . . . officers . . . gobs . . . and everyone of them is pulling for us . . . pulling for us . . . pulling . . . pulling . . . We've got to pull . . . pull . . ."

And as the miles slipped by the thoughts perhaps became blurred as the oarsmen moved back and forth, with their backs bent before their knees stiffened out and every bit of strength in their bodies was concentrated in their legs and arms as the shell was driven through the waters. Back and forth . . . back and forth . . . watch the man ahead . . . make it smooth . . . and pull! . . . Slow on the slide . . . and pull!

"We're out in front now. Easy. Easy."

The voice of the coxswain rang down the length of the shell. They were passing the mil emark . . . the two mile mark . . . they could see California and Washington to their left . . . three miles and they still were in front . . . but California was moving up . . . bit by bit . . . seat by seat . . .

* * * *

Stocklinski, Lynch Beat Young Stars

Farrin, Howard, Breese, Latona, Adair, Baker Also Win.

By Jack Munhall.

Dave Johnsen and Johnny Hatch, two downy-cheeked youngsters who had been showing little respect for their elders in the District of Columbia tennis championships were eliminated yesterday as play in the annual tournament continued on a more even keel at Columbia Country Club.

Though the two upstarts received their more or less expected whippings the day was not without surprise and the fairly large gallery which alternated at watching matches and scooting for cover between showers was treated to some of the finest tennis seen in the three days of competition.

The upshot of it all was that Hugh Lynch, second seeded player; Ray Stocklinski, veteran public parks player, and Lieut. James Farrin, seeded sixth, moved into the quarterfinals, and other favorites as Bill Breese, Tony Latona, Lieut. Bill Howard and Lieut. Stan Robinson, reached the third.

Lynch Beats Johnsen.

Lynch, recent winner of the City of Washington tournament, turned back Johnsen, his doubles partner, in three sets, 6—0, 3—6, 6—1. Stocklinski defeated Natch in three sets, 6—0, 6—8, 6—1, and Farrin dumped Tom Moorhead, 6—1, 6—3.

"Baron" Breese, whose biggest difficulty at present is finding "an extremely beautiful blond doubles partner," swung into action for the first time and more than justified his No. 4 seeding.

In his opening match he polished off Tom Miller in approximately 20 minutes and without the loss of a single game, 6—0, 6—0. And then without even a rest he turned back George Herbert, 6—3, 6—3

Tony Latona, seeded fifth, also was impressive in his 6—0, 6—0 triumph over big Bill Thompson.

Baker Upsets Shore.

The major upset of the afternoon was produced by Joel Baker who outlasted Frank Shore, a fellow public parks player, after three torrid sets, 6—2, 3—6, 7—5. Though neither man was seeded, Shore had been expected to win rather easily.

The doubles play which opened yesterday found Lynch and Johnson, third-seeded combination, moving all the way into the third round by trouncing Willoughby and Lambert, 6—1, 6—1.

Probably most attractive is the fourth-round encounter at 6:30 p. m. between Don Garber, whose great play has belied his unseeded ranking, and "Baron" Breese. The other headliners bring together Ralph (Buddy) Adair, promising youngster, and Lieut. Stan Robinson, the seventh-seeded player at 5:30 and Lieut. Howard and Tony Latona at the same hour.

New York Athletic Solons Warn Galento Not to Fight J. H. Lewis

Light-Heavyweight King's Failure to Accept Tiger Jack Fox Challenge Is Hub of Argument.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 28.—The New York State Athletic Commission today warned Tony Galento, Orange, N. J., heavyweight, that they would take action against him if he went through with his bout with Light-heavy weight Champion John Henry Lewis, scheduled for Philadelphia July 26.

The commission based its warning on the fact that Lewis has refused to accept a challenge to defend his title against Tiger Jack Fox, of Spokane, Wash., and that they will not permit any fighter licensed in New York to meet Lewis until he does accept the challenge.

Brig. Gen. John J. Phelan, chairman of the commission, said that no action could be taken against Lewis himself inasmuch as the titleholder has not renewed his license in New York State.

Galento appeared at today's commission meeting with his lawyer, Charles White. After the meeting White announced that Galento would go through with the Lewis bout.

"The commission's action in threatening Galento," the lawyer explained, "was tantamount to asking Tony to commit a breach of contract with Promoter Herman Tayor, of Philadelphia." Galento had told the commission that he signed a contract with Taylor on May 13.

Joe Jacobs, Galento's manager in New York State, also said that the "Newark Night-stick" would fulfill his date with Lewis.

Maryland Tourney Scheduled Today

The first of the Maryland State Golf Association's three-in-one one-day tournaments to be played in the District, is scheduled tomorrow at Chevy Chase.

Maryland and District professionals will play in a pro sweepstakes event and will pair with three amateur partners in a pro-amateur, the simon-pures allowed half their handicaps.

The amateurs will also play in an 18-hole handicap event, in classes A, B and C. All participants must have an official 1938 State handicap card.

Weather Still Threatens in Boston; Marcum to Hurl for Bosox.

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

Boston, June 28.—A cold, driving rain—one of the old-fashioned Nor'easters that Boston is noted for among other things—today washed out the scheduled opener of the Nats' Red Sox series and threatened a further delay.

Tonight as the Nats crept into their trundle beds after an unexpected holiday at the races, the rain was still on a 72-hour binge and there was serious doubt that a game could be played tomorrow.

If it is, Manager Bucky Harris will give Jimmy DeShong a baseball and tell him to go out there and beat the Red Sox. Harris is always telling his team to beat the Red Sox. He has never forgiven the Red Sox for firing him as manager at the end of the 1934 season and he is also nursing a new wound.

He remembers all to vividly that it was the Red Sox who, six weeks ago, unceremoniously dumped his Nats out of the league lead with three straight victories over the Washington club here in Fenway Park. It was those three lickings which started the Nats off on their most dismal road trip in several years—three wins against nine defeats.

Tomorrow, weather permitting, DeShong will have an opportunity to pitch himself back into the esteem of Manager Harris. The sandy-haired right-hander is currently under something of a cloud because he got himself knocked out of the box in one inning against the St. Louis Browns in his last pitching attempt.

The Red Sox, if they play tomorrow, will be attempting to right themselves after taking a nose dive in the West. Joe Cronin's crew won seven of its first eight starts on its recent western jaunt and then took five beatings in a row in a losing streak which is as yet unended.

The gent whom Mr. Cronin has chosen to bring the Red Sox out of their slump is Mr. John "Footsie" Marcum, the large right-hander who lately has been winning ball games after a long famine during which he was tabbed as trading material.

Joe Cronin today welcomed to Boston young Mr. Thomas Griffith Cronin, his 2-month-old son who was accompanied here by Mrs. Cronin. The Cronins have taken a house in the fashionable Brookline suburb for the remainder of the season.

The Red Sox's misfortunes in the West threaten to be more lasting. Jack Wilson who, with Lefty Grove, virtually comprised the Boston pitching staff, has come down with a sore arm and may not see action for a month.

The news that today's ball game was called off was not exactly met with moans by the Washington players. A dozen of 'em caught the first bus for nearby Suffolk Downs where the ponies relieved 'em of most of their cash.

Al Simmons ascribes his recent batting spree to his new diet—raw fruits only at breakfast, his starches at lunch only and no bread at anytime. He has taken off 10 pounds since the start of the season.

Ambers-Armstrong Bout on August 10.

New York, June 28 (AP).—The lightweight championship fight between Lou Ambers, the holder, and Henry Armstrong, owner of both the featherweight and welterweight titles, was postponed today from July 26 to August 10. It will be fought at the Polo Grounds instead of Madison Square Garden Bowl, as originally planned.

The postponement was requested by Al Weill, manager of Ambers. The champion bruised his hand in a fight at Los Angeles last week against Jimmy Vaughan. Armstrong's pilot, Eddie Mead, did not object.

Both managers had objected to holding the fight in the big bowl on Long Island, contending that it was too far from Harlem, where the city's Negro population is concentrated. The Polo Grounds are at the edge of the Negro colony, and they likely will be out in force to watch dusky Henry go after his third crown.

Furr and Abrams Weigh in at Commission Offices and the Scales Are Found Wanting

By Lewis E. Atchison.

The District Boxing Commission's official weighing scales were tried yesterday and found to be slightly cock-eyed by Phil Furr as he weighed-in for his 10-round bout with George Abrams, scheduled for last night at the ball park.

The fight unexpectedly was postponed a third time at 8 o'clock last night when a light drizzle fell on a gathering of several hundred early birds at the stadium. Promoter Joe Turner decided to wait for a real good night after waiting 10 days before sending the boys into action.

Abrams continues to rule the favorite, with the sporting gentry willing to risk six potatoes against your five he takes the decision.

Chris Dundee, Phil Furr's pilot, told The Post last night that he will insist on another weighing-in today.

Not a major scandal, but a matter of mild discomfiture to Heine Miller, commission secretary, was the disclosure, for he has sworn by his weight-testing gadget like an inventor with a perpetual motion machine. The commission can make mistakes, he himself can be wrong, perhaps the Marines aren't the greatest military organization in the world, but the scales simply can't be wrong. He'll bet his life on that.

First on the scale was Abrams, who was recorded at 156 pounds, an increase of 1½ pounds over the figure he registered on Monday. Chris Dundee, Furr's manager, cast an appraising eye at the muscular lad.

"He looks more than any 156 to me," he said.

Furr stripped and stepped on the scales. Inspector Bill Blake maneuvered the indicator over to 145½ pounds. He tried to coax it over to 146, but each time the bar collapsed. Furr was 145½ on that scale—no more, no less.

"This thing's crazy," muttered Furr with a puzzled look in his eye. One forty-five and a half? Why, I had breakfast this morning and I oughtta weigh at least 147 or 148. I always weigh 147 when I don't eat breakfast, so I know I'm heavier than this shows."

"Certainly he weighs more," chimed in Dundee. "His normal weight is 147 and he hasn't done anything to bring him in under that. This scale's crazy."

"Listen," Miller interrupted, "You can say anything you want about Goldie Ahearn's gloves or Abrams' fighting, but don't say anything against my scales. They're right, and I'll bet you that $400 check you have in your pocket on that. What d'ya think we're trying to do around here, juggle weights?

"I know you're not trying to juggle weights," admitted Dundee, "But I know Phil weighs more than 145½, and I'll bet my end of the purse on that. Furthermore, Abrams looks heavier to me than any 156 pounds."

But with Furr still puzzled and a bit worried, Dundee was not satisfied. So into Bob Johnson's de luxe sedan he stepped with Bob Darby, "Hobo" Williams and Furr. They were off to the weights and measures department of the city. Arriving at the District Building 10 blocks away, they discovered their destination was just around the corner from the commission offices.

At the weights and measures office (and they really need that new one they're getting, by the way) Clark Kind, secretary to the superintendent, and Tom Brunson, an inspector, dragged out a Bureau of Standards Fairbanks and hoisted Furr on. He weighed 152 fully clothed. Stripped he scaled 147.

"See," said Dundee with a sigh of relief, "I knew he was more than any 145½."

"Sure I am. I knew it, too," added Furr.

"Jo," said Heine, calling his secretary, petite Joe Sawaya, "Jo, call the weights and measures department and tell them to come around here and test that scale again. Tell 'em to get here quick before Dundee accuses me of bringing in Joe Louis as a flyweight."

Max to Sail Saturday.

New York, June 28 (AP).—Physicians at Polyclinic Hospital predicted today that Max Schmeling, who suffered a spinal injury in his losing fight with Champion Joe Louis last Wednesday, would be in good enough condition to board the Bremen for Germany on Saturday night. The boxer is showing steady improvement, they reported, and Max was quoted as saying he "felt fine."

Fleur Du Mal Wins Delaware Park Feature Race at $4.80 Mutuel

Field's Filly Leads Five To the Wire

Takes Lead From Start and Wins With Ease; Rambler Rose 2d.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Delaware Park, Stanton, Del., June 28.—Running over a track deep in mud and muck, Fleur du Mal, in the colors of Marshall Field, wealthy Chicago sportsman, stepped to the wire ahead of five other fillies in the fifth and outstanding race on the turf card here on the outskirts of Wilmington.

Installed the favorite, Fleur du Mal gave her backers few if any anxious moments. She took command in the opening furlong and from that point to the finish tossed mud in the direction of the others. With the finish line reached, the filly had three lengths between her and Rambler Rose, half of the Walter M. Jeffords entry. False Point, in the violet and white of R. J. Walden, filled third position.

Fleur du Mal, coupled with Camelot in the betting, paid a $4.80 mutuel and was excellently handled by Jockey Johnny Gilbert. The time of 1:16 4-5 was in keeping with the poor condition of the racing oval.

Double Pays $458.50.

Twenty-four persons in the crowd of 6,000 got off to a flying start in the wagering department. They collected $458.50 for the usual $2 daily double investment. Suzanus and Nogalo, both No. 3 at the post, supplied the action.

Ten 3-year-olds found that they could not spot weight to Suzanus, a little daughter of Distraction, in the first race and the filly turned in the first victory of her brief racing career, supplying a $62.30 mutuel. With Apprentice E. Mower giving her a hustling ride, Suzanus withstood several challenges and stepped home the winner by a length. Cangrierron took the place money by a photo decision over Primwick. The winning time for 6 furlongs was a mediocre 1:17 2-5.

With the track a sea of mud, it was fitting that a daughter of Noah should take the chief money in the second event. Nogalo, ridden by Apprentice D. Driscoll, stepped to the wire a length and a half in front of Apprehend, the favorite, with Broadstep third. A Charles Town gang comprised the "also ran" of the group. Nogalo produced a $7.60 pay-off.

Licketysplit Takes Third.

Licketysplit ran as her name implies in the third race. The filly met six others of her sex and came out of the maiden ranks to win by two and a half lengths from Top Queen. Third position after the trip of 5 furlongs was filled by Dorothy Pomp. J. Riley, another apprentice, piloted the Canter filly which paid $6.80 with Top Queen a slight favorite.

Paying $20.30, Bold Message, a bad post actor from the Bomar Stable, turned in a front-running triumph in the fourth race. The Jean Valjean colt won by a half length over Scout About, Gallant Neb was third.

Jim Kelly's Jelly Roll, a hunch bet on the sticky track, came from last to be first home in the sixth pace. Cornwallis and High Omar followed the leader to the pay-off station. Jolly Roll paid $11.70 and was helped by the pace of Sun Antioch, one that folded badly in the final quarter.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUZANUS, $62.30, $24.30, $24.20; CANGRIERRON, $7.10, $5.60; PRIMWICK, $7.70.

SUZANUS raced CAIDON into submission to take brief lead, shook off bold challenge of PRIMWICK at eighth pole and was opening a gap at end under good handling. CANGRIERRON lacked early speed to keep up, rallied to drive to close with good courage. PRIMWICK, close to pacemakers from start, moved up menacingly in midstretch, but weakened suddenly.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:20½. Off 3:20. Winner, C. R. Valentine's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—NOGALO, $7.60, $3.70, $2.70; APPREHEND, $3.10, $2.40; BROADSTEP, $2.90.

NOGALO, sent to pacemakers under hustling tactics in opening furlong, raced in tight quarters to stretch, assumed definite lead and was put to pressure to hold APPREHEND safe. APPREHEND was allowed to settle into stride, bettered position gradually on outside, but weakened in midstretch. BROADSTEP, off poorly, was hard ridden.

Daily Double, Suzanus and Nogalo, Paid $458.50.

THIRD RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For maiden 2-year-old fillies. Start good from stall gates. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 3:52½. Off 3:53½. Winner, A. Rizzi 3d's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LICKETYSPLIT, $6.80, $3.10, $2.60; TOP QUEEN, $3.30, $2.80; DOROTHY POMP, $3.80.

LICKETYSPLIT, at home in the going, opened a good lead at once, was not threatened seriously at any stage and won in hand. TOP QUEEN was squeezed back at far turn and came with good energy on inside to close well. DOROTHY POMP showed a good effort.

FOURTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:21. Off 4:38. Winner, Bomar Stable's ch. c. BOLD MESSAGE had speed to dispose of SUN ARBOR and take slight lead approaching stretch, drew out gradually, but had to be put to punishment in closing sixteenth to hold SCOUT ABOUT safe. SCOUT ABOUT, forced wide for racing room, came gamely under strong handling. GALLANT NEB, away slowly and saving ground to stretch, came with rush at end.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; allowances. For 3-year-old fillies. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 4:35½. Off 4:36. Winner, M. Fields' b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLEUR DU MAL (Fields entry), $4.80, $2.80, out; RAMBLER ROSE (Jeffords entry), $3.20, out; FALSE POINT, out.

FLEUR DU MAL, going in best form, assumed a good lead going to turn and easily held RAMBLER ROSE safe in closing stages. RAMBLER ROSE was hard ridden from break and closed gamely, but was no match for winner. FALSE POINT was in close quarters leaving backstretch and came willingly at end.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates for all but Sunsrax. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 5:22. Off 5:22½. Winner, J. Kelly's b. g. (4), by Transmitter—Sweet Bun. Trained by J. T. Howard. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:52.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JELLY ROLL, $11.70, $6.50, $6.60; CORNWALLIS, $7.40, $6.00; HIGH OMAR, $6.30.

JELLY ROLL saved ground when outrun in early stages, responded to drive to gain sharply along rail, took command with ease entering straightaway and won easily. CORNWALLIS was rated while close to SUN ANTIOCH pace, but was held safe by winner when placed to drive. HIGH OMAR closed a gap in the final eighth.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:51. Off 5:54½. Winner, Tall Tree Stable's ch. f. (3), by Reigh Count—Vanity Fair. Trained by L. O'Donnell. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:51 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—COUNTESS LENA, $8.80, $4.80, $3.50; PETIT JEAN, $6.60, $3.80; PRINCE CLOUD, $3.00.

COUNTESS LENA, under steadying restraint while pressing WAY OUT'S pace, was kept under wraps to stretch, rallied gamely when put to pressure and disposed of PETIT JEAN to win going away. PETIT JEAN, off in a tangle, saved ground, went through on inside to get to front, but tired in closing stages. PRINCE CLOUD rallied mildly in closing test.

EIGHTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 6:21. Off 6:22½. Winner, E. K. Bryson's ch. h. (7), by Wildair—Delicious II. Trained by G. R. Bryson. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:49 4-5.

DEAR AL:

The horse Sunny Joe was scratched yesterday because the stable was a virtual island and his owner refused to allow him to swim before going to the paddock. The stewards sent an investigator over to the stables. He looked over the situation and the horse was declared out of action. This track is doing very well in a financial way, although the sport is paramount here, so we are told. The wagering here last Saturday was $466,109, just $28,891 short of the record for this plant set on closing day of last year's meeting. With Miss Adeline, Hard Chase and Frank Brooke in action, the Charles Town customers felt much at home. Miss Adeline probably will be shipped back to the mountains to race at the horse show meeting starting on Thursday. There are so many steeplechase courses at this track that every jockey is supplied with a road map before leaving the paddock. They have the turf writers on exhibition in a glass cage here. When they fail to pick a winner they just have to grin and bear it. I don't want to change the luck but, among other winners, we took down some of that Bold Message at a $20.30 mut

Sports in Brief

By the Associated Press.

BOBBY WILSON LOSES.

Pittsburgh, June 28.—Sammy Angott, of Louisville and Washington, Pa., coasted to an unanimous decision tonight by soundly thumping Tommy Speigal of Uniontown, Pa., in the Millvale Bowl.

Wilson caught Bennett with a left hook to the jaw in the fifth. Bennett recovered quickly and resumed a barrage of left hooks to the body. Wilson weighed 146½, Bennett 145.

CITADEL VS. GEORGIA.

Charleston, S. C., June 28.—The 1938 Citadel football team will furnish the initial test for Joel Hunt's first University of Georgia eleven, Maj. D. S. McAlister, director of cadet activities at the State Military College, announced tonight.

Hunt, who transferred to Georgia last year from L. S. U., will send his Bulldogs against the Charleston Bulldogs in Athens, Ga., Sept. 24.

SNEAD DENIES RUMOR.

Hot Springs, Va., June 28.—"Slammin" Sammy Snead, the White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., golfer, said tonight that it was all a mistake—the reports that he had obtained a marriage license.

"I had been thinking about it," he admitted, but added quickly, "it won't be any time soon."

Tolan Meets Owens.

Detroit, June 28 (AP).—Eddie Tolan, world's professional sprinting champion, said today he had signed a contract to defend his title against Jesse Owens, 1936 Olympic champion, at Melbourne, Australia, next March.

Ex-Western High Star Weds Today

A wedding of unusual interest to local sport fans will take place today in the rectory of Holy Trinity Catholic Church, Georgetown, as Norman J. "Huck" Hilleary, 32, walks the aisle with Miss Marie Louise Hebb. The Rev. Rodlbeer will officiate.

Hilleary, who was formerly a three letter athlete at Western High School, now plays baseball with the Annapolis Athletic Club. After leaving high school, he continued his sports career by playing football for the Apaches and baseball for the Georgetown Athletic Club nine. He is employed at the Department of Labor.

After an extensive automobile trip, the bride and bridegroom will make their home at 4481 Conduit road northwest.

John O. Cavadine, Once Hoya Star, Becomes G-Man

From baseball player to G-man. That's the story of John Octavius Cavadine, third-baseman for Georgetown University's nine, who was graduated this year and signed to play baseball with the Staunton, Va., club, only to be notified of his appointment to the Department of Justice's Bureau of Federal Investigation.

When Cavadine signed with Staunton, he did not expect his appointment with the Justice Department to go through until September. Friends said he was suffering from a broken finger in Staunton, and would report for duty here on Friday.

Roosevelt Lauds Harvard, Navy On Boat Victories

Hyde Park, N. Y., June 28 (AP). President Roosevelt said today that Navy's victory in the varsity race of the Intercollegiate Rowing Regatta at Poughkeepsie yesterday proved the supremacy of Navy and Harvard.

Harvard, not a participant in the Poughkeepsie event, recently defeated Navy at Annapolis.

The President, a Harvard graduate and a former Assistant Secretary of the Navy, saw the Annapolis race, but yesterday was delayed at Wilmington, Del., where he spoke at the celebration of the 300th anniversary of the founding of "New Sweden."

Sandlot Pickups

The Washington Gas Light Co. nine, which won the first-half Commercial League title by winning ten games against only two defeats, were the tailenders a year ago . . . Again the words of Bill Fliester, president of the Industrial League, flash into mind . . . That it is difficult for a team to win both the first and second half league titles . . . And that it is downright amazing how a ball club, composed of the same group of players, can sho wsuch a complete reversal of form.

Russ Kidwell, Pepco's ace catcher, is becoming the most feared receiver in the Week-Day League . . . On several occasion he has picked men off first and even has nipped them at second and third . . . That great throwing arm of Kidwell's is becoming more respected day by day . . . In the last tussel against the Union Printers' aggregation, the opposition was hugging the bags so closely that you would have thought they were glued there.

Did you know that Jim Bond, former all-high Tech first baseman, Bill Roberts, Jim Dennis, Dick Donovan and Earl Dennis, who at present are wearing the uniforms of The Washington Post Circulators, used to deliver your favorite morning paper daily before breakfast? Norman Outcault has brought together a group of lads and molded them into one of the strongest unlimited independent nines in and around Washington.

For your information: . . . There are five leagues playing weekday ball . . . They are: United States Government, Departmental, Commercial, Industrial and Herald Government . . . Six teams belong to the Industrial League . . . Heurich Brewers, Old Milwaukee Beer, Seven-Up, O'Donnell's Sea Grill, National Savings and Russell Motors are the ones . . . It is the only league having six members . . . Three—United States Government, Departmental and Herald Government—have five teams each . . . Commercial has only four teams . . . If you are interested, the names of the clubs belonging to the last four leagues will be given.

Mrs. Dent Wins In Duffers' Event.

In the duffers' tournament golf play-off held at the Manor course yesterday, Mrs. M. A. Dent, of Beaver Dam, won the Elizabeth Harris Cup with a net score of 76. Previously Mrs. Dent and Mrs. W. E. Sullivan, of Army and Navy, had tied, but yesterday Mrs. Dent was just too good as Mrs. Sullivan trailed with a net 87.

It looked like a repitition of what had happened before. The Navy had led the way once more, but couldn't keep the lead through to the finish.

Supreme Effort.

"Pick it up! pick it up!" yelled the little cox again. This time it was a demand.

And so the beat was raised still higher . . . Thirty-seven . . . thirty-eight . . . it seemed the limit of their strength and they were gasping for their breaths with every srtoke . . . forty!

The Navy shell crept forward. Buck Walsh, lying on his hospital cot with a pair of binoculars in his hands, could see them now. He could watch them as they moved up . . . bit by bit . . . seat by seat . . . stroke by stroke . . .

"Na-vy — row! Na-vy — row! The coxswain's voice kept repeating the chant in time to their stroke. Forward they bent and back. Forward and back. They had lost sight of where they were or where California was or how much farther they had to go. Forward and back, forward and back, Na-vy row, Na-vy row, forward back, Navy row, for'd back, Navy row, for'dback Navyrow . . . It was all one jumbled thought beating through their tired brains and their weary bodies responded mechanically.

* * * *

Suddenly the cox sang out his last command. 'Weigh, enough!" Cease rowing. They had crossed the finish line. And this time they had crossed it first.

There were cheers from the decks of the destroyers echoing out across the river. There were horns blowing and bells ringing from the other craft at anchor. The nine young men in the Navy shell could hear these things now and they knew that they had won, even if it took a record to do it. But they couldn't hear the chuckle that sounded strangely like a sob from a hospital cot far up the hill. Still they must have known how Buck Walsh was feeling at that moment, for they straightened up and grinned at each other and shook hands.

* * * *

This may not have been the greatest crew on the Hudson River, but it was the gamest, and when the history of rowing is written 50 years from now it will be remembered even then.

clay courts meet was his first major tournament since an appendectomy last April.

Mulloy reached the finals in a match with Joe Hunt, of Los Angeles, runner-up to Riggs last year. The scores were 2—6, 6—3, 7—5, 6—4.

Later Grant returned to the courts with a bandaged hand after a trip to a doctor and paired with Riggs to defeat Norman Bickel and Norbert Burgess, of Chicago, in a quarter-finals match halted by darkness yesterday after each team had won one set. Today Riggs and Grant won the match with the final count of 6—3, 1—6, 6—3, 6—3, 6—.

Virginia U. Student's 145 Equals Best

By the Associated Press.

Louisville, Ky., June 28.—An Easterner and a Southerner, one by virtue of a brilliant comeback, and the other through consistent shotmaking, stroked into a tie today for medalist honors at the end of the 36-hole qualifying for the forty-first National Intercollegiate golf championship.

Firing the only sub-par golf of the rounds of medal play, Willie Turnesa, of Elmsford, N. Y., and Holy Cross, finished early with a 145 total only to be deadlocked for the trophy a few minutes later by Lew W. Oehmig, of Chattanooga, Tenn., and the University of Virginia.

Turnesa, who comes from a golfing family and a year ago was medalist of this championship classic at Oakmont with 146, finished the second round of the qualifying today with 69, two under par for the Louisville Country Club course.

Putt Fails to Drop.

A putt that hung on the lip of the cup at the last hole cost Oehmig, Virginia captain and Tennessee State champion, a chance to take undisputed possession of the medalist trophy. He clipped two strokes off par going out, but three putts at the fifteenth and failure to chip closely at three greens on the way in gave him a 38 and a 72 total to add to his first round 73.

The field was cut down to the 32 low scorers tonight for a line-up of 16 matches to start championship elimination in the first round tomorrow morning at 18 holes. The second round is schedules for the afternoon, with the quarter-finals at 36 holes Thursday.

Georgetown's linksmen finished fifth among the 20 teams competing for the trophy today, but placed two men in the "charmed circle" of 32 who begin individual play tomorrow.

John P. Burke, duplicating his 74 of Monday, paced his team-mates in today's play and qualified for the match contests along with William L. Shea, who also duplicated his Monday's score of 76.

Burke meets Brown W. Cannon, of Stanford, in tomorrow's first-round match play, and Shea takes on Edward J. Flowers, of Michigan State, low scorer on the initial 18-hole qualifying round with a 72.

Paul Leslie, of Louisiana State, runner-up for the championship for the last two years, failed to qualify by taking a disastrous 80 to add to his opening 75, and Edward J. Flowers, of Michigan State, the first day's leader, with a 72, dissipated his medalist chances with a second-round 78.

Pace Record Field.

Turnesa and Oehmig paced a record field in the championship-forming play by two strokes with Stanley Holditch, of Georgia Tech, a quarter-finalist last year, and Billie Lee Craig, of Oklahoma, trailing at 147.

A trio of players was bracketed at 148. They were Rufus King, of Southern Methodist, who, like Holditch, equaled par on today's round, Jack Wallace, of Stanford, and John P. Burke, of Georgetown. Joseph Zotkiewicz of the University of Dayton, and Sid Richardson, of Northwestern, were next with 149's.

Stanford won the team trophy with a record score of 601, an average of just 1 stroke over 75's for the four low-scoring players. The former mark was 611, established by Michigan three years ago. Northwestern was second with 609, and Louisiana State third with 615.

Georegtown was fifth in team play with 617. Notre Dame was sixth with 620, Georgia Tech and Michigan were tied for seventh with 622, Dartmouth was ninth with 624, Virginia was tenth with 625, Yale was eleventh with 626 and Michigan was twelfth with 627.

Other team scores: Amherst, 645; Fordham, 660; Ohio State, 631; Pittsburgh, 634; Princeton, 631; Southern California, 626; Texas, 638, and Minnesota, 634.

U. S. - British Amity Is Held Vital to Peace

No Longer Possible to Isolate Domestic Problems, Towson Says.

"Problems of World Economics" were discussed before the Civitan Club at a luncheon meeting yesterday in the Mayflower Hotel. The speaker, Norman E. Towson, assistant treasurer and manager of the foreign department of the Washington Loan & Trust Co., is also secretary of the Academy of World Economics as well as a member of the speakers' unit of the District of Columbia Bankers Association. Mr. Towson stressed the point that "it seems impossible longer to isolate our purely domestic problems from the impact of world conditions" and after discussing the situation in the nations just now most prominent in the public mind, he emphasized the fact that "in all this welter of economic disturbance throughout the world, one thing stands out: that a real and sympathetic friendship between Great Britain and this country is absolutely essential. "Undoubtedly," he said, "one of the greatest sources of comfort to the disturbing elements in the world would lie in a disagreement or a mutually developing distrust among English speaking countries. In their hands now, more than ever before, rests the peace of the world."

Cites Morrow.

He quoted the late Dwight W. Morrow's statement that international understanding is being carried on by business as it cannot be by any other means, and though some may think of bargaining as sordid, when men first began to trade it was the first great challenge to barbarism.

Towson distinguished between the satisfied and dissatisfied nations, the so-called "haves" and the "have nots" and the problems of both to retain or obtain that which they have acquired or desired. "The traditional means of armed force," he said, "are only too well known to us but there are other means of varying effectiveness—the economic boycott and the embargo; the boycott applied individually by possible purchasers, usually disorganized and rarely continuing long enough to be effective; the embargo, on the other hand, is applied by governmental action restricting or prohibiting exports of certain or all commodities to the offending nation. Proponents of the latter policy, however, disregard other possible sources of supply and therefore, the application of economic pressure will only be successful if it has the whole-hearted co-operation of other nations."

Steel Supplies At Low Level

Cleveland, Ohio, June 28.—Recent slight increase in the steel production rate is based on the fact that inventories at consuming plants have shrunk to low proportions, thus causing an increased demand for steel, particularly in small lots for quick shipment, a survey of the industry shows, the magazine Steel says today.

Inventories, after holding down purchases over many months finally have ceased to be a brake on new business.

Stocks of steel in auto plants in the Detroit area are at a level considerably below normal, even taking into consideration the 50 per cent drop in production during the past few months. One automobile manufacturer reports an inventory the lowest in five years. Summarizing the automobile inventory conditions, it seems an extra-healthy condition exists, leading up to buying for 1939 models, which is expected on a fairly large scale after the first of August.

Stocks at New York have been reduced to where an appreciable upturn in demand for manufactured steel soon would be reflected in increased buying from mills.

Daily Oil Output Drops 58,716 Bbls.

Tulsa, June 28 (AP).—Production of crude oil in the United States dropped 58,716 barrels daily during the week ended June 25 to a daily average of 3,079,389, the Oil and Gas Journal reported today.

The Oklahoma output dropped 37,600 barrels daily to 408,450. East Texas increased 332 to 363,849 but the State of Texas declined 1,443 to 1,188,193. Louisiana decreased 4,045 barrels daily to 258,630, California was down 14,500 to 665,000 and Kansas decreased 6,575 to 152,975.

Santa Fe Omits Pfd. Dividend, Bond Interest

But Income Turned Up Sharply Last Month, President Reports.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 28.—Directors of Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad today took no action on the semi-annual dividend on the preferred stock due at this time and likewise took no action on the interest payment on the 4 per cent adjustment bonds. S. T. Bledsoe, president, estimated the net operating income for June at $2,970,000. On the basis of such an estimate it was figured the company apparently earned the adjustment bond interest for the first half of the year.

Directors on May 1 deferred the semi-annual 2 per cent payment on the 4 per cent adjustment bonds because at that time earnings were not regarded as adequate, net operating income for May, however, improved sharply, amounting to $1,369,326 against $424,501 the corresponding month of last year.

The preferred stock dividends are noncumulative at a rate not exceeding 5 per cent annually to be paid from the undivided net profits at the end of each fiscal year on June 30. Payments of $2.50 each were made for the year 1937, the first on August 1, 1937, and the second on February 2, 1938.

Bledsoe said the failure of the board to take action on the preferred dividend today should not be regarded as formal passing of the disbursement.

Norfolk & Western.

Philadelphia, June 28 (AP).—The Norfolk & Western Railway Co. today declared a quarterly dividend of $1.00 per share on the adjustment preferred stock, payable August 19 to stockholders of record July 30. A quarterly dividend of $2.50 a share on common stock also was declared, payable Stepember 19 to stockholders of record August 31. In announcing the dividends the company said:

"In view of the continued heavy decrease of gross earnings and the relatively high operating expenses due to cost of materials and supplies and fuel and to existing rates of pay, it is not anticipated that the full amount of the dividend on common stock will be earned at the date fixed for payment, which will necessitate a part of such dividend being charged against surplus earnings of previous years."

Wilson Co. Omits.

Chicago, June 28 (AP).—The board of directors of Wilson Co., Inc., took no action today on the $6 cumulative preferred dividend. Action was omitted, the company said, "in view of the current year's results to date," and because of the company's policy of making dividend payments out of cash earnings only.

B. & O. Carloadings.

Baltimore, June 28.—Carloadings on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad for the week ended June 25 totaled 35,378. For the same week of last year total loads were 48,513, and during the previous week of this year the total was 35,424..

The Market

Closing Is Irregular as Traders Take Profits After Last Week's Jump; Trading Lighter.

New York, June 28.—Irregularity continued in the stock market today as traders took some of the profits accruing from last week's bulge. Selling was not heavy and the volume of trading fell away to 1,289,720 shares. The composite average closed down about a tenth of a point and there were comparatively few wide fluctuations, the list giving the appearance of taking a rest rather than adopting any new program.

Movements by special groups and a few individual issues were a characteristic of the day. Building shares were given a whirl, notably Johns-Manville, which closed up 3⅛ points. Tire and rubber issues also stood out against the irregularity of the general list, the United States Rubber issues featuring. The preferred ran up 3¼ and the common ⅝.

Rails softened under the influence of adverse dividend action. Interest centered about the Atchison meeting, at which directors took no action on the interest payment of the 4 per cent adjustment bonds and passed dividend on the preferred stock. This development was not entirely unexpected and the blow was softened by official word that June next operating income was $2,970,000, which indicates that the adjustment bond interest may have been earned for the half-year. Atchison common and preferred closed off 1⅜ and 3¼, respectively, but the bonds were firm, the stamped 4s advancing 1⅝.

Norfolk & Western declared its regular dividend, but announced that part of the sum required to do so will have to come from surplus. The Reading Co. cut its dividend in half and its shares eased slightly along with those of its big stockholder, Baltimore & Ohio. With the weight of developments on the bearish side, the rails contributed their share to the irregularity. Meanwhile, the Interstate Commerce Commission continued its hearings on the plea of the roads for higher passenger coach fares and set arguments for Thursday.

Pullman Strong.

One strong spot in the railroad group was pullman, which closed up more than a point in active dealings reflecting the 5 per cent fare increase, granted to this form of passenger travel.

Steels were active and little changed in price as other units of the industry fell into line to meet the price cut announced last week by United States Steel.

The lower steel rates have not brought any great influx of orders yet but this is to be expected. Doubtless it will be a week or two before the effect can be gauged. The automobile industry should be one of the first of the big customers to make its intentions known.

Fluctuations in steel, Bethlehem and Republic were minor today and the same applied to General Motors and Chrysler. Montgomery Ward was a leader of the store division, which was generally higher, while Kennecott was a weak feature of the metal division. Anaconda and inspiration were down small fractions.

There was a wave of heavy selling in Wilson & Co. shares when the company passed the dividend due at this time on its $6 cumulative preferred stock. This issue broke more than 6 points and the common also was under pressure.

Larger estimates of European crops and also heavy rains reported in northern Alberta and Saskatchewan brought heavy selling into the wheat market. Winnipeg prices were flnocked down 2⅛ cents and in Chicago the close was off 1⅛ to 1½ cents. Cotton was featured by an active demand for July, which closed up a point, while other months moved narrowly and closed off 1 to 3 points.

Prime Bonds Firm.

With speculative sentiment waning perceptibly, institutional investors showed more interest in high-grade money market bonds today, and these issues recovered small fractions of the losses occasioned in preceding sessions. The conclusion was reached that the speculative markets will not "run away" at this time and bring about heavy liquidation of high-grade issues for participation in a stock rise. Investment operations were conducted with greater confidence.

In the speculative corporate section of the listed bond market small recessions were the rule. Rail issues dragged, although a few bonds managed to close with gains. A few industrial convertibles advanced sharply in reflection of equity gains. In the foreign division a fresh decline of Japanese bonds attracted attention, as it was assumed to indicate waning confidence in the ability of Japan to withstand the strain of the war in China. Total bond transactions were $7,970,000.

United States Treasury issues were traded actively, and at gains of 2-32 to 5-32 point for the long-term bonds. The sale of another Treasury bill issue at a record low interest cost stimulated the market slightly, even though it is well known that the vanishing rate is due principally to replacement needs of the Federal Reserve open market account. Guaranteed bonds of the Farm and Home Corporations were steady.

Telephone bonds and best rated power and light issues were marked fractionally higher on the gains in Treasury bonds, while highest grade rail and industrial bonds likewise improved. Among secondary and default carrier liens the main trend was lower, and exceptions were not significant. Losses in such rails rarely exceeded a point, however, leaving the bonds with most of the advances recorded last week. Some of the steel convertibles were in excellent demand, despite the price cuts. Holding company bonds and commodity issues were firm groups, but local tractions were irregular. International Telephone 4½s were highly active and again higher.

Most Japanese bonds continued to drift downward and a few now are close to the lows of the year. Italian issues also were soft. The high-grade Argentine, Australian, Canadian and Scandinavian issues were well maintained. Latin-American default bonds drifted lower, while European disregarded pledges held to former figures.

Wheat Prices Decline With Crop Outlook

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 28.—Enlarged estimates of European crops, together with heavy rains relieving drought in northern Alberta and Saskatchewan, Canada, carried Chicago wheat prices down 1½ cents today. Winnipeg quotations tumbled 2⅛ cents.

Cables said this year's world crop probably would be much above the world's needs. Italy's production is expected to approximate 250,000,000 bushels, as against earlier indications of 220,000,000. The crop in France is now estimated at 320,000,000 bushels, contrasting with 254,000,000 last year.

Ideal weather conditions favoring growth throughout the American and Canadian spring crop belt acted as a weight on prices almost from the outset, and so likewise did auspicious weather for the domestic winter crop harvesting, extending rapidly, increased operations in central areas.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 1⅛ to 1½ cents a bushel lower compared with yesterday's finish; July, 75½@75⅝; September, 76⅝@76¾. Corn, ⅜ to ⅞ cent down; July, 57@57⅛; September, 58¾@58½. Oats unchanged to ⅜ cent off. Rye showed ⅞ to 1⅛ cents drop and provisions a setback of 7 to 30 cents.

THERE'S NO EXTRA FARE!

ON THE DIESEL-POWERED
CAPITOL LIMITED to CHICAGO

True, there's extra riding comfort—awake or asleep—when you travel the Diesel way. But you pay only the regular 3c a mile train fare, plus Pullman—the same as on any other train. Yet, you've never enjoyed a more comfortable ride! Diesel power does it!

So smooth, it's like gliding! Quiet, too. No switching of engine or cars between Washington and Chicago.

Trial Starts Today In Norfolk Slaying

Norfolk, Va., June 28 (AP).—James Clifton Abdell, 41, charged with murder in the death of his wife, Mrs. Audrey Sharpe Abdell, 38, will go on trial tomorrow.

Mrs. Abdell's bruised body was found in the gas-filled kitchen of her home May 11.

Abdell was arrested May 12, a few hours after he returned from Washington. Held in the city jail since his arrest, Abdell has denied any connection with his wife's death.

Pact Ends Strike Threat.

Petersburg, Va., June 28 (AP).—Pressed by the State to reach an agreement, the American Hardware Co. and the Luggage Workers Union today signed an 18-month working agreement which ended all threat of a strike by approximately 1,300 union members of the company's 1,500 workers.

COMMISSIONERS OF THE DISTRICT OF Columbia, June 20, 1938. A public hearing having been held by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia in the matter of closing part of Michigan avenue west of Eighteenth street northeast, considered in connection with a dedication of certain area for highway purposes in this vicinity, and the said Commissioners being satisfied as to the equity, justice and advisability of said closing, and that the same is in the public interests and not detrimental to the interests of abutting property owners, notice is hereby given that the said Commissioners have prepared the following order: "Ordered that pursuant to the provisions of Public Act No. 307, approved December 15, 1932, a part of Michigan avenue northeast, on the southerly side, lying immediately west of Eighteenth street, is hereby ordered closed, as shown on plat filed in the office of the surveyor of the District of Columbia numbered as Map 2058-A, same to take effect on and after July 20, 1938, the title to the land comprised within the part of Michigan avenue so closed to revert to the abutting property owners, as shown on said map; and in connection therewith a dedication is provided for the acquisition of additional street area at Michigan avenue and Bunker Hill road northeast, and for the widening of Bunker Hill road on the northerly side, west of Eighteenth street northeast." Any and all parties interested must file objections in writing, if any, to said closing before the effective date of above order; otherwise said order shall become effective on July 20, 1938, as aforesaid, and said part of said avenue shall on and after said date become closed in accordance with the provisions of said Act. MELVIN C. HAZEN, GEORGE E. ALLEN, DAN I. SULTAN, Commissioners of the District of Columbia.

COMMISSIONERS OF THE DISTRICT OF Columbia—Washington, June 25, 1938. ORDERED: That the Traffic and Motor Vehicle Regulations for the District of Columbia, be, and the same are hereby amended as follows: Amend Part I, Article V, Section 15, by striking out the clause which reads as follows: "West side of west 15th Street and Vermont Avenue from Massachusetts Avenue to H Street" and insert in lieu thereof the following: "West side of west 15th Street and Vermont Avenue from H Street to L Street." Amend Part I, Article VII, Section 53, by striking out paragraph (c), which reads as follows: "No person shall install or use upon a bicycle any siren or whistle"—and insert in lieu thereof the following: "(c) Every bicycle shall be equipped with a bell to be used as a warning of danger, but no bicycle shall be equipped with a siren or whistle." Amend Part I, Article X, Section 64, by adding a new paragraph, to be known as paragraph (m), to read as follows: "(m) Any permit issued to an individual 16 years of age or over but under 18 years of age, as provided for in Section 7 (a) of the Traffic Act, shall be valid until said individual shall have reached the age of 18 years, at which time said individual shall surrender said permit to the Department of Vehicles and Traffic for cancellation. The Department of Vehicles and Traffic shall then issue, without additional fee, to said individual a valid regular permit which shall bear the same permit number for the unexpired portion of three years from the original date of issuance of original minor's permit." Amend Part VI, Article XVI, Section 71 (a) Northwest Section, as follows: CONDUIT ROAD: Eliminate the clause dealing with Conduit Road, which reads as follows: "From New Cut Road to the District Line, no parking at any time within the limits of the 44-foot roadway." E STREET: Under the paragraph dealing with E Street, add the following: "On the north side from 5th Street to the driveway into the Police Court Building (a distance of 100 feet), no parking at any time." G STREET: Under the paragraph dealing with G Street, add the following: "From 14th to 15th Streets, on the north side, no parking, stopping or standing 8 to 9:30 a. m. and 4 to 6 p. m." JACKSON PLACE: Add the following clause to the paragraph dealing with Jackson Place—"one hour parking from 9:30 a. m. to 4 p. m."—so that the paragraph, as amended, will read as follows: "No parking from 4 to 9:30 a. m. and from 4 to 6 p. m., one hour parking from 9:30 a. m. to 4 p. m." Add a new paragraph as follows: THE MALL: "Between Washington and Adams Drives no parking at any time on 3rd, 4th, 5th, 7th, 9th, 12th, 13th and 14th Streets." NORTH CAPITOL STREET: Under the paragraph dealing with North Capitol Street, strike out the first and second clauses and insert in lieu thereof the following: "Between Massachusetts Avenue and D street, no parking on the east side from 4 to 6 p. m., 30-minute parking 7 a. m. to 4 p. m., and on the west side no parking 7 to 9:30 a. m., 30-minute parking 9:30 a. m. to 6 p. m." "Between G and M Streets, west side, no parking 7 to 9:30 a. m., one hour parking 9:30 a. m. to 6 p. m., and on the east side no parking 4 to 6 p. m., one hour parking 7 a. m. to 4 p. m." PARK ROAD: Under the paragraph dealing with Park Road, add the following: "From the north building line of 2055 to Piney Branch Bridge on the east side and from P

HERE'S THE SPOT WHERE THE OLD PLACE STOOD. RIGHT OVER THERE BY THAT BIG CLUMP OF WEEDS IS WHERE THE PIPE CAME OUT FOR OUR WATER CONNECTION, AND JUST TO THE LEFT IS WHERE WE PLUGGED IN FOR OUR ELECTRICITY. GOLLY! THE HAPPY DAYS I SPENT HERE AS A BOY! IT WAS JUST A SIMPLE, HOME MADE JOB— NOTHING FANCY, LIKE THE OTHER TRAILERS— BUT I LOVED IT
IT'S KINDA SAD COMING BACK TO THE SCENES OF OUR CHILD-HOOD, DON'T YOU THINK? SOMETIMES I FEEL THAT IT'S A MISTAKE
THE OLD HOMESTEAD

Bob Burns Says—

I always did say that women have much stronger character than men. Once she has a definite goal to hit for, she will make any kind of a sacrifice to reach it.

Last winter I saw a friend of mine all bundled up in a great big overcoat and I says, "It don't seem fair to me that you are dressed so warm and I jest saw your wife on the street in a little, worn, frayed, thin coat and she was actually blue and cold."

Lt. Letterman Made Captain; 13 More Rise

32 Privates Appointed to Fill Vacancies in District Police Department.

The District Commissioners yesterday promoted 14 members of the Metropolitan Police and approved appointment of 32 privates to fill vacancies in the department. All promotions were recommended to the Commissioners by Police Supt. Ernest W. Brown.

Lieut. Oscar J. Letterman, former head of the vice squad, was promoted to the rank of captain. Letterman was the leader of the police force who figured prominently in breaking up liquor rings here during the prohibition era.

Promoted to the rank of sergeant were Pvts. Ray Eggleson, William H. Hinson, Maurice F. Prestele, Thomas C. Kelleher and George C. Deyoe and Precinct Detective Joseph P. Comiskey.

Precinct Detective Fred L. Rawlinson was promoted to detective sergeant and Pvts. Irving Lubore and Robert R. Klotz were made precinct detectives.

Commissioners Promote 14 Members of Police Force

Among those promoted yesterday by the District Commissioners were (left to right) Sergt. Thomas Mason, jr., to lieutenant; Lieut. Oscar Letterman to captain; Sergt. John E. Scott to lieutenant; Sergt. John L. Norris to lieutenant, and Detective Sergt. Clyde N. Strange to lieutenant.

Parley to Solidify Progressive Move Planned in Month

Chicago, June 28 (AP).—Charles W. Carroll, independent Republican candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania, announced today after a conference with Gov. Philip La Follette of Wisconsin, that a meeting would be called within a month to discuss methods of co-ordinating State-wide movements in a new "middle-of-the-road" political party.

This meeting will be held in an Eastern city, probably Pittsburgh, Carroll said, after his meeting with the organizer of the new National Progressive Party of America.

Carroll said Gov. La Follette assured him he would attend the forthcoming conference, along with key workers in his new party.
